Ag Progress Days To Show What's New In Agriculture

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Attractions ranging from a food safety game show to a remote-controlled tractor rollover to an insect petting zoo will be on display at Ag Progress Days, sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, Aug. 16-18.

This year's theme, "Penn State Ag Sciences . . . We're More Than You Think!," centers on food safety. The exposition is held at the university's 1,500-acre Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, near State College.

"Thanks to research and extension, the United States has the most abundant, least expensive and highest-quality food in the world," says Dr. Lamartine F. Hood, dean of the college. "To ensure safe, plentiful supplies in the future, we must continue to find ways to economically produce and process foods with fewer harmful bacteria or potentially harmful residues."

Eating unsafe food can put consumers in jeopardy and visitors to Ag Progress Days will get a chance to test their knowledge of agriculture and food safety on SciQ, a "Jeopardy"-like game show played daily at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the College Exhibits Building Theatre. Admission is free. There will be an evening show Wednesday at 6 p.m. WZWW radio team Jeff Brown and Steve Jones will host the show Tuesday and Wednesday. Rick Kauffman, associate extension agent in Berks County, will host the Thursday shows.

Exhibits and demonstrations in the College Exhibits Building will show how research and education help to reduce pesticide residues, increase processing safety and improve home food-handling techniques. Penn State faculty and staff will be present to answer questions.

Safety on tractors is the focus of another demonstration as experts in agricultural engineering operate a 35-horsepower, remote-controlled tractor on slopes of varying angles. By observing the tractor undergo side and rear overturns, visitors can see the cause and effects of rollovers while learning important prevention tips.

Ag Progress Days begin 9 a.m. on Tuesday at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center in Rockspring. This premier educational event salutes the progressive nature of agriculture in research, extension, and industrial adaptation to the needs of farmers and the environment. The exposition annually draws 300 exhibitors and 50,000 people.

This Ag Progress issue of Lancaster Farming has schedules of daily events, stories of introduction to events, a layout of the grounds, and messages from the exhibitors. In addition, regular features, markets, and coverage of events are included.

Ag Progress Days conclude at 5 p.m. on Thursday.

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — "Mom picked out the hog for us. She always picks out our hogs."

Kutztown Fair Market Swine Show Champion Stephen Wessner said that his 191-pound Hampshire/Yorkshire gilt, from the heavyweight class, was picked by his mother, Barbara, from Raber Farms, New Tripoli.

Stephen, 19, who works for his father, Harlan, looks forward to many more shows this year, including Allentown, the Keystone International Livestock Expo, and the State Farm Show.

Show judge Ron Trostle, Trostle Livestock, Red Lion, said the heavyweight hog was the "longest-sided and leanest" of all the hogs in the ring. "I feel this pig is probably the largest of the three

AUGUST 15-21, 1994

FULL STURGEON MOON, AUGUST 21.

A STORM NAMED CAMILLE

August 17 marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of one of the most intense hurricanes ever to hit the U S mainland Hurricane Camille struck Louisiana and Mississippi with winds estimated at 175 to 200 mph The storm surge peaked at 24 2 feet and the barometric pressure (26 73 inches) was one of the lowest ever recorded in the Gulf of Mexico Camille was downgraded to a serious rain squall as she moved north into Tennessee But as the "squall" crossed into Virginia she cut loose with intense rain averaging 4 inches, but in excess of 27 inches in some areas Camille raged for 6 hours in Virginia, devastating an area 40 miles wide and 120 miles long Over 400 fatalities and $1 42 billion in damages were attributed to Camille

We may achieve climate, but weather is thrust upon us.

TIP OF THE WEEK

Freshen soggy crackers and chips by microwaving on high for 30 to 60 seconds, then let stand 2 minutes.

EARTHWISE

Now there's new life for PET plastic soda bottles! Manufacturers have discovered a way to make a soft, cushiony fleece from recycled bottles Marketed under several different brand names (Eco-fleece and Re-Threads Fleece™ are a couple we've seen) the fabrics also have differing contents, but all are primarily composed of post-consumer recycled bottles We've seen various items from picnic blankets to sweat pants Ask for them where you shop

OPINION

Great Reasons To Visit Ag Progress Days

Ag Progress Days have become the annual mid-summer spotlight on agricultural advancement and technology in the state of Pennsylvania. Much of this "progress" has revolved around the research and extension at Penn State and so it is fitting that the theme should recognize: "Penn State Ag Sciences...We're More Than You Think!"

Private industry has also contributed to the advancement of agriculture. This is evident in the many innovations in machinery and methods that appear at Ag Progress Days each year. With more than 300 exhibitors this year, what's new in production and environmental agriculture will be showcased again.

But make no mistake about it. Penn State can't educate and exhibitors can't show their new technology if you don't come. People who come to the show are the most important group of all.

Of course, if you have any kind of interest in farming you will be attracted to Ag Progress Days. One big attraction is the equipment working in the fields. This year, precision planters and high-tech harvesters as well as hay making equipment will be up and running.

For antique lovers, the Pasto Agricultural Museum is always an attraction. Here you can see a 175-year-old apple peeler to a milking machine powered by foot pedals.

Research tours provide information of interest to many people. Dairy, poultry, potato and conservation tours are among the listed tours on the schedule this year.

Yes, these three days, August 16-18 promise to be provide many great reasons to visit Ag Progress Days. We'll want you to break into your work schedule at home for a few hours, load up the family in the car or truck, and make the trip to Rockspring this week. We'll look for you.

Now Is The Time

To Start Studying Worker Protection Standards

Farmers will need to come in complete compliance with U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Worker Protection Standards (WPS) by January 1, 1995.

The WPS is a regulation that covers pesticides used in the production of agricultural plants on farms, forests, nurseries, and greenhouses. The WPS requires you to take steps to reduce the risk of pesticide-related illness and injury to you, your family, or your employees.

If you are an agricultural pesticide user and/or an employer of agricultural workers or pesticide handlers, the WPS requires you to provide to your employees and in some cases to yourself and to others information about exposure to pesticides, protection against exposures to pesticides, and ways to reduce exposures to pesticides.

Contact your local cooperative extension office for more details on WPS. Now is the time to pick up information on WPS to study and start implementing this program on your farm.

To Wear Respirators Around Organic Dust

Agricultural workers may be at risk for developing organic dust toxic syndrome (ODTS).

This is a common respiratory illness that may follow exposures to heavy concentrations of organic dust when shoveling or moving organic materials such as oats, wood chips, compost, and silage.

The syndrome is characterized by fever occurring 4 to 12 hours after exposure and flu-like symptoms such as general weakness, headache, chills, and cough. ODTS usually disappears within 24 hours to a few days after the worker is removed from the exposure.

No specific therapy is needed to treat ODTS. However, the syndrome may often be misdiagnosed as acute bronchitis, influenza, or farmer's lung disease, which may lead to unnecessary or excessive treatment with medication.

You should minimize the risk of exposure by carefully harvesting and storing agricultural products to minimize spoilage, use automated or mechanized equipment to move decayed materials, use engineering controls such as local exhaust ventilation and wet methods to control dust, and use appropriate respirators.

To Guard PTO Shafts

According to National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, 112 people died as a result of entanglement in PTO-driven shafts from 1980-1989.

Nearly 10,000 non-fatal entanglement injuries also occurred on farms between 1982 and 1986. Of these accidents, 864 resulted in amputation. In addition, at least five women have been scalped in PTO accidents.

These injuries, amputations, and deaths are caused by the use of inadequately guarded machinery and the failure to follow proper safety precautions.

Ensuring that the original or available retrofit guards are in placed on farm equipment, disengaging the PTO, and turning off the tractor ignition before performing maintenance on PTO-driven equipment will prevent entanglement incidents.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "We are continually faced by great opportunities brilliantly disguised as insoluble problems."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

LET'S GO BACK!
August 14, 1994

LET'S GO BACK!
August 14, 1994

Background Scripture:
Numbers 13 through 14
Devotional Reading:
Numbers 23:18-23

"Let us choose a captain, and go back to Egypt" (14:4). So said the people of Israel when the twelve spies whom Moses had sent into the land of Canaan gave their report.

So say many people today when they are confronted with "an evil report." The "captain" may be a political candidate, a religious figure, or a charismatic person who promises a return to the good old days. It is a fact of life that lots of people would rather accept the known hardship of an Egypt than the seeming elusive promise of Canaan.

Before we come down too hard on the people of Israel, let us acknowledge that their reaction is understandable because we often respond to life in the same way. We long for the Promised Land, but we don't want to have to take any risks to get there. And when it is apparent that there are grave risks we frequently find it more attractive to go back to what was, instead of what can be. We assume that misery that is familiar is less uncomfortable than misery that is uncertain.

YOU CAN'T GO BACK

One of the lessons that the Bible teaches us, however, is that you cannot go back. Even if you return to a place geographically, it is not the same for life moves on inexorably. It is impossible for humans to hold back or even delay the march of time. Continuing change is one of the themes of the Old Testament and it is one of the hardest lessons for us to learn.

Change makes us fearful. Anything that disturbs our status quo is likely to make us resistant. But change was inevitable for the twelve tribes of Israel in the wilderness and it is inevitable for us. If we consider it bad news when God tells us of change, we need also to listen to the good news that goes with it: God goes with us into the changing future and not only sustains us amidst the perils of it, but transforms many of the perils into opportunity and advantage. We are right to distrust the future, but wrong not to trust in God.

That is the key to the report of twelve spies. They were agreed on one aspect of their reconnaissance; Canaan was all that God had led them to expect. "It flows with milk and honey, and this is its fruit," they said, bringing back a cluster of the abundant grapes they found in the Valley of Eshcol (which means "cluster"). Reports of the future usually have some element of positive opportunity. There is something to be gained by going forward.

MILK & HONEY

But the spies did not agree on the second part of their report. Moses had asked them to spy out both the land and the people: "Go into the Negeb yonder, and go up into the hill country, and see what the land is, and whether the people who dwell in it are strong or weak, whether they are few or many. . ." (13:17,18). Ten of the twelve spies reported that taking the Promised Land was beyond the capabilities of the Israelites. ". . .all the people that we saw in it are men of great stature . . .and we seemed to ourselves like grasshoppers, and so we seemed to them" (13:32,33). But Caleb and Joshua saw the same situation differently: "Let us go up at once, and occupy it; for we are well able to overcome it," said Caleb.

Note that these twelve men all had the same experience in the same place. Ten of them, however, saw dangerous futility in the same place where two of them saw opportunity to do God's will. Ten of them came down with the "grasshopper complex," while two were willing to trust in God's promise.

Often, that's the same choice that confronts us.

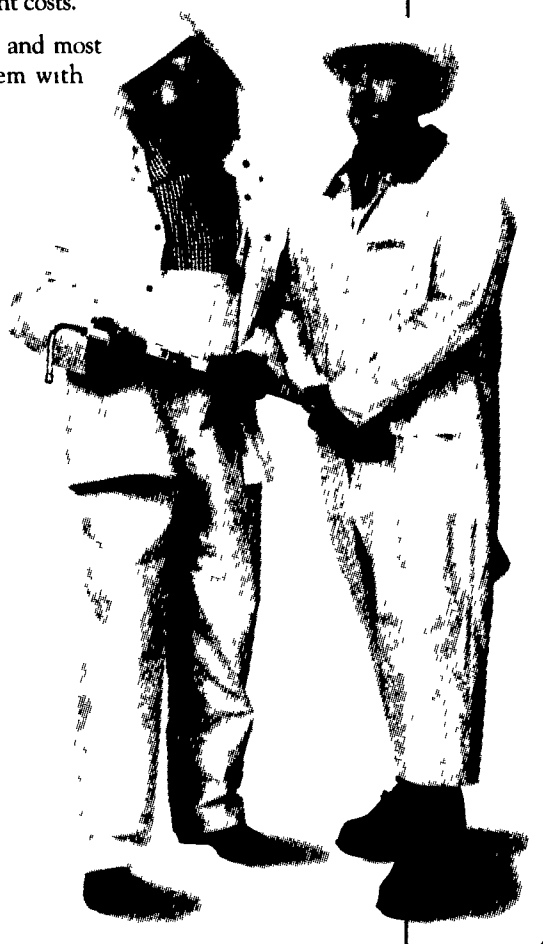
Think of it as "an apple a day" for cows and calves

The rationale behind using PROBIOS® brand microbial products is simple – In the digestive tract of normal, healthy, low stressed animals, a critical balance of beneficial bacteria and potentially disease causing bacteria exists. This "healthy, low stress" condition cannot always be maintained and thus feed consumption is reduced.

PROBIOS products contain naturally-occurring, lactic acid producing bacteria, selected because of their vigor and beneficial activity in the gut. Trial after trial has shown PROBIOS helps get that critical balance back on track and maintain it for improved feed consumption and a reduction in associated treatment costs.

PROBIOS products are the original and most trusted direct-fed microbials. Use them with confidence.



Protect your livestock with PROBIOS! Protect yourself with new top-of-the-line rain gear!

For every two cases (48, 300g tubes) of PROBIOS® Bovine One Oral Gel purchased, you'll receive FREE rain gear – choose between a heavy-duty 3-piece rain suit or a "duster" style raincoat. Offer good thru December 31, 1994.

For complete program details see your participating animal health dealer or call 1-800-247-6803, ext: 2986.

State Lamb Pool Location, Dates Set

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The state Department of Agriculture this week announced the schedule for the 1994 series of Northeast Lamb Pools, a tele-o-auction conducted for the sale of graded lambs and slaughter-sheep.

According to a statement released Thursday, the auctions are scheduled for August 26, Sept. 30, Nov. 4, and Dec. 2.

The pools are to be held at the Troy Sales Barn, located in Troy, Bradford County.

"Lambs and slaughter sheep will be accepted and graded from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. on the day of the pool," according to the news release.

Similar to what is practiced at traditional livestock auctions, staff from the PDA Livestock Division are to grade the lambs and sheep using USDA grading standards and the animals will be penned in uniform groups, according to grade and weight.

The sale itself is to be conducted by tele-o-auction starting at 3 p.m. each sale day.

Interested buyers should call David Albert, lamb pool manager, at (717) 998-2505 before the sale date of interest, to be included.

The sale-day phone number is (717) 297-9095.

FINANCIAL ADVICE
HE'LL GIVE YOU.

There's nothing worse than talking about a farm loan with someone who doesn't know farming. ✻ But you won't run into that problem at Farm Credit. A good many of our loan officers come from farming backgrounds. And they're all graduates of the most comprehensive ag lending program in the nation. ✻ So when you get technical, they don't look lost. In fact, they usually have some pretty good advice on farming as well as finance. ✻ Stop by and talk to your Farm Credit loan officer. It's easier when people speak your language.

Bomgardners Take Premier Breeder, Exhibitor

daughter, also named best udder of the show and best bred and owned open class animal, was shown by Dale Hostetter and family, also of Annville. Last year the Hostetters had captured the premier breeder and exhibitor awards and showed the reserve grand.

Judge for the shows was Ray Seidel who said he had wanted to judge the Lebanon show for a number of years, because of its size and quality. Last year there were more than 250 entries inthe Holstein show. This year, of all breeds, there were about 150 entries, mostly Holsteins.

Seidel said he was not disappointed at all with the quality of the animals shown and commented on how, even though the fair's dairy show was reduced by half from normal years, the quality of animals wasn't reduced at all.

Even though the colored breed shows, severly reduced in entries from previous years, demonstrated high quality animals.

This year, all dairy shows were held on the last day of the fair, instead of being spaced out during the week, to take advantage of the space availability and times slots.

The supreme champion animal of the youth shows was also named immediately following the Holstein show.

This year's supreme champion was Jay Bomgardner's reserve grand champion of the open show, which was also the grand champion Holstein of the 4-H show. A senior 3-year-old Deslacs He-Man-ET daughter, Loving Meadows Lover Girl was bred by Jay's sister Kynel Himmelberger.

The grand champion FFA Holstein was shown by Kurt Hostetter. Also a Blackstar daughter, Dale-Pride Black Beauty, a senior 2-year-old, was owned and bred by Kurt.

The 4-H reserve grand champion was 5-year-old Loving-Meadows karealot, and Astro Jet daughter shown by Jesse Bomgardner, while brother Kevin Bomgardner showed the reserve FFA grand champion, senior 3-year-old Loving-Meadows Penguin, a Willow Holme Algonguin-ET daugther, that he owns and bred.

Of the junior-aged animals, the open class and FFA champion was a winter yearling heifer shown by Jesse Bomgardner, Loving-Meadows Krystan TW, also a bred and owned animal.

The 4-H junior champion was a winter calf, Da-Lee-Bred Counselor Posie, bred and owned by Timothy Vail, of Lebanon, which was first in its class in the open competition as well.

The FFA reserve junior champion was shown by Jay Bomgardner. A fall calf, Loving-Meadows Bridgeeta is a Browndale Caster daughter and bred and owned.

The Lebanon Holstein show also offers a bull class. The champion bull was a calf shown by Larry Kennel, DVM, of Mt. Joy, who showed Windy-Knoll-View Patrick, a son of James and Nina Burdette's well known Windy-Knoll-View Ultimate Pala cow and sire Hanoverhill Starbuck. The Burdettes live in Mercersburg.

The reserve champion bull was M-DGK Blackstar Shay, out of dam DGK Starbuck Shantel and sire To-Mar Blackstar, bred by Melonica Kauffman, of Lebanon.

In addition to the regular showing, the Lebanon Fair show offers a youth best-bred and owned contest which hinges in part on an animal's show placing, but also on the completeness, neatness, detail and accuracy of the accompanying 4-H project book for the animal.

Amanda Martin, of Annville, won first place with her outstanding project book and her Promise Lane Melwood Audrey, a home-bred animal out of her also home-bred Promise Lane Rad Amber, a VG 86. The grandam was her 4-H project animal, a Topper daughter.

As a result of the win, the Lebanon Agway provides savings bond awards to the top three places in the contest. Second place was won by Amanda's sister Alicia Martin, and third went to Jesse Bomgardner.

Colored Breeds

In the colored breeds shows, youth did the showing and therefore, the open class results are identical to the 4-H results.

In the Ayrshire show, the grand champion was shown by Daryl Maulfair, son of Dale and Patti Maulfair of Jonestown. His sister Jennifer's spring heifer was junior champion and reserve grand champion. Daryl's winter yearling entry was the reserve junior champion.

The Bomgardner family, owners of Loving-Meadow Holsteins Farm, receive the Lebanon Holstein premier breeder and exhibitor banners. From the left is Nelson Bomgardner, Dale and Kynel Himmelberger, who holds son Ethan, Little Miss Dairy Princess Erin Williams who holds the premier banner in front of Margaret and John Bomgardner, Lebanon Dairy Princess Stacy Krall, and Jesse, Jay and Kevin Bomgardner.

In the Brown Swiss show, Brianne Hoffer, daughter of Gerald and Connie Hoffer, of Annville, showed the grand champion animal, a spring calf, Meadow Bill Jade Alexis, bred by Gary Mase, of Lebanon.

In the Guernsey show, Andrew Ebersole, of Annville, showed all the champions. The grand and senior champion was a senior 2-year-old, Stone Mill Frank Linden.

The reserve grand champion was also the junior champion, a winter yearling, Stone Mill Mercury Millie. The reserve junior champion was a winter heifer, Orchard View Magic Lillehammer, bred and owned.

The junior champion Jersey was a fall calf shown by Justin, while Jaclyn showed a winter calf to capture reserve junior champion.

Basics Of Grass Growth, Watering Systems At Grazing Field Day

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HONEY GROVE (Juniata Co.) — Make plans to see how effectively rotational grazing can be used at the fifth annual Pasturing 501 Field Day, to be held here at Tuscarora Mountain Acres, operated by Ed and Lorraine Rits, on Thursday, Sept. 1, from 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

At the field day, a host of grazing experts from industry, Penn State, and farm-related organizations will be on hand to provide information on how to put grazing to use. Included will be an overview of grazing basics, fence and water systems, erosion control structures, and use of various types of grasses for effective feed management.

The experience with soil loss after a heavy rain convinced Ed Rits that grass was the way to go.

Years ago, after seeing how ineffective contour strips were in stopping erosion on some of beef farmer Ed Rits' cropland, instead of rotating corn into rye, Rits decided to plant grass and use grazing to feed his beef animals.

"The important thing is learning how grass grows," said Rits during a recent telephone interview with Lancaster Farming. "That's the whole key to the grazing program."

Rits said that he has grazed for more than 30 years. He farms 100 acres, of which 16 hillier acres are under a conservation reserve program. All of the remaining acres are in grazing.

Of the acreage, Rits maintains about 40 acres of orchard grass, nine acres of alfalfa, 12 acres of ryegrass, 20 acres of bluegrass, two acres of timothy, and another two acres of matua bromegrass.

In June, the county, along with a great portion of the region, was in the midst of a drought. Many of the fields dried up, particularly the grass fields, according to Rits. Only the alfalfa fields continued to grow. But rains came at the end of June, and from then on the grass came back.

Recently, rains dropped four-tenth to five-tenths of an inch at a time to promote regrowth of the grass.

Rits will explain, at the field day, how using grazing methods at his farm helped increase savings on feed and improve soil conditions.

Also, Rits will explain his use of portable watering systems in his paddocks, including 25-gallon units.

One important part of water system management is to place the water tubs in the paddock first and then let the cattle in. Rits said there are a few animals, when moved, that need water right away, and having the water ready when the animals arrive prevents crowding.

"It's all a matter of management," said Rits.

Also scheduled at the meeting is an overview of fence posts and wire systems that Rits uses.

Last year, about 75 people attended the field day from 13 counties and three states.

Rits said that the trend in Pennsylvania is for farmers to become small and part-time operators, and considering ways to save on equipment and labor will be important.

The pasture field day is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) with help from a variety of cooperating industries and agencies.

Rits' Tuscarora Mountain Acres Farm is located about 26 miles northeast of the Pa. Turnpike (Exit 14) on Rt. 75 north. From the turnpike, after East Waterford, take the next road left (Township Road). Traveling from Honey Grove south on Rt. 75, take the first right (Township Road). The farm is about ½ mile from Rt. 75.

The field day will be held rain or shine. Registration is $5, which includes lunch. For more information, contact Ed Rits at RR1 Box 87, Honey Grove, PA 17035, (717) 734-3745.

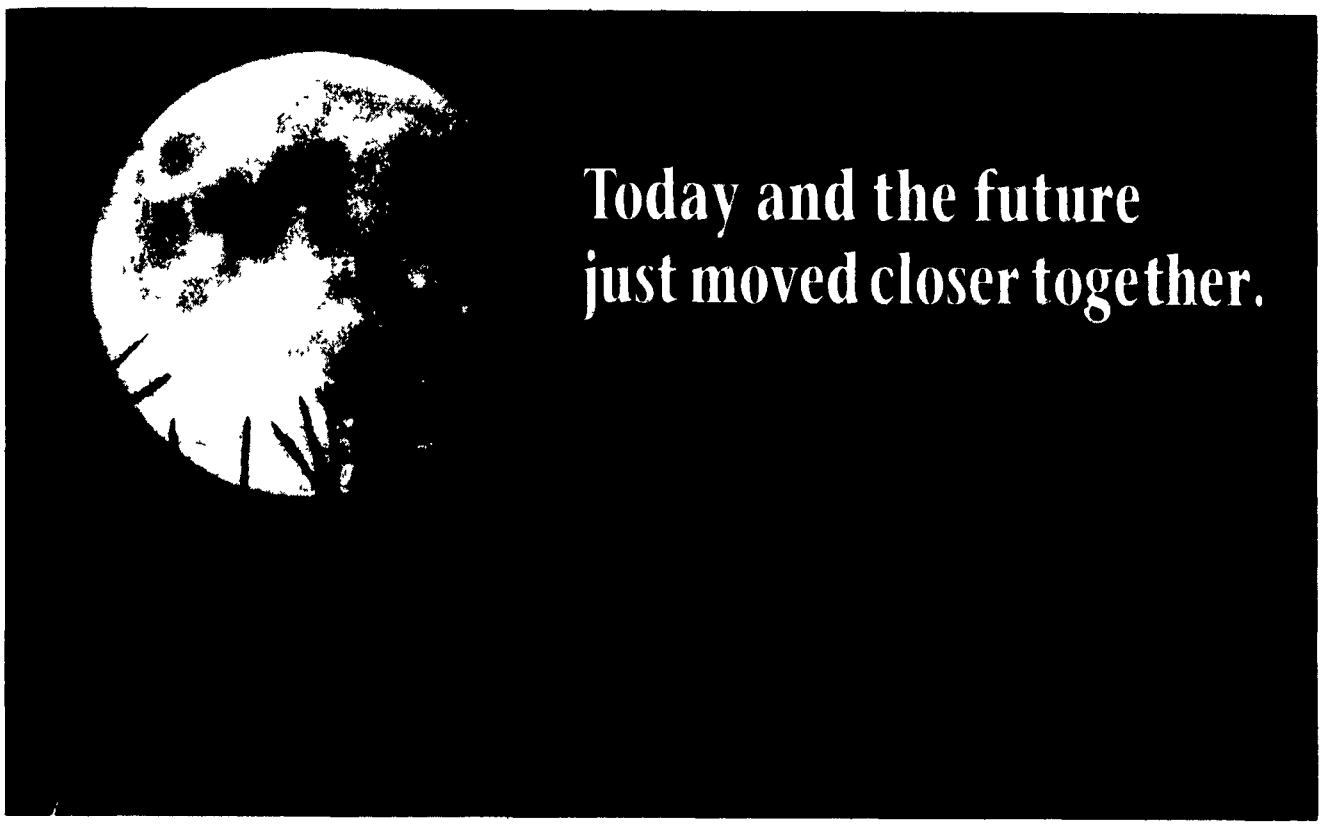
Badger Forage Boxes & Running Gear... The Right Combination For Your Farm!



With all the promises that have been made for agricultural biotechnology, it seems as if the products of that research are always some time in the future. Now, Mycogen Plant Sciences gives you a glimpse of agriculture's future with two new corn hybrids growing in fields right now - today.

The first is 5150cb, a top-performing hybrid that includes specific genes which provide very good resistance to first brood European corn borer. The second is TMF106, perhaps the first hybrid ever developed specifically for silage production. Both are products of biotechnology research and traditional plant breeding.

These two new products are just the first of a whole new generation of crop plants with traits that go beyond yield, standability and drydown; traits like rootworm resistance, higher oil and protein content, and specific nutrient composition.

They're not all available today, of course, but it's a promising beginning. And now that you've seen the first of these new products, the future is looking a lot closer.

Farm Link At Ag Progress

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A new, nonprofit program run by the state has been set up as of July 13 to help the agricultural community continue into the next generation.

It's called, "Farm Link."

A booth at the Penn State Ag Progess Days, August 16, 17, and 18, in Rockspring, has been planned so that anyone can stop in to ask questions and see how much help they can get, at no cost, to either find a farm, or find a young person desiring to enter into family farming.

The program is being run through the state agency, the Center for Rural Pennsylvania (CRP), located at 212 Locust St., in Harrisburg. The CRP is a legislative agency, set up by the state's lawmaking bodies to serve as a publicly funded focal point for rural policy development.

Marion Bowlan, who is a third-generation family farmer living in Lancaster County, has been appointed the Farm Link coordinator and has been working to educate the agricultural community about the program, working with other organizations to establish a working relationship, drafting potential applications and reviewing working programs in other states to get ideas on how to make the Pennsylvania program become helpful, established and efficient.

Bowlan's position is funded for a year. She said her specific task is to start up Pennsylvania's program, "... setting up a database that can match people interested with getting out of farming with people interested in getting into farming."

The program was established by a large group of people representing a variety of agricultural interests, but all with the common desire to stop the trend of the disappearance of family farms in the state.

Using the lead set by 23 other states, the group decided that a Farm Link program should be managed by a pro-agricultural, non-profit agency that can protect the confidences of interested people. The Pa. Center for Rural Development, which is funded by the legislature, was selected as the most obvious existing agency to house, and manage the program.

"We want to set up a transitional arrangement suitable to both parties, with the idea in mind that the retiring farmer would be eventually bought out," Bowlan said.

The program is to offer a variety of services through other interested organizations, such as the Pa. Department of Agriculture, the USDA services, the Farm Credit organization, etc., and "... provide information and education to entering farmers and exiting farmers," she said.

According to Bowlan, the basic services of the program, in addition to matching up people with similar interests and goals, would be to provide beginning farmers with education on such things as finances and budgeting and setting realistic goals, and to provide the outgoing farmer with education about retirement, etc.

The financial stability of both parties is of tantamount concern to all involved, according to Bowlan. But as well, she said there are lot of other considerations.

She said in the planning stages are local workshops on all those issues related to the generational transferance of a farm.

Bowlan said that at the Ag Progess booth, she will have program information available and she will field questions.

"I will be on hand all three days to talk to individuals interested in exiting or entering farming," she said in a statement. "Information describing the program will be available, as well as questionaires for prospective farmers and farm owners/landholders."

The booth is to be located on West 11th Street, near the conservation tent, in the Ag Progress Tent City at Rockspring. She said the location on a map is "L."

The Harrisburg office telephone is (717) 787-9555.

Ag Progress Demo Will Show Importance Of Rollover Protection

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Dr. Dennis Murphy, Penn State ag engineering professor, warns tractor operators not to be a "Tuff Kelly."

Tuff Kelly is the "simulated human," in this case a mannequin, used to demonstrate a rollover accident.

The Tuff Kelly will be used in a series of tractor rollover accident demonstrations at Ag Progress Days next week.

A 1989 Penn State study showed that about 70 percent of all tractor-related fatalities involve a rollover. Tractor accidents caused more than 300 deaths in the United States in 1992, with 53 percent resulting from overturns, according to the National Safety Council.

Two types of demonstrations will be shown at the west end of the Russell E. Larson Ag Research Center, near the sinkhole, according to Murphy. The demonstrations will show one rear overturn and one side overturn.

With the aid of research associate Dr. Tim Pierson, Murphy will demonstrate a side overturn on a field specially built with a 20-degree slope. Two tractors, each about 35 horsepower, remotely controlled, will show exactly what happens to Tuff Kelly when a few tons of steel pin and crush him after overturning.

The mannequin, weighing about 110-120 pounds and dressed to look like a common operator, will be used to demonstrate that although a sloped field may look easy to plow, operators sometimes ignore life-threatening obstacles, such as bumps and holes.

Many operators don't realize that without a rollover protection structure (ROPS) on a tractor, a rollover can prove deadly, as it has so many times in the past, according to Murphy.

Three types of ROPS will be featured during demonstrations all three days of Ag Progress. The types include an enclosed cab, a fold-down ROPS, and a two-post ROPS (retrofitted tractor rollover structure).

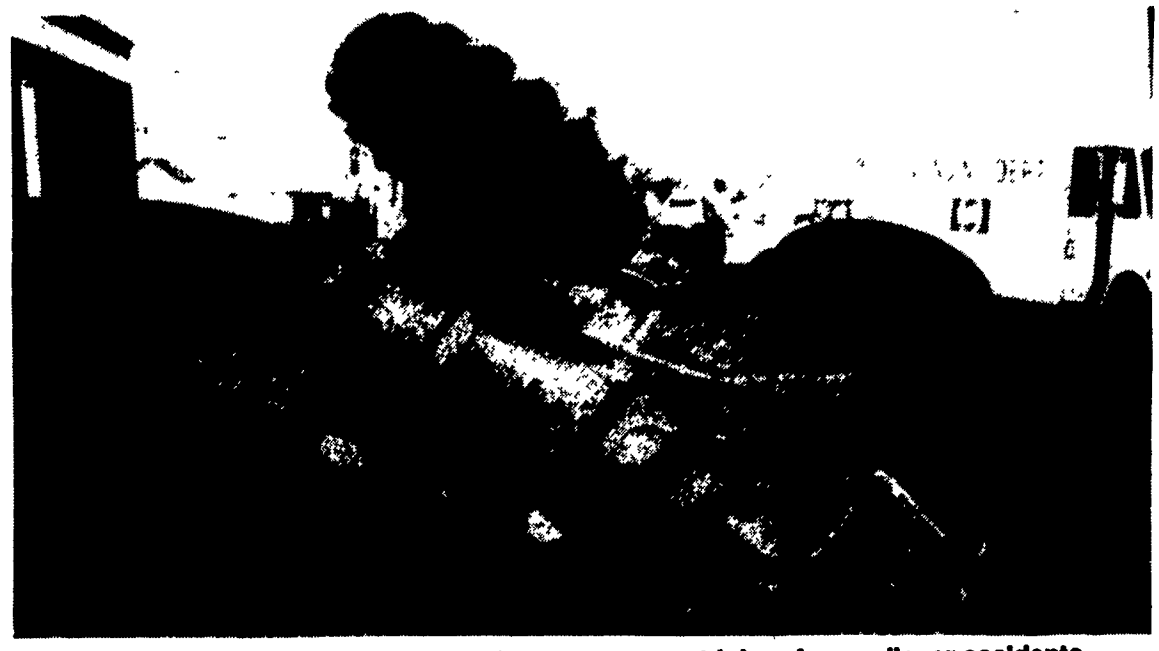
Operators, without thinking of their own safety, sometimes remove the ROPS structure because of clearances needed to spray trees or because "they simply don't like the idea of using a ROPS on their tractor," said Murphy. "We want to present information to them in a way that allows them to understand the value of a ROPS on a tractor."

In addition, the ROPS Learning Center at the site will provide important safety information and guidelines to ensure operator safety. One of those often overlooked safety guidelines is using a seat belt in conjunction with the ROPS.

At the demonstration, information will be provided on costs to retrofit a tractor with a ROPS.

Also examined will be the effects on tractor accidents of having more than one rider, and improper hitching.

The demonstrations are scheduled four times a day, weather permitting, said Murphy, with a demonstration also scheduled for Wednesday evening.



What happens to an operator, and ways to prevent injury from rollover accidents like this, will be presented at Ag Progress Days.

According to an estimate by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, in Sweden, where ROPS are mandatory, 90 percent of operators in overturns escape serious injury or death.

"In 1985, U.S. tractor manufacturers began making ROPS standard equipment," said Murphy. "Unfortunately, fewer than 20 percent of all tractors in Pennsylvania have rollover protection."

Operators can visit the learning center to find out what kind of ROPS they need for their tractors.

We Only Sell Equipment As Good As The Spreaders We Make Ourselves.

Since 1945 we've been making a line of spreaders built so well that many are still working hard after 20, even 30 years.

Now to serve you even better we're a dealer too. But we're very fussy about the equipment we represent. After all, farmers have been trusting us for quality, service and fairness for just about 50 years. And we're not about to change our ways now.

What does it take to build that kind of reputation? Give us a call. We think you'll soon consider us your best source for quality fertilizer equipment and components.

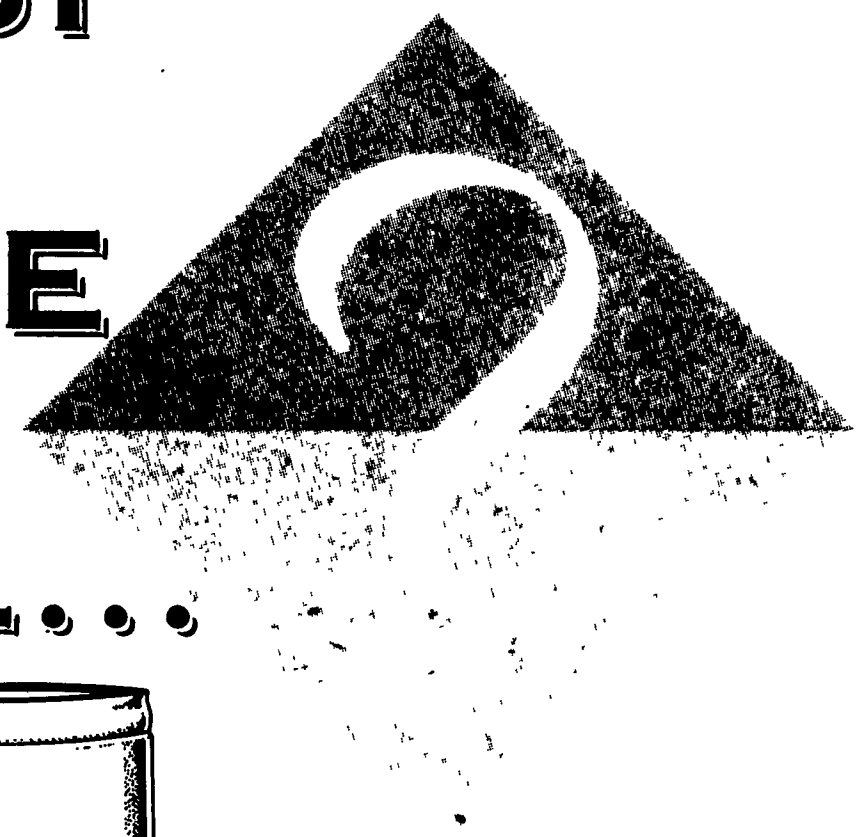
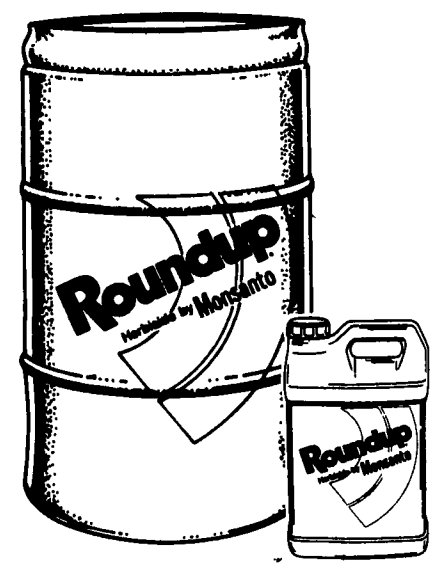
Is Roundup® half price this fall...





...or does it just work twice as well?

No, Roundup® herbicide is not half price. But with the great perennial weed-control results you'll get by applying Roundup this fall, it could sure seem that way.

[redacted] Prepare to double your expectations for controlling next spring's weeds.

Kick 'em when they're shutting down

In late summer and fall, perennials begin to store energy below the ground. This enables the weed to survive until next spring. Because the weed is working to move energy towards the roots, and Roundup is translocated to the roots, you get the best control of the entire plant. It's the perfect time to spray Roundup and get into the root systems of Canada Thistle, Hemp Dogbane, Johnsongrass, Bermudagrass, Ryegrass, sods, and other bothersome weeds, before they come back next spring.

[redacted]

Apply now for best results

In the fall, Roundup can be applied preharvest in soybeans, after harvest of corn, set-aside acres, and many other ways to give you effective control of the entire plant, roots and all.

A smart investment in future yields in percentage of lean," he told the exhibitors and audience.

Stephen also showed the champion Yorkshire from the fair's swine breed show.

Trostle, who maintains a small Hampshire herd, said the reserve market hog, picked from the heavyweight class, simply wasn't quite as heavy as the supreme, but had enough muscle in keeping with the needs of the market. The reserve, a 193-pound Hampshire cross, was a gilt shown by Brian Eschbach.

Brian, 13, is the son of George and Kathy Stump, Shoemakersville. The gilt was obtained at at commercial sale in Manheim in April. Brian was reserve grand champion about five years ago at the Kutztown Fair Swine Show. Brian, who will attend grade 8 in the Fleetwood Middle School, will showing at the Oley and Reading fairs.

George Stump said that Brian, who once worked at a farm, picked the hog at the Manheim sale. He said that the six-year Berks County 4-H member knows what traits in a potential swine championship to look for.

Fitting grand champion went to Anita Manbeck and reserve to Kristen Haas. Grand champion showman was Joseph Schick and reserve was Grant Lazarus.

DIXIE BURRIS
Laboratory Manager

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association laboratory has had changes.

It scored a 100 percent for quality certification and is one of the largest milk sample testing labs on the East Coast. It has also achieved the rare distinction of having 100 percent compliance on the quality control blind sample program.

The Pa.DHIA lab has four stations of testing equipment that have error-handling systems built into them. If, for some reason, the wrong information is obtained from a milk sample, the machine shuts itself down, and the computer tells the operator where to look for the problem.

This state-of-art equipment exceeds old equipment in performance, especially in keeping the number of incorrect readings to a minimum because of reduced human error.

The machines test for fat and protein, and have the added capability to test for solids-not-fat. A somatic cell counter is also installed at each station.

Calibrations are constantly monitored and a strict preventative maintenance program has kept errors and down-equipment time to a minimum.

One thing that I consistently emphasize is quality. We do 3.3 million samples each year, and we have a very efficient operation.

One of our most recent changes was with personnel. We replaced all of our union employees with Pa.DHIA employees, and this changover has gone extremely well.

The Pa.DHIA employees are a group of people with a lot of expertise and many have had some experience working on farms.

Cathy Haughout is one of our workers with a degree in biology. She had worked as a senior research aide at the Center for Mastitis Research, in the Department of Veterinary Science, at Penn State University.

Haughout currently monitors the quality control program in our laboratory here in State College, and is under my direction.

The Pa.DHIA lab is also licenesed to do outside work for private companies or milk cooperatives. We currently work with Galikers Dairy and also do some work with MMI.

With new equipment and excellent quality control, dairymen can be assured that their test results are authentic, and that the information derived from those results is reliable.

I have assumed the laboratory manager position March 23 and feel extremely proud to work with such an excellent staff. Our group of new employees have been in place since April 1 and have managed to bring their efficiency up within the first month, with practically no noticeable difference in turnaround time.

Visit Us

Come to the 1994 Ag Progress Days August 16, 17, and 18 at Rockspring, and visit the Pa.DHIA booth.

We can get your awareness up and increase your profits, come see us in the Penn State University Agricultural Science Tent. The booth is located, inside the entrance and to the left.

We will have staff available to answer questions on all aspects of Pa.DHIA. We also have some exciting news about our Heifer Management Program to share with you.

On-farm computer systems also seem to a highlight of many dairy farms these days. We can help answer some questions.

Some of our computer people, along with field, lab, and membership staff will be at the tent. Stop with any question, or call anytime at 1-800-344-8378.

Meeting Set

The annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association (Pa.DHIA) has been set for March 10, 1995.

According to a news release, further details are to be announced later and will appear here and in members' month report envelopes, along with information about district meetings.

Also, county annual banquets are also in the planning stages. Check with the local committees and get involved. Make this year the best.

Seven Nominations Sought For PDPP Board

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program is seeking nominations for its Commodity Marketing Board.

The purpose of the program is to promote the consumption of milk and other dairy products and to facilitate appropriate research. Currently, 21 members serve on the board, and the terms of seven members are scheduled to expire on Sept. 30.

Board members will be selected by State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff from nominations made by producers and dairy-related organizations, associations, and cooperatives representing dairy farmers throughout Pennsylvania.

New appointees to the board will serve three-year terms. Board members are expected to attend regular board meetings and participate in other dairy-related functions.

Nominees must be active in the production of milk, including, but not limited to, representatives of milk cooperatives and farming associations, producer-handlers of milk or an independent dairy farm. In addition, the appointees are expected to contribute their dairy promotion assessment to the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

The deadline for submitting nominations is August 26, 1994. Nominees' names and addresses should be submitted to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Market Development, 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408.

Field Day Demonstrates Satellite Technology

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — A field day for farmers to see the latest technology in "percision management" of fields and crops was held Wednesday as a joint venture between Reading Bone Agway and Messick's Farm Equipment in cooperation with the Milton Hershey School Ag Science Program.

The event attracted 200 farmers and included residue management, forage making, and satellite technology. The farm machines worked the soil and the forages, and the new satellite system that maps fields to pinpoint the gathering of fertility data captured attention.

The new Edge plant nutrition program uses a small four-wheel drive vehicle to ride the perimeter of the field. This circumference is recorded by use of a satillite connection and transmitted into a computer on the ground. Grids are then placed over this large field outlined in the computer to record smaller five- or 10-acre fields. From this data, a permanent record of the fields is placed in the hands of the farmer so that soil tests can always be taken at the same place in the field. The fertility program can be more accurately recorded and completed to the specifications of the new nutrient management laws now presented to farmers.

The program has been running in the Midwest for several years and has now been adapted to the smaller fields in the Northeast.

Other events at the field day included plot tours of corn and soybean varieties, proper depth studies, herbicide demonstration plots, and seed treatment. In addition to the value for farmers, the demonstration fields help the students in the ag science program at Milton Hershey School to become acquainted with agriculture and "where things come from."

Farmers hear about the latest technology at the field day.

Forage, Crops Information Available At Ag Progress

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Visitors to Penn State's Ag Progress Days, August 16-18, can learn about new developments in forage and crop production in the Crop and Soil Science Tent, located at the end of East 5th Street.

"This year we're featuring plots showing different hay and forage growth as well as alternate forages, such as brassicas and chicory," says Dr. Marvin Hall, associate professor of agronomy and coordinator for the tent. "We will have sheep grazing on chicory in a demonstration pasture." Corn, soybean and sorghum demonstration plots also are located near the Crop and Soil Science Tent.

The tent features educational exhibits and demonstrations. Exhibits explore soil fertility and testing, nutrient management, pest control, forage quality testing, weed identification and other topics.

Farmers can visit the "Ask the Experts" booth to find solutions to problems with soil fertility, diseases, insects, corn, forages, small grains and tillage practices. Specialists from the Pennsylvania Crop Management Association and Penn State's agronomy, entomology and plant pathology departments will be on hand to share research results and answer questions.

Visitors to the Crop and Soil Science Tent also can test their knowledge using an agronomy quiz board, with questions about small grains, soybeans, corn, forage, and soil fertility.

Also at this site will be the Hay Show, with displays of the state's best hay samples. Growers who would like to enter the show are invited to bring samples to the Hay Show drop-off point near the Ag Progress Days east entrance on the morning of August 16. All growers will receive the results of their hay's evaluation.

Chester County Holstein Breeders Hold Field Day

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

COCHRANVILLE (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Holstein Club annual field day was held at the Harry Troop Family Farm with 200 people present.

The morning judging contest was again of great interest with groups of four fine-typed animals pulled out to provide the competition. Ron Wood, from Tioga County and a new National Holstein Association director was the judge and featured speaker.

Wood said his parents started with grades. With hard work over the years the herd grew into what is now one of the best know registered Holstein herds in Pennsylvania. They have 78 cows classified excellent in the herd.

He said they like the cow families that produce individuals that last 10 years or more and said they don't expect their 2-year-olds to over-produce.

"We like to let the 2-year-old be a 2-year-old." Wood said. "We want them to grow up and, somewhere between 5 and 10 years of age, become 30,000-pound cows. As long as we can keep the old cows around, we have a replacement heifer to sell. We expect them to milk a long time."

He said their advertising program in "Profiles" has be very beneficial and said that showing was a hobby that has helped them to meet a lot of nice people.

The have used their own bulls from cow families that have good production and four to six generations of excellent or very good cows in the pedigree.

Wood said that farmers are a tough lot of people who rejuvinate each spring. And he said that it has always been part of his family's thinking that there is nothing better than a good cow.

Walt Wurster, Chester County agent, complimented the Chester County dairy industry for the support of the new 4-H center. He said the net from the auction was $29,000 with expenses of about $500. He said the 4-H program was quite active and that 50 animals were scheduled to be shown in the district show at Kutztown. Show animals need two BVD shots to qualify to go to the show and he recommended that farmers begin to vaciniate for BVD if they are not doing this now.

Chester County Holstein breeders gather to hear the placings in the judging contest at their field day at the Harry Troop farm on Thursday.

Leon Wilkerson, Chester County dairyman who chairs the Pennsylvania Milk Commission, said he believes young people have as many problems now with $11.41 milk as they had at $6.00 milk years ago.

He said that years ago, a slogan that was used to promote milk said, "You can whip our cream, but you can't beat our milk." But now the consumer at the store is buying the two percent milk and butterfat does not make it (sell)."

Clarence Stauffer, representative for the National Holstein Association, said now is the time to catch up on registrations of overage animals because there is a half-price reduction on animals over two years old. Of course, the animals should be registered as calves. But if there has been a laps in getting the job done, you should bring registrations up to date now.

In the judging contest the top placings are as follows:

MEN: 1.Tim Barlow. 2. John St. John. 3. Ed Breckbill.

WOMEN: 1. Sharon Nolan. 2. Margret Meily. 3. Judy Hostetter, Nori King, and Linda Stoltzfus.

JUNIORS: 1. Rodney Hostetter. 2. Jesse Martin. 3. Marilyn Stoltzfus.

Preparation Begins For Testing Programs

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center has announced that preparations are under way for the upcoming 22nd annual performance testing bull program and the swine progeny testing program.

The Center is accepting nominations from progressive beef and swine producers to participate in the respective testing programs.

The bull testing program will accept bull calves born January 1, 1994 through April 15, 1994. These bulls must be eligible for registry with their national breed associations.

The bulls will be delivered October 18 and undergo a 21-day adjustment period before being weighed on test November 8 for the 112-day testing period. These bulls will be weighed every 28 days and average daily gain will be calculated.

Individual feed efficiencies will be kept on all bulls. After completion of the testing period, the bulls will be semen-collected and checked and be ultrasonically scanned to determine backfat thickness and loineye area.

Adjusted yearling weights and lifetime weight per day of age will be calculated. Hip height, scrotal circumference, and pelvic areas will be measured and provided.

After all the information is gathered and the bulls are indexed, a sale committee of participants will meet and select approximately the top 75 percent of the bulls to be offered for sale in the Pennsylvania 22nd Performance Tested Bull Sale scheduled for March 31, 1995.

The swine progeny testing program is set up to evaluate 4 to 6 pigs out of one sire and as many sows as is convenient. These pigs can be any combination of barrows and gilts and can be purebred, commercial, or composite. These pigs should be born on or after July 7, 1994 and need to be delivered to the test station while they are weighing between 40 and 65 pounds.

The pigs are put on test after a seven-day adjustment period and will be taken off test when the pen averages 230 pounds. Some of the data to be secured from the test are rate of gain, feed efficiency, and days of age to reach 230 pounds.

All pigs will be scanned ultrasonically to determine backfat thickness and loineye area. The Center will also attempt to have all the pigs slaughtered and carcass measurements collected.

Both of these programs provide valuable information to assist herd owners in improving their herds at minimal cost.

For more information, to request a copy of the rules, or to nominate animals to either the bull test or swine progeny test, contact Glenn Eberly, Director, Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, PA 16803, (814) 238-2527. To leave a message or to send a fax, call (814) 865-5857.

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Industry support for youth raising livestock has grown in range and strength, over the years at the Lebanon Area Fair, with consistently returning buyers and additional ones each year turning out to buy the market lambs, steer and swine shown earlier in the week.

This year, the sale totaled $62,130, with a $294.81 average for 103 swine, or a total of $30,660; an average of $1,187.33 for 15 steers, or a total of $17,810; and an average of $189.72 for 71 lambs, or a total of $13,660.

The grand champion market hog shown by Janine Winebark was sold to Farmer Boy Ag and MACH partners for $1,600.

The reserve grand champion market hog, shown by Jenny Arnold, sold to First National Bank of Fredericksburg for $575.

The grand champion market steer shown by Roxanne Kirst, sold for $3,500 to Carlos Leffler. The reserve grand champion steer shown by Kyle Fleener, sold for $1,400 to Dutchway Farm Market.

The reserve champion market lamb, shown by Darren Fidler, sold for $325 to Lebanon Valley National Bank.

The champion complete market hog, which are also shown first on foot, and then on rail, was sold by Roxanne Kirst to Farmer's Wife Restaurant for $400.

The sale, held in the large exhibition barn of the Lebanon Area Fair complex, was preceeded this year by an unusual opening sale of a cake to help support the county's livestock judging team which earlier in the week had won the state title and needed to raise some funds to make a trip to the national competitions to represent Pennsylvania, and Lebanon County.

The cake sold 26 times. After it was purchased first by the coaches of the livestock judging team, it was donated back to the team to be resold.

Others who bought the cake include: Meily Farms, of Lebanon; C.B. Hobber & Sons; Sky Meadow Farm; Lettie Schadler; Carlos Leffler; Pioneer Seeds; Ebeneezer Fire Co.; Madison Seeds; Dutch Country Fancy Veal; Mark C. Hershey Farms; Hoss's Steak and Sea House; Earl J. Myers Inc.; Lebanon Valley National Bank; Morrell Myers; Ben and Mary Bow; Morrissey Insurance; Rich Brandt Real Estate; Meridian Bank; Arnold Yorkshires; Ken and Karen Sellers; Valley View Poultry Farm; Dean Fackler Welding; state Sen. David "Chip" Brightbill; Dr. Andrew and Kathy Stewart; and the Carl Eisenhower Family.

The total raised for the group was $3,685 and was not included in the total of the livestock sale.

In the pre-trator days before farm mechanization, farm work was accomplished by "muscle power." At the Pasto Agricultural Museum, visitors can examine items ranging from a 175-year-old hand-powered apple peeler to a milking machine powered by foot-pedals. Other items on display include cooking pots, wash tubs, scrubbing boards, rug beaters, ice-cutting equipment and even a gas-engine iron.

Young and old alike might find the Insect Petting Zoo in the Family and Youth Exhibits Building a worthy destination. The zoo features a beekeeping display offering honey samples and such multi-legged attractions as walking sticks, ladybird beetles and hissing-cockroaches. Llamas are on display at the Dairy and Livestock Tent and ostriches can be seen at Exhibits Building 1.

"Kids Back Then," running continuously in the Family and Youth Exhibits Building, features Bill Metzel, a storyteller and folk tradition expert, who will entertain youngsters by showing old-time toys, vintage musical instruments and dolls. Storyteller Jan Kinney will perform in the College of Agricultural Sciences Exhibits Building Theatre every day spinning stories for a half hour to 45 minutes.

Other displays sure to tickle a child's fancy include the Happy Valley Friendly Farm, next to the Family and Youth Building. Calves, lambs, goats, chicks and pot-bellied pigs will be on display. Shaver's Creek Environmental Center will show wildlife such as owls, hawks, turtles and snakes at its tent. Oh yes, Smokey Bear is sure to be seen wandering the area all three days.

Other family-oriented exhibits include horse events, crafts displays, and food booths offering tasty treats from fried mushrooms to University Creamery ice cream.

Gardeners and homeowners can visit the Landscape, Lawn and Garden tent to harvest knowledge on plant and insect problems from faculty and extension agents. Visitors can even bring in samples (in good condition) to be diagnosed.

Farmers can see the latest in planting, harvesting and tractor technology at state-of-the-art demonstrations. Precision planters and a high-tech tomato and pepper harvester will be demonstrated. In addition, demonstrations on hay mowing, baling and bale handling and intensive grazing for sheep are scheduled.

A crowd gatheres on Main Street at noon where good food is a tradition at Ag Progress Days.

Farm technology also extends to manure, as the manure composting display above West Twelfth Street attests. These commercial-size bins show producers an alternative to excess manure problems.

Research tours will reveal Penn State's scientific forays into dairy and poultry research, potato research, agricultural conservation, urban conservation, forest stewardship, composting, stream corridor management and integrated crop management.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits. The Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center is located nine miles southwest of State College on Route 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, with extended hours on Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Admission and parking are free.

Dairy a little resistant. Or a lot.

The new White 445 Chisel Plow makes complying with residue guidelines and requirements easy. Options like rippled coulters and chisel points set at 15" spacing leave lots of residue. Concave coulters and twisted shovels set at 12" spacing leave less residue. And these are just a few of the combinations available.

Our deep-till shank option rips hardpan by tilling 4" to 6" inches deeper than chisel shanks. This reduces compaction problems. And our leveling bar option provides a smoother surface for your next pass.

With nine models, there's a model with the options to match your residue management plans.

Field Crop Research Tours Scheduled

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Ongoing research projects such as growing a living mulch to prevent weeds in corn and using tiny worms to control insect pests in potato crops will be showcased on free bus tours at Ag Progress Days, sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, August 16-18.

Thirty-minute tours of the college's horticulture, plant pathology, agronomy and entomology research farms and the USDA Pasture Research Laboratory will highlight dozens of projects designed to enhance food safety as well as increase production yields, reduce reliance on pesticides and conserve soil and water.

Visitors to the event at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rock Springs will discover how agricultural research works to improve food safety and food quality while also enhancing farm efficiency and protecting the environment. The theme of the event is "Penn State Ag Sciences... We're More Than You Think!"

Researchers have planted the ground cover crown vetch and legume crops to act as a living mulch for corn crops. Ideally, the mulch allows the crop to grow to maturity and after harvesting conserves soil as a ground cover.

University entomologists are using nematodes, tiny parasitic worms present in soil, to control the Colorado potato beetle. The nematodes prey on the beetle larvae, preventing the adult insect from infesting the crop. Researchers are also experimenting with the use of propane flame treatments to control adult insects that have emerged after dormant winter.

Some of the other projects featured include an experimental windbreak that prevents orchard trees from becoming misshapen by winds, test plantings of pest-resistant southern corn and tomato varieties to see how such crops adapt to Pennsylvania, and clear plastic canopies designed to prevent damage by spring frosts.

Tour riders also will see how Christmas trees resist various types of diseases and observe how alfalfa has grown in a field that was last plowed in 1968. At the USDA Pasture Research Laboratory, visitors can see several varieties of grasses used for cattle grazing. One species, Puna chicory, is undergoing grazing trials.

The Clarke Kerr Apple Variety Museum is also on the tour route. The orchard museum displays about 120 varieties of apples.

Tours are offered every 20 minutes from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. all three days of the event. Tours continue until 6 p.m. during extended hours on Wednesday, August 17.

FFA Champion Captures Title At Lancaster 4-H Hog Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Justin Good's winning strategy of selecting Canadian-type genetics and focusing on what the market demands has allowed him to "sweep" both the county FFA and 4-H swine championships.

Just like this year's FFA hog show, Justin showed the same type of "4-Way" Hampshire cross to a grand champion of the Lancaster County 4-H Swine Show on Wednesday. Justin, 18, son of Amos and Pat Good, Lititz, said although the hog isn't a littermate of this year's county FFA champion, it is still the same type of hog.

Fair exhibitors should take heed. Justin has 24 other types of hogs ready for future fairs and shows, including Elizabethtown's Hog Show, in addition to New Holland, Manheim, the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, and the State Farm Show.

The 248-pound gilt, champion light heavyweight, was purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats at the evening sale for $2 a pound.

Derrick Frank, 14, son of Charlene Rutt and Dean Frank, Ephrata, showed his champion medium weight hog, "Lightning," to reserve grand champion at the county 4-H show. Hatfield Quality Meats purchased the hog for $1.05 a pound. Derrick, a ninth grader in Ephrata, said that he obtained the hog from his uncle, Nelson Beam, in Elverson. Derrick said that he picked the pig himself because it was "strong, lean, and muscled."

This is his only show planned this year.

Dairy Festivities At Ag Progress

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Join Pennsylvania's Dairy Promotion Partners at Penn State's annual Ag Progress Days, August 16-18, and salute the Pennsylvania dairy industry. The dairy promotion booth will be at Main and West 8th streets on the Ag Progress Days grounds, near Rock Springs, PA.

A variety of activities are planned for the three-day event. A highlight will be the annual Ice Cream Churn-Off Contest, Wednesday, August 17 at 1:00 P.M. The contest is open to any Pennsylvania resident who registers prior to the event. Contestants will create their own REAL homemade ice cream flavors and vie for 1st, 2nd, and 3rd prizes of $300, $150, and $100.

Hand-dipped ice cream will also be for sale throughout the three-day show. Proceeds will benefit the Foundation for Better Living's Ag in the Classroom training in 1995.

An informational display showing dairy promotion activities in Pennsylvania, conducted by the three dairy promotion partners, will be on exhibit. Visitors can also register to win prizes which include Real Seal hats, aprons, mugs and cookbooks.

"Ag Progress Days is a great opportunity for dairy farmers to see how Pennsylvania's three promotion partners are working together for the dairy industry. Consumers will also have the opportunity to learn more about the dairy industry and the impact agriculture has on our state," says Cindy Weimer, Communications Specialist for Mid East United Dairy Industry Association.

The dairy promotion activities at Ag Progress Days are collectively sponsored by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Mid East United Dairy Industry Association/Federal Order 36 Advertising and Promotion Agency, and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. Further information is available by calling Mid East UDIA at 814/498-2058 or PDPP at 717/787-6903.

Ag Progress Plans Activities For Families

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — By popular demand, SciQ is returning to Penn State's Ag Progress Days. Sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, the exposition will be held August 16-18 at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center near State College.

SciQ first appeared at Ag Progress Days in 1987, but has not been held since 1990. Patterned after a television game show, this fast-paced event allows three contestants to test their knowledge of agriculture. Contestants and individuals in the audience can win prizes including Penn State Creamery ice cream and SciQ t-shirts.

This year, the game will focus on how consumers and producers can help keep food safe. The questions and answers featured in SciQ will cover many guidelines and rules for keeping foods safe. The game also will highlight the efforts of scientists, producers, and processors to safeguard foods from pesticide residues and harmful bacteria.

The game will be played at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. daily in the College Exhibits Building Theatre. and on Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Admission to SciQis free, but due to limited seating in the theatre area, visitors should arrive early.

Penn State's Progress Days feature more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits, tours, and machinery demonstrations. It is held at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, nine miles southwest of State College on Route 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, with extended hours of 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday. Admission and parking is free.

Following is a listing of other programs that may appeal to you. For more information, call (800) PSU-1010 toll-free from July 18 to August 16.

Visitors can take a food safety challenge quiz and see hourly demonstrations on safe food handling in the kitchen. Dr. Stephen Knabel, assistant professor of food science, and other scientists will discuss the latest methods used to control and destroy pathogens, basic food preparation, storage and reheating guidelines.

• Get home gardening tips: Get expert advice on plant and insect problems in the Landscape, Lawn and Garden Tent. Bring samples for the experts to examine. Bring a large enough sample that represents various stages of the problem, bring insects in jars, if possible.

• Program for kids and families: If you've never made a cornstalk fiddle, blown a maple whistle or enjoyed a game of Fox and Geese, consider attending the Kids Back Then program by Bill Metzel, a master storyteller and a lifelong student of traditional folk heritage. The program introduces youngsters to yesterday's pasttimes. See old-time toys, musical instruments, puzzles, and dolls.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

We've just had a family reunion at a pavilion in a nearby Community Park. The playground equipment and picnic food was just what the children wanted. About one-third of our group were very young and full of energy. But, some of the older ones played basketball and discovered that they weren't as young as they thought they were as their muscles ached afterwards.

There was lots of food left over even though the people picked at the desserts all afternoon. There were three bowls of potato salad, plus chicken and ham salad. The platter of red beet eggs were quickly eaten. I took a jug of plain ice water, as I prefer it to tea or soft drinks, and it was all used before the afternoon was over.

The one drawback to the park was the fact that the children had to cross a road to get to the playground. And, sometimes they got so excited and forgot to look both ways. Even on the deadend road that we live along, there are cars and trucks to watch out for every day.

Our grandson from Georgia visited for a week and rode a bicycle between our house and the farm. I worried that, with the corn growing so tall, he might meet a truck at a turn in the road. He and his sister certainly enjoyed the farm and also the chance to play with their cousins. Thank goodness, they brought boots and work shoes along as there is lots of manure and dirt that can be dragged into the house.

When I pick blueberries the three-year-old helps me but he only wants the "big" berries for his mother and so when I pick two quarts, he only has a dozen or two "big" ones. Of course, he found a lot to eat. It is a pleasure to have him help me pick our purple string beans too as it makes the job easier.

•Pasto Museum depicts early farm life: More than 300 implements from the muscel power era of farming and homemaking, which ended around the time of World War Ii. Items on display range from 6,000 year-old clay sickle used for grain harvesting to a 175-year-old mechanized apple peeler, to a turn-of-the-century foot-pedaled milking machine.

Also featured is a collection of dollhouse-sized kitchen furniture. The collection, built by Work Progress Administration workers in the 1930s, includes dry sinks, corner cupboards, a miniature fireplace and even a tiny braided rug.

Also featured is a collection of full-sized cast-iron cooking pots and copper cooking utensils.

Collections of household items, irons, rug beaters, and field equipment will be displayed.

Many artifacts have been restored to working order so visitors can turn cranks and pull levers. It's a hands-on history book.

Social life is centered around the kitchen table for the Grimes family who have compiled a cookbook of family favorites. Whenever they gather they eat, cook, and reminisce about the stories each family favorite entails. Family Publishes Cookbook

Everything Happens Around The Kitchen Table

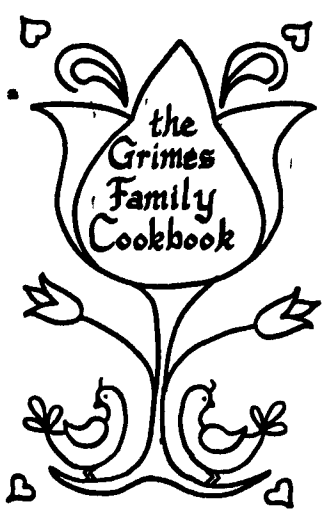
COCALICO (Lancaster Co.) — "If you didn't know how to cook when you married into this family, you learned," said Caroline Grimes, Ephrata.

She and other family members refer to themselves as "the bloods" and "the non-bloods."

The "bloods" are those who were born into the Grimes family and the non-bloods are those who married into the Grimes family, who are the offspring from a clan of 10 children in the county's town of Denver. Only two of the original clan are still living and they are in their 80s. But the knack for creating great-tasting food has been passed down to the younger generations.

"Everything in our family happens around the kitchen table. Whenever we get together, we eat. Social life is centered about the kitchen table," Caroline said.

With that perspective, it is not surprising that the Grimes family has hundreds of recipes. What is unusual is that family has recently published a cookbook.



They intended only to sell it to their own family, but as word spread, the cookbook sparked the interest of non-family members and 500 copies were ordered, most of which are now sold, and a reprinting is ordered.

The approximately 100-page cookbook includes recipes reflecting the hearty fare of German ancestry and also those of the younger generation who incorporate traditional ingredients with a lighter touch.

"The underderlying feature of all the recipes is that good meals begin with the best ingredients, a generous measure of time, and a general enjoyment in cooking," said Lyn Grimes Schlegel.

Compiling the cookbook has been an exciting time as extending family members worked together with typing, proofing, illustrating, and many behind-the-scenes duties. The stories that accompany many of the recipes have brought much laughter and reminiscing.

At one time, four sisters and their families lived in Denver. They didn't prepare their meals individually, but cooked and ate together every night as families.

Alice Ann Dinger, is the daughter of one of those sisters. She recalled that the kitchen table was not large enough to serve everyone at the same time. So the men and children were served first, and when they were finished, the women sat down to eat.

The sisters had such a reputation for good food that people often dropped by over mealtime, knowing that they would be well fed. Even the mailman planned his route so that he could stop by the Grimes home for lunch.

The kitchen, called the cookery, in the old homestead house was extremely small and had only one tiny window. Those were the days before air conditioning. The sisters devised their own formula for cooling off. They hung their dresses on a hook by the kitchen door and cooked in their slips with aprons on top.

Every Sunday the family gathered for another homecooked meal. When the dishes were done, more camraderie took place around the kitchen table as the afternoons were spent playing "Hoss 'n Peffer."

"What is surprising to many people is that every one of the sisters had full-time jobs."

The sisters had jobs such as school teaching, secretarial work and factory work, but they all hurried home during the lunch hour to prepare the evening meal.

They had survived the Depression Era. They had been taught, that you work for a living and you work hard.

One of their grandmother's favorite sayings was, "It isn't what you want to do, it's what you have to do."

Each Grimes family also had large gardens and canned jars of summer produce for winter enjoyment and — they cleaned.

"There is clean then there is Denver clean," said offspring Joyce Kinch, who now lives in California and was recently home for a visit.

"Denver clean," is said with obvious pride. For as extended family members scattered to other parts of the country, they discovered that not every one scrubbed their porches and windows the way they had been taught.

They were also taught that character is the most important thing in life. There was right and wrong — you did not lie, steal or cheat.

Through the years, the Grimes family has spread into 14 states but every August, they hold Reunion Sunday — it is actually a week-long celebration as out-of-state family members travel home and hold such events as the Grimes' Family Golf Outing. Of course, every occasion finds plenty of time for eating and sharing stories.

Reunion Day is held at Alice's nine-acre farm, a lovely place on the outskirts of Cocalico.

As tradition dictated, each person brought the dish that was her specialty. For the sisters had an unwritten rule that whatever one made best was hers and the others didn't make it.

The problem with that, Alice Ann recalled, was that as the older generation's health began to decline, the family realized that many of their favorite recipes would be lost.

What would life be like without Aunt Katie's Banana Cake?

The recipe had never been written down and exact measurements had not been developed.

Through trial and error, exact measurements were determined and instructions were written down for many of the family's favorite dishes.

"Some of the original desserts were loaded with sugar, and we have adapted them over the years to use less sugar," said Alice.

As family members scampered to compile recipes and as the younger generation developed their own favorites, the family decided to publish a cookbook.

The Grimes' family actually published their first cookbook in 1985. But there were unintentional deletions. Family members would ask, "Where is the stuffed cabbage recipe? So the recently published cookbook includes all the former recipes and many of new ones from family members who now live in 15 states.

Proceeds from the sales are put into a scholarship fund given in memory of Aunt Helen (one of the original 10 children) who was a school teacher for 47 years and known throughout Denver as Auntie. This past year and in succeeding years, the scholarship goes to a Cocalico High School senior who is pursuing a degree in elementary education.

For a copy of the cookbook, send $6.75 to A. Lucille Meissner, 2937 Kings Lane, Lancaster, PA 17601 or call (717) 898-2723.

While all the Grimes tribe is considered good cooks, They point with pride to one of the younger generation who is a professional chef in San Franciso. Another one is attending Johnson and Wales Culinary School on a full scholarship earned from a cooking contest.

But it is Alice Ann who is upheld as "The Cook" in the family. It is at her home that family members gather.

She is the one with the reputation of perfection — the one who will travel around the country for a particular ingredient.

She received a degree in dietetics from Penn State many years ago, and is the daughter of one of the original four sisters who ate together and are no longer living.

"My mother was the pie maker. She was the Sunday cook," said Alice who cannot drive by the street of her childhood home where these family gatherings took place without bursting into tears. She recalls the fond memories of her childhood days and the closeness that developed between the family members.

There was Aunt Helen, who never married and taught school. She was the designated dishwasher. Even when dishwashers became the vogue, she insisted in washing the dishes by hand before putting them in the dishwasher.

Alice remembers her mother saying as she cooked, "Go down home and get some butter — or some eggs."

That sharing between families was so established that one of the sisters once told her husband when he wanted to move, "I moved far enough away from home and I'm not moving any further."

The irony of those words were that the sister had only moved two blocks from the family home, and her husband only wanted to move to a house three blocks away.

As family members gather from out-of-state, others are busy preparing such favorites as wheat germ crackers because one of the grown children always asks for them.

In the wheat germ crackers, the ingredients wheat germ meal must be used — nothing else works. There is only one place in Lancaster County that Alice has even found that sells the wheat germ meal and that is Snavely's Mill.

Here is that recipe and several others from the cookbook.

These homemade wheat crackers are worth the work involved.

WHEAT GERM CRACKERS

1 cup sugar
½ cup margarine
2½ cups wheat germ meal
½ cup water
1 teaspoon baking soda

Bring margarine, water, and baking soda to a boil in a large pan; remove from heat. Stir in sugar. Sugar may be reduced to ¾ cup if desired. Add flour and wheat germ. Knead with your fingers. Set pan in a bowl of hot water to keep dough warm and moist. Roll out as thin as possible. Sprinkle with salt or sesame seeds. Bake at 350 degrees for about 10 minutes or until brown.

Alice Ann Kinch Dinger

Needlework Exhibit Open

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Historical Society of Dauphin County has opened its latest exhibit May the Needle Never Rust. Focusing on handmade needlework from the Society's collections, the exhibit, located in the John Harris/Simon Cameron Mansion, will continue through August 31.

Part of every young girl's education, rich or poor, the practical skills of needlework played an important part in every aspect of a woman's daily life, birth, marriage, community involvement, and death. Textile work often provides the only documantary evidence of women's life experiences, her daily tasks and artistic expression. The items featured in this exhibit illustrate the best needlework from Dauphin County women from the 18th to 20th centuries.

Among the featured items are two samplers completed by Francis Landis of Meddletown and Martha McNair of Hanover Township. Also shown are a christening gown, a chintz applique crib quilt, embroidered baby caps belonging to Mary Ann Rutherford of Paxtang, a nightgown made by Harriet Fisher Rodearmel for her daughter's wedding, and a Mourning sampler. The exhibit also features excerpts from the diary of Catharine Hess, a longtime Dauphin County resident, on the daily life of a 19th century woman.

The exhibit is open to the public Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on the second and fourth Sundays of each month from 1-4 p.m. The Mansion is located at 219 South Front Street in Harrisburg and has a free parking lot behind the property for patrons. The entrance is on Washington Street.

For more information, contact the Society at (717) 233-3462.

The Grimes Family Cookbook is a collection of family recipes, which had its beginnings from the offspring of 10 children who grew up in Denver, Lancaster County.

Good food and good times fostered family togetherness, for after four of the sisters married and had families of their own, they continued to eat every evening meal together.

Each family member had her specialty and what one could cook best, the others never tried. Most meals were concocted from unwritten recipes that each remembered in her head. As the 10 siblings grew older, the younger offspring recognized that they would lose these recipes unless they wrote them down. They compiled the recipes in a cookbook intending only distribute them among family members. But the professionally printed cookbook soon attracted the attention of friends and neighbors, and the word spread — there're great recipes in the Grimes Family Cookbook.

Read about the Grimes family in this section. For a copy of the cookbook, send $6.75 to A. Lucille Meissner, 2937 Kings Lane, Lancaster, PA 17601 or call (717) 898-2723.

Heritage Days Is Fun Way To Learn About History

MIRIAM WERT
Juniata Co. Correspondent

EAST WATERFORD, Juniata Co. — Dads and granddads spent a lot of time looking at the countless old tractors, steam engines, and old tools on display. Kids spent time learning history, but they didn't realize it because what they saw did not come from a history book. They saw examples of what used to be.

The sixth annual Tuscarora (Tus-kah-roar-ah) Valley Heritage Days were held in East Waterford from July 21-24. The small town of East Waterford is bordered on the one side by the Tuscarora Mountain and on the other by the Tuscarora Creek, and the valley has the same name. They are all named after the Tuscarora Indian tribe which was in the area in the early 1700s. This year's theme was, "Our Indian Heritage," and the emphasis was on Indians and their culture.

One of the first things kids saw in a tent, seeming to be sitting guard to protect the displays, were a seated Indian man and woman. In the other end of that tent was a popular spot where there was a long "sand box" type of play area, but the kids were playing in shelled corn instead of sand. Toy dump trucks, tractors and all kinds of equipment were furniches for their use. It was a neat way to play without getting sand in your hair and sticking to your body in the heat. This sounds like a great way for farmers to make play areas for their kids, and moms would appreciate not having the messiness of sand.

Playing in corn made sense because the white people never heard of corn until Indians in America showed them how to grow it. Indians also showed them how to fertilize it by placing a dead fish in the ground with the grains of corn.

In another area of the grounds were tepees and other tents built exactly like the Indians had them more than 300 years ago. A man and his wife dressed like Indians were busy showing kids all of the Indian things on display in and near the tepee. They took lots of time to explain how the Indiansn lived in the tepee and had animal skins on the ground where they could lie down or sit. The man said he first became interested in Indian history many years ago when he was in the Boy Scouts and started to make his collection at that time.

Kids were invited to go inside the tepee to see how it was made and how the Indians lived in it. It was obvious that Mr. and Mrs. Ron McClure of Fayetteville enjoyed sharing their knowledge of Indians to young and old.

Besides learning about Indians, wouldnt it be fun to know about what we call a frontiersman? He is like Davy Crockett whom you may have seen in a movie or read about in history.

Max Sheaffer of Harrisburg was at Heritage Days dressed as a frontiersman and more than happy to share about the historyof that area. He and others who are part of a special group in the U.S. go all over to promote the Founding Fathers Program covering the time in our history from 1740-1840. His favorite subject in school was history, and he loves to be able to make it come alive. The group to which he belongs presents seminars and displays all over the U.S.

Did you ever hear of the flintlock rifle? That is the kind where they had to pour gunpowder into the gun and, as it exploded when the trigger was pulled, a bullet was shot. These were used during the time of the Davy Crockett. Frank Crawford, whose home is down the valley from East Waterford, has made six of these rifles in five years and goes to shoots. His rifles were on display at the same tent where frontiersman Max Sheaffer had his display.

Besides all of the Indian and frontiersmen displays and all kids of large tractors, the kids enjoyed watching the very small gasoline engines that were displayed in action. Many of those went back to the time of the kids' grandparents and great-greatparents.

All ages enjoyed the parade around the grounds each day as many types of old restored tractors were driven by proud owners for all to see. Kids were involved in driving tractors also as they steered while on the tractors with dads or paps. Also there was a pedal tractor pull for kids, with weights added to make it harder for them to pull.

At Heritage Days the children sit on a deerskin rug inside the authentic tepee as Mrs. Ron McClure of Fayetteville explains how the Indians lived on one like this.

In the on-grounds daily parade at Heritage Days, this horse-drawn John Deere wagon holds happy children and frontiersman Max Sheaffer of near Harrisburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron McClure of the Conococheague Trade Co., Fayetteville, stand with children visiting their authentic tepee and other displays at Heritage Days.

At Heritage Days, Frank Crawford of RR 1, Port Royal, displays the six flintrock rifles that he has made in the past five years. With him is frontiersman Max Sheaffer of near Harrisburg, and also Crawford's nephew, Evan Saylor, of RR 1, Port Royal.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"Thanks for lunch," The Farmer called over his shoulder as he left for the field one day last week. And his added afterthought: "I know. You slaved over it for hours."

That's one of those family jokes.

"I've slaved over it for hours" is usually attached, with a dramatic, tired sigh, to the serving of some meal I've quickly yanked from the refrigerator and heated in the microwave (one of mankind's most wonderful electrical inventions.)

"But I did slave over this for hours," I called back out through the front screen door. "I grew it."

What had began as an innocent summer lunch had somewhere along the way developed into an orgy of vegetarian gluttony. The array that eventually graced our lunch table that noon would have sent shock waves through the hearts of all those who believe that vegetables, after all, have rights, too.

Just a month ago, who would've ever guessed it?

This "feast" started with a quick pass through the sweet corn, from a tall stand of our favorite Silver Queen variety. Early June's intense heat and dryness had caused rather sporatic germination of the seed. Now the stalks rival the height of field corn, with fat ears of kernels filled out to the very end of the cobs. We can easily make a meal of corn-on-the-cob, lathered with butter and sprinkled with a little salt.

Passing by the melon patch with the corn, I spied the telltale yellowish hue of a ripe cantaloupe. And another. And another. Like the corn, the cantaloupe stalks had languished through the heat. Then, boosted by showers, heat, humidity and a little weak liquid manure, the vines went crawling around your ankles if you stood still very long.

And when hills of cantaloupe and watermelon seeded to the garden had seemed they would never germinate, I'd purchased additional started plants of whatever I could find, including a couple of honeydew and watermelon plants. Now, several large greenish honeydews peaked from under the foliage. One fat honeydew, a small, neighboring watermelon ready to join the pick, and the first three cucumbers from the third seed batch planted before any finally "took" joined the growing produce pile in the kitchen.

While the corn boiled, cucumbers and tomatoes were sliced and readied. The Farmer, in the rare instance of arriving early for lunch, began "butchering" melons, piling containers full of green and gold slices of fruit.

"What's this?" was his astonished reaction when he sliced through the small, round, striped-skin watermelon - with bright-yellow flesh. Gosh, I'd forgotten the stalk of yellow watermelon planted to help fill the early-garden germination gaps. That did explain, though, why there are striped melons growing along with the expected green-skinned ones. And, a tasty surprise, too.

The promise of August gluttony of such lush, delicious, fresh goodies is what keeps die-hard gardeners dreaming over garden catalogs in February and sweating over weeds on hot, humid, hundred-degree days.

I did slave over that meal for hours. And, it was worth every minute of it.

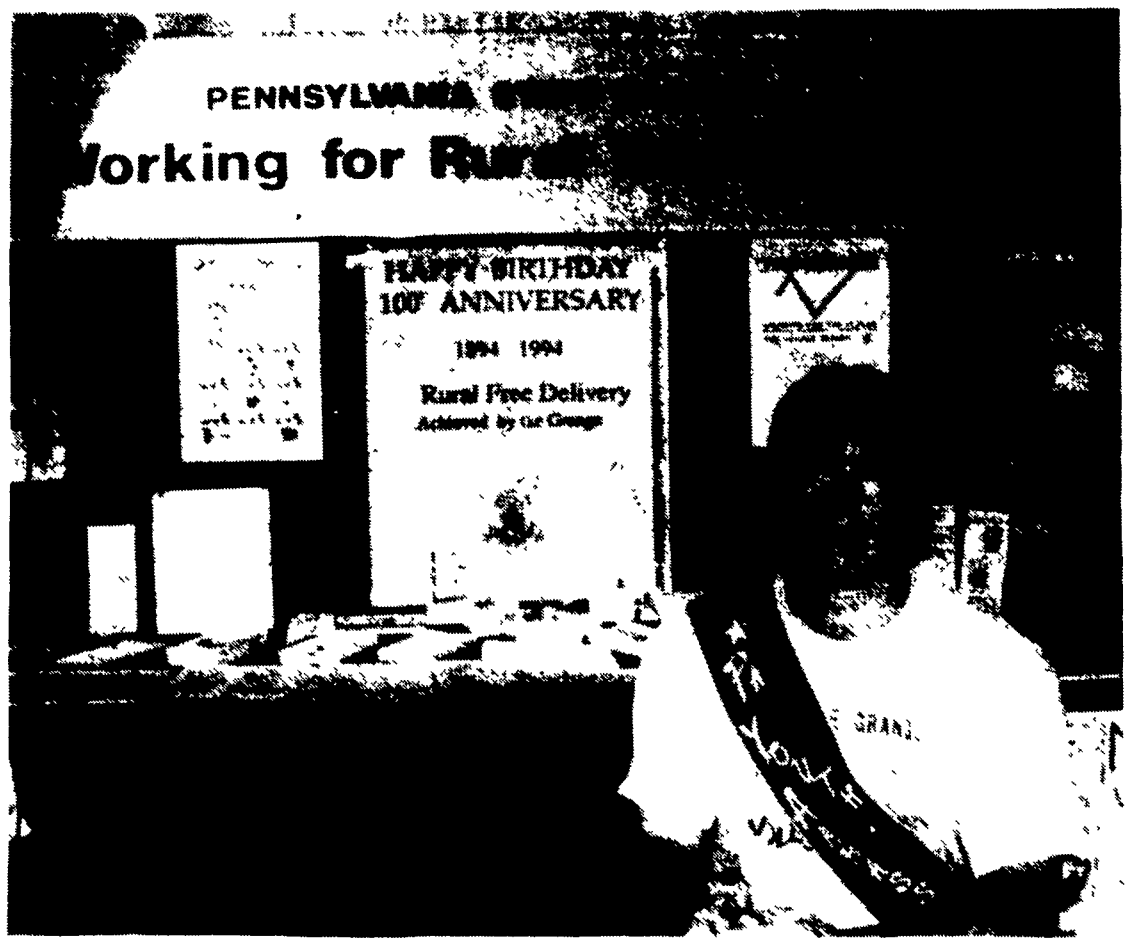
Grange State Youth Ambassador Pam Seidel believes people of all ages should join the Grange. She started attending meetings with her grandfather when she was 5 years old. The family togetherness and values that Grange teaches are now Pam's own. The Grange is a family-oriented, rural community service organization with a special interest in agriculture. Both Pam and Floyd will promote Grange activities for youth.



Part of the responsibilities of being a State Grange Youth Ambassador is to work at a booth at fairs across the state. Here Floyd Buffington tells fairgoers why Grange should be part of their lives.

Youth Ambassadors Enthusiastic About Grange

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LENHARTSVILLE (Berks Co.) — Ever since Pam Seidel was five years old, her grandfather has been taking her to Grange meetings twice a month.

At first, she was too shy to join in the activities with the other children, so she sat in the meetings with the adults. Other children might have been bored, but not Pam. She was enthralled with the pledges and formalities of the Grange meetings.

Soon she began participating in the many activities provided by the Grange for children, youth, and families at local, county, and state levels.

Recently, Pam and Floyd Buffington attained the coveted positions of Pa. State Grange Youth Ambassadors.

The two were chosen from other Grange youth candidates from across the state during a recent youth camp at Camp Carson Long Institute in New Bloomfield.

During the year, Pam and Floyd will promote the Grange at Grange functions, the Pennsylvania Farm Show, county fairs, and other agricultural events. They will also represent the Grange at the National Grange Convention in Harrisburg.

Floyd, who belongs to Community Grange #2048 in Dauphin County, said that he has served in every office since he was a Grange member.

"The opportunities are tremendous for youth," said Floyd who wants to visit schools and educate youth on the importance of Grange.

He said the Grange develops leadership and promotes community service.

"It's a training ground for community leaders and provides a platform for exchanging ideas. But the most important part is that Grange activities are fun. You meet people around the states."

Floyd is 20 years old and a junior at Delaware Valley College. During the summer, he works on his parents' (Donald and Betty) farm. They raise 2,500 head market hogs and nine cattle on their 87 acres.

A former FFA member at Upper Dauphin High School, Floyd was on the wrestling team there and in college. He wants to teach vocational agriculture.

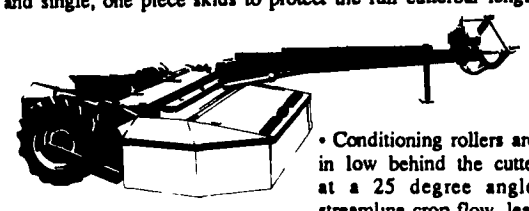
New Vicon KM Mower conditioners are Very Impressive

For high capacity performance, nothing else can make the cut

Vicon's original KM mower conditioners set new standards for clean cutting, no plug productivity.
Now, with introduction of the new GMR series, field performance has reached new levels of efficiency, with more strength, more stability and even better cutting and conditioning than before.

Vicon engineers listened

- Mainframes are stronger, with less weight. Completely re-designed with a lower profile and welded side panels to deliver the endurance and stability you need to keep harvesting on schedule.
- New FLAT, STRAIGHT Cutterbars have improved bearings and single, one piece skids to protect the full cutterbar length.



- Conditioning rollers are set in low behind the cutterbar at a 25 degree angle to streamline crop flow, leaving high, fluffy swaths for fast curing and drying. A new V-belt drive protects the rollers against blockage.
- Noise levels have been drastically reduced with a re-designed front gearbox and mounting for quieter operation.

You can still cut square corners on the move with the new full swivel ball hitch engineered for maximum maneuverability. Plus there's a new computer designed mechanical suspension system that smooths the ride in the roughest conditions.

These machines are simple to operate with an advanced 3-bladed disc cutting and conditioning system that turns acres into miles of fast curing, nutrient-rich hay.

Choose from three reliable models with working widths of 7'8", 9'2" and 10'6".

Vicon's new GMR 2400/2800/3200 mower conditioners.
When average won't cut it.

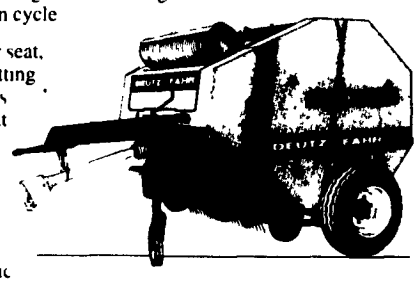
OptiCut

Deutz Fahr adds the cutting edge to round baling profitability

Fourteen razor-sharp cutting blades turn the OptiCut into a universal machine for baling hay, straw and silage.

High moisture forage is chopped as it goes into the baler, reducing full length stalks to four or five inch lengths Proven ribbed profile rollers compress material into an extremely dense 4' x 4' bale, weighing up to 1500 lbs on the GP 2.30OC, depending on the crop and moisture level Bale density is 20-25% higher More material gets into the bale eliminating oxygen and speeding and enhancing the fermentation cycle

From the tractor seat, the complete cutting mechanism folds hydraulically out of the way so the OptiCut operates as a normal baler in hay and straw



A fully automatic twin arm tying system gives you the speed and flexibility to wrap the bale securely with a minimum of twine and material loss If you want more protection for your baled crop, add the netting attachment to wrap with net, twine, or a combination of both All functions are monitored through the control box mounted in the tractor cab

- GP 2.30 OC - For solid 4' x 4' bales.
- GP 2.50 OC - For a bigger 4' x 5'package.

From Farmer to County Commissioner

Work Smarter, Not Harder Is Miller's Goal

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

READING (Berks Co.) — When Ernie Miller was 13 years old, he almost died from a stomach operation gone awry. For more than one year, he was so weak, that people predicted that he'd never fulfill his life-long dream to farm. But Miller proved them wrong.

Not only did he take over the family farm with its 40 acres but he increased it piece by piece until it now measures 600 acres.

Miller also had another dream. He said, "I made up my mind early in life that by the time I was 50 years old, I would be doing something else with my time (while someone else did the farmwork)."

He is now chairman of the Berks County Board of Commissioners.

"That early crisis in my life, forced me to slow up and think — and search for ways to work smarter, not harder," said Miller.

That doesn't mean that his road to success did not meet with struggles and some failures both in farming and politics.

When he first tried to borrow money to expand his farming operation, he was turned down by FmHA. When he first entered the political arena, it was difficult to get people to take him seriously and Miller lost his first bid for county commissioner.

But, he did not give up. In both instances, he searched for a different angle to achieve his goals.

For the farm expansion, he found a cosigner for the loan. But it wasn't too many years before he received credibility and bankers trusted him.

Of his ability to increase his farm, Miller said, "People said I was crazy at the time; now they say I'm lucky.

"But timing was everything," he said. "My belief has been that when other people run, you walk; when others walk, you run."

In the next election, Miller ran for office again, this time capitalizing on his farm background and his success in it.

He won — in fact he had more votes than the other candidates running for election.

Miller said his involvement in politics stemmed from frustration. About 15 years ago, he wasn't happy with zoning decisions so he attended a township supervisor's meeting. When the township supervisor retorted to Miller's questions about the decision by saying that's the way it is and that's the way it's going to be, Miller promised him, "The next election, I'm going to run against you and win."

Miller did win and served as a township supervisor for 12 years before running for the commissioner's office.

In his office on the 13th floor that overlooks the city of Reading, one cannot forget Ernie's agricultural roots. Dozens of cow figurines, dairy-related accessories, and paintings of his farm are displayed in his office.

Every June, for the past three years that he has been in office, Miller holds a dairy celebration for people who work in county government. This year, during the lunch hour, county dairy princesses dished up ice cream for 600 county officials and workers. Pa. Dairy Princess Jennifer Grimes told the crowd about dairy farming, which was telecast on the local news.

Miller said that his farm background has helped considerably in many of the duties for which he is responsible such as the soil conservation committee. It was Miller who helped establish land preservation in the county. He worked to get the Clean and Green Act to reassess farms for their use rather than a tax rollover.

The list of organizations to which he has belonged is endless, but some of those include federal appointment to the National Milk Promotion Board, active in Jaycees, a previous state spokesman for ag, involvement in many agricultural associations such as Grange where he held almost every office in local and county level, and was on the legislative council, president of Council of Farm Organizations (umbrella for group of farm organizations).

It has been Miller's philosophy to rise to the top in organizations and offer what you can and then step aside.

"All my life, I spent a lot of time on boards and at meetings. The only difference between now and then is that now I get paid to attend meetings," Miller said.

Lack of a college education has not been detrimental to Miller because, he says, through farming, reading, and involvement in many organizations, he has received the broadest base education.

"Farming gave me more common sense than education, because you learn a lot more when you lose your own money than you do when it's the public's money," he said. "

Many of his farming innovations were decided upon from his observation of other successful farmers and from reading relentlessly. Miller was the first to go to total confined feeding after reading about California's dairy operation.

"In the 1960s, people laughed at me, when I installed a herringbone parlour. I was the first to put it in and people said, it wouldn't work," Miller said.

It did. Just like many other ideas that he tried.

"Never' is never a good enough answer," for me," said Miller, who said his bout with illness as a teenager forced him to think and read more in search of innovative ways of doing things.

"You can't save time by stopping your watch but by stopping to watch," he said. "I do a lot of observing," he said.

While he's attending to county duties, Miller's wife and two sons in partnership on the farm, take care of things at home, where 250 Holsteins are milked. Corn, alfalfa, and some barley is grown for the dairy.

"My wife wasn't a farm girl when I married her, but now she loves the farm. When I decided to run for public office I had to promise her that she could work in the barn rather than go to meetings," Miller said.

Miller calls himself "the silent partner" on the farm. He has derived much pleasure from turning farming responsibilities over to his sons.

"Many farmers don't have the opportunity to have their sons stay on the farm," Miller said.

His sons, Miller said, had the opportunity to grow into farming at an early age because he was always involved in so many other activities. Although you can be away too much, the positive side is that my sons did not feel intimidated by working in my shadow and they learned to make decisions on their own, Miller said.

Ernie Miller finds being a farmer is an asset in his work as a Berks County Commissioner.

The Millers also have two daughters, one who was the state dairy princess in 1978.

Chemical insecticides and pesticides have been kept at a minimum for the past five years. It was through extensive reading, that Miller decided to cut back on chemical and fertilizer use.

Miller said that he admires farmers who are content, but for him, it seems "it's either grow or die."

Miller said that he has no desire for another elected position.

"Here I have more hands on and can effect legislation more quickly and more effectively than in a state office. Plus I'm closer to the people," he said.

Miller considers himself radical on farmland preservation. He said that many years ago he did a study and found that township growth did not result in more income for the area but in more expenses. He tried to convince people of this finding for many years but it wasn't until recently that this study was confirmed by experts.

Miller emphasized the need for farmers to become involved in their county planning commission and school boards. "Don't give up your rights by default," he said. "There are people out there who want to pass laws that are harmful to agriculture. Many have had no opportunity to talk with farmers, but they want to talk."

While most people seem open to different perspectives there are a few who continually send crank letters and calls. On his desk, Miller has a stack of postcards written in the same script but signed with various names. On one, the person wrote of having seen Miller on television. "You look overfed but thanks to you, I'm eating dog food," the person wrote.

It disturbs Miller that the elderly now need to pay higher taxes from recent tax assessment.

Rebuilding of the court house began before Miller took office, now he's the one who is "stuck" with the bills and property reassessment that was planned before he took office. Even though it isn't his fault, he gets blamed.

But Miller isn't complaining. He said, "People don't want to hear excuses and I don't blame them."

A plaque with the words, "What would Jesus do?" hangs behind his desk.

It's a reminder to Miller and to others to do what's right — not for political gain — but because it's the right thing to do.

"Every occupation has its good and bad," Miller said. Farming and politics are no exception. It is these two occupations from which Miller derives much satisfaction.

"This is America. No matter how or where you were born, there is no limit to what you can be," Miller said.

Pam will be a senior at Hamburg Area High where she is active in Latin, German, and Wilderness clubs. She has participated in softball, hockey, basketball, and cheerleading. She is vice president of the National Honor Society.

The 125-acre Seidel farm has been in the family since the 1800s. Parents Barbara and Ray farm 250 acres and milk about 40 cows. Pam feeds the cows in the evening and helps unload straw and hay.

Pam said she wanted to be an ambassador for the Grange because she wants to promote the values they instilled in her.

"It promotes family togetherness and respect for older people," she said.

Pam teaches Sunday school and Bible school classes at her church where she is also a member of the youth choir. This summer she works part time at a local Dairy Queen.

Pam is second in academic standing at her high school but said that money is tight on the farm and she is not sure she can afford college. She is considering options in interior design, math, languages, hair cutting, and daycare.

Pam and Floyd were chosen to represent their individual granges. They then took a 100-question test pertaining to the Grange. The top five females and males were chosen for the court. They were given personal interviews with the judges and during a banquet answered an impromptu question before an audience.

Hedy Chaffee, state lecturer, who served as one of three judges, said it took six hours to select the new youth ambassadors. The other judges were Mellissa Baxter, National Grange Youth Ambassador from Colorado, and Dina Zug, state Grange secretary.

First runner-ups were Kristen Haas, Seipstown Grange, and Christ Straub, Stony Point Grange.

Other members of the youth ambassador court were Wendy Steffy, Alleghenyville Grange; Traci Mattern, Big Knob Grange; Kimberly Cummins, Big Beaver Grange; Mike Tau, Hayfield Grange; Brian Ebersole, Community Grange; and Leon Blatt, Virginville Grange.

The Pennsylvania State Grange is a rural agricultural organization with more than 35,000 members in 66 counties. The Grange is a voice for rural Pennsylvania in legislative issues and works to improve the quality of life through community service.

For more on the Grange, write to National Grange, 1616 H St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20006-4999 or call 202-628-3507.

The Buffington farm in Millersburg specilizes in raising 2,500 head of market pigs.

Buffington finds time between college and Grange responsibilities to take care of the animals on the farm.

Seidel's dairy farm has been in the family since the 1800s. Love for Grange activities has also been passed down through the family, and one that Pam promises to pass on to others.

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Selecting breads and cereals at the supermarket is easier now that the Nutrition Facts are mandated on all labels. These grain products are the foundation for the new Food Guide Pyramid which also includes rice, pasta, and all other foods from grains.

Grain products like enriched or whole-grain cereals and breads are important sources of starch, protein, iron and several B vitamins. Whole-grain items are also good sources of fiber, magnesium, and folate (folacin). Six to eleven servings each day are recommended, depending on your age, sex, size and how active you are.

Breakfast cereals are a regular item on most shopping lists. With more brands coming out every day, picking the right cereal can sometimes be confusing. Here are some tips to help you sort it out.

• The "Nutrition Fact" label on cereals provides information about fiber, starch and sugars. Comparing labels can help you choose a cereal that's low in sugars and sodium and high in fiber. Bran, whole-wheat and other whole-grain cereals provide the most fiber per serving. The term whole on the label can help you identify products made with whole-grain ingredients.

• Total sugars can range from less than 1 percent to more than 55 percent of the cereal by weight. Read labels to compare cereals. Granola and "natural" cereals can provide considerable amounts of calories, fat and sugars. Many ready-to-eat cereals provide quite a bit of sodium.

• Among hot cereals, oatmeal and other whole-grain types provide the most fiber. Regular and quick cooking types are much lower in sodium than instant cereals in individual serving packets, especially if you omit salt during cooking.

Supermarket bakeries have expanded in the past few years to include a variety of bread products and sweet baked goods. They vary widely in fat, sugars, and fiber content.

• Sweet baked goods (cakes, pastries, muffins) provide more fat and sugars than plain breads, rolls and bagels. Croissants and biscuits are higher in calories, fat and sodium then most other breads and rolls.

• Generally whole-grain breads are higher in fiber than those made from refined flours, but figuring out which breads are whole-grain can be tricky. Wheat bread does not mean whole wheat, and color is not a good indication because colorings can be added to make a product look more like whole-wheat. Look for whole-wheat bread (made with 100% whole-wheat flour) or another whole grain listed first on the ingredient label. Other whole-grain ingredients include cracked wheat, bulgur, oatmeal, whole cornmeal, whole rye and scotch barley.

• Crackers vary quite a bit in fat and sodium content. Generally, crackers that feel greasy to the touch are higher in fat than other types. The label will indicate how much fat and sodium the cracker contains.

• Cracker varieties that are lower in fat and/or sodium include rice cakes, matzo, melba toast, zwieback, saltines, graham crackers and gingersnaps. A variety of unsalted and low-sodium crackers are also available.

• Cookies made with whole-grain flour, oatmeal, dates, raisins or figs provide more fiber than other types.

Woman Braids 7-Strand Straw Into Hats

GAIL STROCK

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — "I make 200 hats a year," the woman says with a cheerful grin.

Three steps up from where I stand is an open wooden porch with rocking chairs, benches, and a cupboard covered with baked goods. Her boot-length dress is royal blue, cap pure white, shoes black and heavy, and grin wide. My father's childhood friend sent us here to learn how the Old Order Amish of Mifflin County make their straw hats.

But here on a back road homestead, this self-sufficient order of people blend ih with the self-sufficiency of nature, and I can't get over the overwhelming quiet. No humming refrigerator or computer. No phone ringing. No TV. No machines. No stress of having to be somewhere at a certain time and always running late. Just an occasional truck whooshing by on the gravel road just above this white wood-frame house, fenced to keep the chickens in and whoever out.

The sounds we do hear are the welcome sounds of nature that are easy on the ears. Michael Jordon may have the glitz of nothin' but net, but here there's nothin' in this country air but peacefulness.

Or so I thought.

"I learned to make hats with rice straw, but now I can work with wheat. It's tougher, but goes easier through the sewing machine," Miriam says of the long plaited strips she overlaps and machine sews in a circle to form the hats.

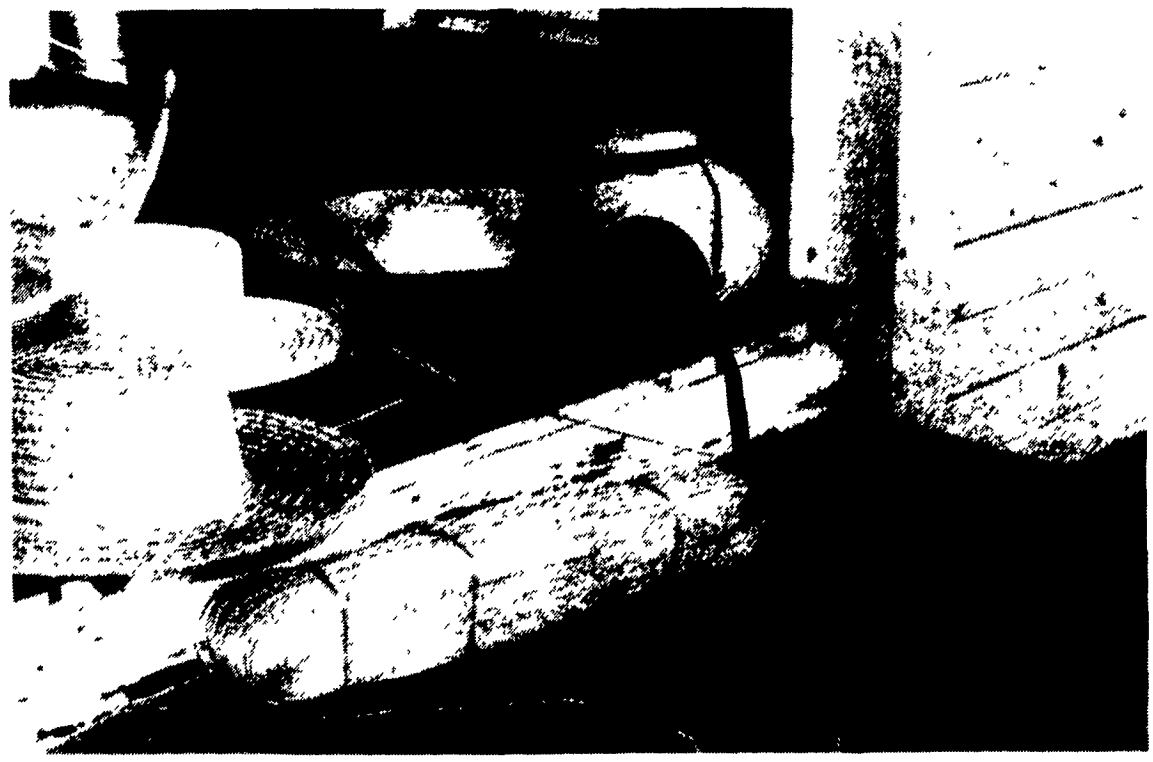
Miriam orders rice straw by the box. Each box holds 12 bundles and she goes through one box in two months. She gathers the wheat straw in from the fields the beginning of July when the wheat is ripe. Although the wheat straw hats are slightly darker than the rice ones, both are a natural golden color.

I ask how much wheat she gathers.

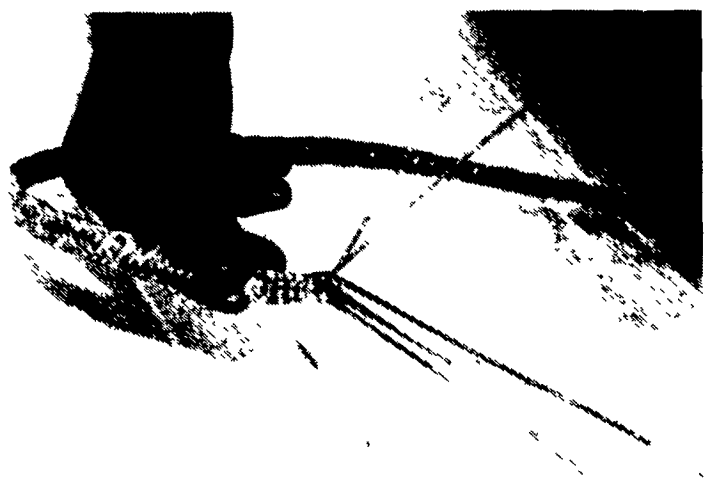
"Oh!" she laughs, pleased with the labor. "By the wagon full!"

After gathering the longest stems, Miriam removes the wheat heads and prepares the stems.

"I strip off what we call the pants (an outer thin leaf-like sheath) and you end up with a hollow tube. I soak it for an hour or two and braid it wet." She can braid four years of straw in one hour and it takes 16 - 17 yards to make a wide-brimmed men's straw hat.



Strips of wheat straw and bundles of rice straw are carefully woven into hats.



Amish hats are made of long strands of woven wheat straw sewn together.

Miriam says she will wet some straw and show us how she plaits it. Soon we hear the hand pump creaking in the kitchen as she dampens the straw.

Working with the dampened, pliable straw, Miriam starts with seven straws side by side. She works the single strands in the over-under fashion of braiding. Beginning with the outside strand, she passes the strand over, under, over, under (four times), stopping before reaching the other side. Then she starts with the opposite outside strand, passing it four times over and under towards the middle. For a thinner band, use five strands. (I practiced with seven strands of baler twine).

Most men buy a new straw hat every year. Miriam makes all sizes of men's hats, each with a thin white ribbon tacked on where brim meets crown. Miriam sometimes uses varnish to stiffen the brim on the men's hats. The crown of her women's hats are only about one inch high, but the brim is wider. The sides bend down when the 3/4 inch black ribbon is tied under the chin.

"This is what I did yesterday," she says with pride, lifting a loaf of homemade bread and pointing to the sticky buns and half moon pies.

It's then that I realize there's more in the air out here than nature's peace. There's pride. Not the vanity kind. The pride that finds pleasures in accomplishment and in work well done.

FFA Leadership Conference Offers Personal Growth, Fun

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

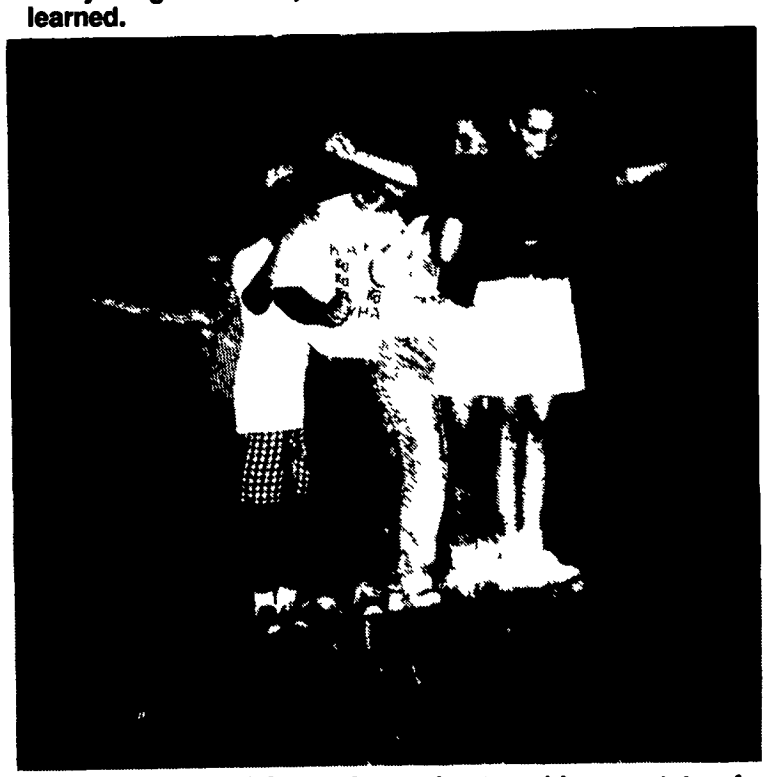
DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — The second annual Eastern Pennsylvania FFA Leadership Conference was held recently at Delaware Valley College to provide an opportunity for the state's FFA members to develop personal leadership skills in a three-day intensive session.

About 50 FFA members, state officers and chapter advisors attended the conference, engaging in a number of activities, ranging from classroom discussions on topics as public relations, teamwork, officer responsibilities and duties, and relationships, to out-

(Turn to Page B25)

At the end of the conference, a picnic provides an opportunity to get outside, socialize and review the lessons learned.

Jason Reifsnyder, past vice president, who attended the Eastern Pa. FFA Leadership Conference in its first year, gives a motivational speech to the participant-students of the 1994 conference.



This team of FFA members tries to achieve a state of balance on a teeter-totter.

FFA Leadership Conference

door skill-development games such as going through a team obstacle course that required team-thinking, cooperation and an understanding of leadership.

Stan Deen, an English, speech and drama instructor at Garden Spot High School, served as a motivational opening speaker. He challengd the youth to get excited, "to dream big dreams," to get involved, and to "soar like eagles" — the last statement being followed with the spreading of arms to indicate flight.

That symbol of flight persisted throughout the three-day conference.

Marci Harnish, daughter of Bob and Marti Harnish, of Manheim, is FFA state vice president. She attended the conference for the first time.

Harnish said that, while defining a "leader" is difficult, she has learned that, "A leader isn't a boss, a leader is a partner."

She said she also learned that anyone can be a leader and that many people are leaders, even though they may not be in the public spotlight.

"I think everybody has the ability to be a leader, they just use it in different ways," Harnish said Tuesday. "Even people who work behind the scenes, they are leaders.

FFA members try to successfully get their team over the wall.

It takes people who are outgoing and saying, 'This is what we want to do,' but it also takes people who are good at organizing, at doing a type of labor, ...

" ... in every situation, no matter what type of personality, people have the ability to be a leader, it's just used in different ways."

As a state officer, Harnish said the experience of attending the conference was rewarding in ways other than what was expected.

"I thought it went very well. (The state officers') premier objective was to get members motivated to go back to their chapters and get their members involved, and to let them know about the opportunities that are available in FFA," she said, adding that the event also provided an opportunity for the 1994-95 officers, elected on June 16, to work together for the first time. Harnish said that added to her experience.

"I got to know the students. This was the first official thing (the 1994-95 state officers) did," she said. Through it, Harnish she learned better, " ... how we can interact. It gives (me) a better sense of how we are going to be working together."

Harnish said she senses that it will be a good experience.

Jenny Zerby, daughter of Nevin and Isabel Zerby, of Beavertown, is president of the state FFA. It was also her first conference.

"I learned how to interact with the other kids and how to get them to open up and tell me what they like to do. I also saw how other picked up."

Zerby said she saw her role as instructor and participant. She said that she and the officers gave instruction on how to present awards, introduce guests or speakers, and also what the officers duties are.

Kelli Zeigler, south central FFA vice president, is helped over the wall by team members. Her arms are wide in balance, but also as a symbol the students made during the conference to refer to setting goals and "soaring like eagles."

"During the motivational speakers or other speakers, we sat back and listened as they did. We learned the same as they (other FFA members) did," she said. Also, she said that by teaching others, she learned more about herself, what was more effective for her in communicating a message to others.

The leadership conference was coordinated by Clifford Day, a environmental agriscience teacher at Garden Spot High School, who had the FFA state officers help run some of the workshops, with such topics as responsibilities of FFA officers, goal-setting, motivation, publications, and teamwork.

One of the highlights of the conference, according to several who attended, was an outdoor Action/Socialization Experience (ASE) event, coordinated by John Deasy, instuctor at W.B. Saul School of Agricultural Sciences.

FFA Leadership Conference

The ASE was an obstacle course, challenging teams of FFA participants to work together to eliminate mental obstacles in order to cooperatively overcome a physical obstacle.

The members of the teams were randomly selected, and state officers also were divided among the teams and held no special rank.

Harnish said that the first obstacle in the course was a sort of teeter-totter made from a plank bound to a cut log. The object of the obstacle was to get all teammembers onto the plank and bring the plank into a state of balance for a period of 30 seconds.

"You had to consider everybody's ability," Harnish said, adding that the test also required team membes to honestly consider the effect that each individual would have on the balance.

"Everyone had an important part," Harnish said. "If you took one person away, there wouldn't be any balance."

The next obstacle was a type of maze constructed not only with directional twists, but with various-height hurdles.

The test was to have one person go through the course blindfolded while a partner provided instructions on how to safely and successfully get through.

Harnish said that part of the ASE reinforced the responsibilities of those being led.

"That developed trust. The person blindfolded had to trust the other person. That's a big thing on a team. You have to trust other people," Harnish said.

She said that those who would lead others need to gain the respect and trust of those they wish to help by leading, to communicate effectively, and to establish a clear understanding of the real common goal that creates the bond between leader and follower.

Another type of cooperative task was for a team to successfully "walk" as a group, using common "feet."

The instructors told the students that they were traveling through a forest and came upon a watery obstacle that wouldn't support the weight of each individual separately.

Given two long planks, each outfitted with six loops of rope, the groups were to all get on the two planks and use the rope loops as handholds.

The groups then were to "walk" foward, as one unit.

Harnish said she was pleased with how well the group she was in worked together.

(Turn to Page B27)

On the right, Marci Harnish, state FFA vice president, presents a certificate of appreciation to Judy Shatzer, of Four-Seasons Produce, for sponsorship of the Eastern Pennsylvania FFA Leadership Conference.

FFA Leadership Conference

She said that everytime the group came up to a new obstacle, one of the team members would come up with an idea, and bounce it off the rest of the group. The matter would be discussed, and solution agreed upon.

"People would give their input and some ideas would be compromised a little bit," Harnish said, adding that the final plan of action was then given respect by all members who then had to give the group an honest effort to achieve success.

"I think it was Tony, who said that we should all count to three, and then he'd call out which foot to move and we would move it."

Tony, Harnish said, was at the front of the line, which she said seemed a natural position from which to give the rest instruction on what to do, because he could see where the group was going and how far of a step to take.

Harnish said it made her understand that there are situations were the positioning of a person makes them more likely to be a leader, but that doesn't mean the leader is the only one important.

In so many words, she said that it seems that at any time any one person may be called upon to be a leader in some situation. The success of the group being led rests as much on those being led as with the person selected to lead.

For her team, Harnish said she observed that, "Everybody had a very good ability, but it was all in a different way. They complimented each other.

"When something wouldn't work, you had to think of something else that would work."

Harnish said the conference was fun but at the same time presented a number of thought-provoking scenarios.

She said that because of the relatively small size of the group, the fact that everyone wanted to be there and were already enthusiastic, the only thing the leadership conference didn't really present was a test of how to deal with antagonists.

As is well known, in many real life situations, a group of people may very well include those who seemingly contribute nothing but irrational opposition and criticizm.

She said however, that she did observe a conference workshop that dealt with understanding relationships, such as those with parents, friends and others.

Harnish said that workshop was enlightening.

"It helps you to see there are better ways to handle situations," She said. "When you encounter any situation, step back and consider it. If you put more thought into it, you'll end up with a better outcome."

Zerby and Ben Dodd, state chaplain, presented the workshop, by acting out different scenarios and making the audience participate. She said the purpose behind the workshop was to, "for them to see the proper way to handle a situation, or how to get out of a situation they don't want to be in, and to consider other people's feelings.

"Pretty much, we were trying to get the students to develop empathy, to understand that we, who may be in a leadership role, shouldn't be quick to judge the actions of others without knowing the circustances behind those actions," Zerby.

Some of the other lessons Harnish said she learned were that a leader must, "Be able to listen to other people's ideas and instead of always being the leader, being able to be a follower and let somebody else lead the group.

"We find that within our own state officer team," Harnish said. "We have a president, but there are times when other officers lead the group."

"We all feel that we're pretty much on the same level," Zerby said, "it's just that for purposes, somebody has to be president."

Harnish said that her total FFA experience has changed her.

"When I started high school, I was very shy. I was definitely not a leader," she said. However, she said that after joining FFA as a high school freshman, she was elected as a freshman class FFA officer.

"I got to be one of those officers and in group discussions, when I gave my ideas, people listened to them.

"As a whole, having others listening, I think, is important. It's really rewarding, sharing ideas. And I think any leader has to listen to everyone's ideas. Everyone has the right to express an opinion."

In other words, she said that without people being open to the ideas of others, and if reasonable, doing research to support beliefs, then a consensus can never be built.

Without a consensus, a goal that brings reward can't be achieved as well, if at all. And without a consensus, it is more likely that those left out of the process of developing consensus who become disgruntled may be more apt to undercut the groups' effort to achieve.

"That's important, making sure that everyone agrees," Harnish said, "and if they don't agree, at least that they are willing to go along with it."

While the participants said they learned much during the conference, officials said that word is apparantly a little slow in getting out to other FFA members and advisors about the value of the conference.

They said that, while the specific date for the conference may change from year to year, it is expected to be held about the same time, in mid-summer.

To find out more about the conference and how to attend, talk to a local FFA advisor, or call Clifford Day, regional FFA coordinator, at (717) 354-1577, at Garden Spot High School agscience department, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., during the school year.

The program was sponsored in part by a rural youth development grant through the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Delaware Valley College and the collegiate FFA, and Four Seasons Produce.

Other involved in the organizing of the conference include Vicki Lantz, a teacher at Big Spring High School, and Bob Lauffer, an environmental agriscience teacher at Garden Spot High School.

You Ask ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? You Answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know whom to ask for the answers.

"You Ask — You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask — You Answer, Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

QUESTION — Charles E. Wright, Duncannon, purchased a 13-inch parlor stove made of iron with the following marks: On the front spark inside is written Gray Iron Casting Co., Mt. Joy, Pa. On the inside top door 75-11; on the poker 7517. The doors, drafts, etc., would look a full-sized stove. Is this company still in business?

QUESTION — A reader would like to know if someone has a grain scale that can be bought to weigh saffron or gunpowder.

QUESTION — D. Newsom, Cooperstown, N.Y., would like to know where to find kegs for Saint Bernards to wear around their necks. He needs real kegs, which live Saint Bernards wear, not miniature knickknacks.

QUESTION — D. Newsom, Cooperstown, N.Y., would like to buy an Aladdin Lamp that is either electric or oil or kerosene, but not the Aladdin mantel type. He wants the shape, the kind rubbed for a wish in the story of the Magic Lamp.

QUESTION — D.Newsom, R. 2, Box 530 Cooperstown, N.Y. 13326-9606, would like to purchase soft fake fur or plush large pieces in 6 to 8 yard lengths. Can be new or used. Send source and price.

QUESTION — Nancy Cummings, Bolivar, would like to know why celery plants go to seed. She has grown celery all her life and the last two years, some of the plants go to seed instead of developing a nice stalk.

QUESTION — M. Carver writes: What a surprise in our garden when we discovered the local nursery supplied us with cabbage plants instead of brussels sprouts. We would like to know how they are handled while fresh.

QUESTION — Betsy Dehn, Spencerville, Md., writes that when she was young, there was a story that went something like this: It was nearing the Christmas holidays and the apple tree was feeling sad and forlorn. His branches were bare and plain whereas the pine tree was decorated with tinsel and glitter. The apple tree complained to God and God said to the apple tree that he would give the tree a special gift. Betsy doesn't remember the remainder of the story, but God ended up putting a Christmas star in the heart of each apple. If you cut an apple crosswise, you will find a perfectly shaped five-point star in the heart of the apple. Betsy would like to have the complete story of how the star came to appear in the center of the apple.

QUESTION — Sarah Clark, Breezewood, would like to know if there is a way to break a dog of being afraid of thunder and lightning. The Clarks have tried letting the dog outside during the storm, but it hasn't helped.

ANSWER — Dennis Williams, Liverpool, wanted to know how to remove kerosene soot from interior painted drywall. Thanks to Naomi Blank, Kinzers, who said to add ½ cup Borax and one to two tablespoons ammonia go two gallons of water. It is also good for cleaning dirty floors and it is kind to the hands.

Thanks to Greta Evans, Picture Rocks, for writing that Lestoil household cleaner will remove and clean any petroleum-type dirt or stain. Dilute as directed on bottle. Lestoil can be purchased at any grocery store. It costs about $7, but will last for many years and has many other uses.

Producers, Processors Fund New Study

CHICAGO, Ill. — Thanks to today's new, leaner alternatives, hot dogs and other deli/prepared meats can continue to be as much of a staple in American lifestyle as baseball and apple pie.

This message is scoring big with dietitians across the country as the result of a unique campaign jointly funded by livestock producers and meat processors through the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Dietitians are an important market because they influence consumer food choices at home, in restaurants, schools, and cafeterias. For instance, dietitians were quoted in news stories making more than 2.5 billion consumer impressions in 1993. In addition, they held 73 million counseling sessions with clients that same year.

The new campaign includes three full-page ads and two "appetizer" ads appearing in rotation in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association. Since the campaign's kickoff in November 1993, dietitians have sent in an average of 200 responses a month requesting a free counseling kit for hot dogs, deli roast beef, or ham. The Meat Board reports that this response level is extremely strong for a dietitian campaign.

Give Kids Spending Savvy

"They don't usually show up in customer records, but they have a big influence on how people shop and spend." That's how American Demographics author Paco Underbill describes children and their influence in the marketplace. Did you know that the average teen in the U.S. spent $3,000 in 1991? More than 40 percent of American teenagers use their parents' credit cards; 11 percent have their own cards!

Children, and especially teens, are becoming more involved as spenders in our malls, grocery stores, and entertainment hangouts. But their influence extends far beyond the actual dollars that they spend. Underbill explains, "School-age children make incessant demands for toys and food. Toddlers quickly learn that they can affect their parents' behavior in stores. Even the smallest infant can cause a frazzled parent to abandon a shopping trip by throwing a tantrum in the middle of a supermarket."

So how can adults acknowledge the situation and shape a child's interest in spending into something positive? Answer: Give kids spending savvy. Through word and example, you can teach children important money handling skills that will be valuable to them throughout their lives.

First, you are a key role model. Research shows that children acquire more knowledge and understanding of money when their parents plan spending, compare products and keep appropriate records. What example are you setting?

It's important to supplement your example with conversation. As you plan, include your kids. What amount do you have to spend for back-to-school clothes? Point out the unit label when you see that an eight-ounce box of spaghetti is cheaper per unit than the three-pound box. Is that unusual? When you pay for a product by check or MAC card, explain to your kids why you're immediately writing it down in your checkbook register.

Not only do kids need good role models. They also need chances to learn by experience. The first opportunities come as they begin to receive an allowance. It is critical that they be allowed to use that money as they please. Parents are urged to provide a few guiding comments, but avoid controlling the purchase. They also should not rescue a child when the funds are gone, and she wants to go to the movies with friends. Children must learn money is limited.

Businesses want people to spend their limited money. And they set up their stores to encourage less-than-savvy spending. Consider these gimmicks. Products priced three for a dollar will sell more quickly than those priced 33 cents. Chip dip and salsas placed next to bags of chips and tortillas bring in big bucks for the vendors as do the croutons and refrigerated salad dressings in the produce section. Expensive items are placed at eye level. Store and generic brands will usually be much harder to reach quickly. Beware, children will interact with anything displayed at their height. And stores now have sensors that activate animated characters who promote products.

Advertising is everywhere. Teach your child or teen to listen critically. What's the catch? Interestingly, marketers have discovered that moms seem to be better than dads at saying no once a child has latched on to a product. But these same researchers predict that as men do more shopping, they will become more skilled at resisting unreasonable requests.

Remember gaining spending savvy takes time. You didn't learn everything you now know about money in one lesson. Children will learn as they are ready, and as they are given opportunity. Day by day, they too will become skilled, savvy spenders.

Turkeys Spur Fine Food Business

LOU ANN GOOD

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — An unpretentious sign along Route 501 in Lititz simply reads "Landis Poultry."

The uninformed motorist never realizes the reportoire of culinary delights available there.

Stuffed chicken breasts, chicken Reuben, potato filling, shish-kebabs . . . .

Dave and Shirley Landis display oven-ready stuffed chicken breasts, which spurred the family business in offering prepared foods.

The cases are filled with the highest quality of ready-to-cook items, soups, salads, desserts, fresh poultry, and more.

"It has to be of the highest quality or we won't put it in the case," said Dave Landis, who with his wife Shirley own the place.

The retail business evolved almost by accident from the couple's turkey farm.

In the 1950s, Dave's parents had purchased the 45-acre farm. Dave and Shirley assumed ownership in 1959.

They raised 2,500 turkeys and dressed them in the block building

Recently the words "Retail Fine Foods" were added to the roadside sign to identify the items available for sale.

on the property. Then the couple sold the turkeys at two local markets.

In 1973, the couple ceased market sales and sold the turkeys and chickens in the building where the turkeys were dressed.

Shirley enjoys greeting customers and developing new recipes. In the background is the store that at one time was used to dress the homegrown turkeys.

Dave also raised hogs.

"But don't mention hogs to me," he said.

"He almost lost his shirt on them," Shirley explained. Although Dave wastes no love for hogs, turkeys are a different story.

The couple raised four sons, Dave, Phil, Mike, and Don, and when the sons no longer helped on the farm, the family stopped raising their own poultry but continued retail sales of it.

It wasn't until 1988, that Shirley began to make stuffed chicken breasts to sell.

People soon began asking for other entrees. Gradually, Shirley offered a few more of her home-cooked specialties until the business now has more than 70 items available.

Every item but one is freshly made on the premises. That one is hamloaf, purchased from a local meat market. No preservatives, additives, or artificial flavorings are used and no item is kept from week to week.

This is quite an accomplishment for a business that was never planned.

"We just happen to be at the right place at the right time," Shirley said.

She also happens to be a great cook and a hard worker. Ironically, Shirley didnot learn to cook until after her marriage. Then she had a crash course when she and her husband served two years of voluntary service in Maine. The couple lived with 12 single guys and it was Shirley's duty to cook the meals.

""The Mennonite Cookbook' became my standby," Shirley said.

Fortunately, the guys loved Shirley's cooking and their enthusiasm encouraged her to develop more culinary skills.

Ideas for new entrees sometimes come from customers who ask for an item or suggest an item.

New dishes that are added are first made by Shirley in her home. She then brings in a dish for employees to taste. They may offer suggestions on how to improve it. By improvising, the final recipe for retail sales is developed.

If an item does not pick up on sales, it is discontinued.

Since every item is made fresh, it is difficult to predict sales week by week.

Spicy pasta salad may be in great demand one week and the next week barely sell.

"Sometimes what we expect to sell doesn't and what we don't expect to sell does," Shirley said of customers' unpreditable buying habits.

"People believe that when you have you're own business, you can set your own hours, but that isn't true," Shirley said.

Dave puts in 12- to 14-hour days. Shirley does all the bookwork and development of recipes. Eight part-time employees help in food preparation and food sales.

The couple only takes overnight trips, because no one else can debone chicken like Dave can — with little meat left sticking on the bones.

"Deboning chicken breasts is Dave's favorite job.

"Seventy-nine people out of a 100 say I'm nuts, but I like it," said Dave, who declined to say how many he could do in an hour except, "I know I can make money at it."

The couple post no prices in the case.

"We are not an outlet shop," Dave stresses. "It has to be the best quality or we won't put it in the case. Our clientel demand the best, they don't ask prices."

All food is sold directly from their store and not to other stores and restaurants for resale.

The success of the business has been a pleasant surprise to the Landis family.

"This is such a pizza nation. People don't know how to prepare food. It blows my mind at the ignorance of people," Dave said.

At this point, the business is as large as possible with the space available.

"We are maxed out. Every corner is used, but if we don't grow, we could get stagnant," Shirley said.

On the other hand, the Landises are cautious about expansion out of fear they will lose the individuality of a home-based business.

The area in which they live is now surrounded by housing developments and the 15 acres left to the original farm is zoned residential.

While the couple realize the sign, Landis Poultry, does not adequately provide an explanation of exactly the type of store it is, by changing the sign, the business could lose its identity.

There was a compromise a few weeks ago, when the words "Retail Find Food" were attached to the sign.

Landis Poultry is located at 843 Furnace Hills Pike, Lititz, Pa. 17543. Or call (717) 626-2410.

Store hours on Thursday and Friday are 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Saturday from 7:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Because someone is always working on weekdays in the shop, customers may stop by for purchases from the frozen food display on days when the store is not scheduled to be opened.

Cumberland 4-H Wildlife Habitat Judging Team Takes State Honors

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co.
Correspondent

NEWBURG (Cumberland Co.) — The members of the Cumberland County 4-H Wildlife Habitat Judging Team really know nature.

They have proven their talents twice now in statewide judging events.

If the rules were different, two of the team's members, Leanne Haycock and Bob Glennon, would get a chance to demonstrate their talents in a nationwide competition also.

The team members showed their stuff when they successfully defended their state champion title during the statewide judging contest that was held at Penn State's Rock Springs Farm.

The team, whose members are Haycock, Glennon, John Creek and Jason Mowery, who are all from Shippensburg Area School Distirct, won that championship for the second time with a score of 280 points out of a possible 300.

On top of that, Glennon was the first place individual with 84 of a possible 90 points. Haycock was fourth and Mowery was seventh in the senior division while John Creek was second his brother, Matthew, was third in the junior division.

However, because they went to the national judging competition at a national park in Eufaula, Ala., last year, Haycock and Glennon are not eligible to go to the nationals again this year.

Jason Mowery may get to go to the nationals in Utah, however, because he is the first alternate for the four-person Pennsylvania team. The nationals are scheduled for this month.

Robert Glennon, the team's coach, said the national contest can be very challenging because the competitors have to become familiar with the types of wildlife that live in the state where that judging will be held.

"If Bob and Leanne were eligible to go to Utah it would have been quite a challenge because the wildlife habitat is much different than it was at states," Robert Glennon said.

The habitat judging contests are comprised of five parts.

First, the youths must recognize wildlife foods and indicate which animal species eat each food item. They must indicate the habitat management practices that are appropriate for certain species on that particular piece of land.

They must judge habitat for given species by looking at aerial photographs as well. After that, they must work as a team to develop plans for a rural and an urban situation.

They must make their recommendations based on information they are given about the landowners' goals for certain species and constraints such as land use restrictions or limited funds available for the project.

Finally, the team must walk the property assigned to them, develop a written management plan, draw plan maps, and defend their plan orally.

All that takes a lot of preparation.

Robert Glennon said his team begins practicing its skills each January and continues working right up to the time of the state contest in May. Local state game lands and farms are used as practice sites, he said.

Although habitat judging is demanding, it is not the only 4-H activity that occupies the time of the team members, Coach Glennon said.

They have all been members of other 4-H programs, such as livestock, cooking and sewing clubs, and found that they were ready for a new kind of challenge, he said.

PERFORMANCE TESTED BOAR SALE

On Wednesday, August 17, the Meat Animal Evaluation Center will hold its 19th Performance Tested Boar Sale at the Penn State Ag Arena at 6 p.m. Thirty-three boars are offered for sale. Many people, myself included, believe this year's group is the among the best we have seen at the Center.

For commercial producers genuinely interested in improving their herd, this sale presents a good opportunity. These boars have records. The numbers were collected impartially. And all boars were raised under similar, rugged conditions.

The Program

Boars born during the month of January arrive at the Center in March. They're penned in an open front facility, four to a group, and full-fed until the pen average reaches 230 pounds. Weight gain and pen feed intake are recorded throughout the test. When the boars reach target weight, they're scanned ultrasonically for backfat and loin eye area.

At the end of the test, an index based on average daily gain, backfat, and feed conversion is calculated for all boars. A boar indexing 100 is average. A boar that indexes 115 has an index that is 15 percent higher than the average. A boar indexing 85 is 15 percent below the average. This year, no boars with an index less than 85 are offered for sale.

The Genetic Principle

The theory is simply this: to improve your herd, use boars better than what you've got now. If you have a herd boar with .8 inches of backfat at 230 pounds, and his offspring are too fat, then buy a boar with less than .8 inches of backfat.

Should you also select leaner gilts? You can, but remember one boar can sire hundreds of pigs per year. Offspring from one sow rarely exceeds 22 pigs per year. Because of this, you have a lot more leverage with the boar, and progress is possible with a lot less work.

The Economic Factor

Can you calculate how much a boar is worth? Not exactly, but you can estimate it. Let's take our backfat example. We'll say your boars have an average of .8 inches backfat. You buy a boar with .6 inches. At this point we'll have to assume that conditions of fat measurement were identical, and that environmental conditions were similar.

How much difference will the new boar make on the offspring?

First, calculate the difference between the boars: .8 inch - .6 inch = .2 inch. This called the selection differential.

Next, we can expect about 40 percent of this difference to be transmitted. The 40 percent is the heritability for carcass traits, and it means that of all the variation we see in carcass traits, 40 percent is due to genetics.

Finally, you must remember that the offspring gets half of its genes from the boar. The other half comes from the sow.

So the final calculation looks like:

Selection Differential X Heritability X Percentage of Genes from the Boar

.2 inch X 40 percent X 50 percent = .04 inch.

So pigs from the new boar should have, on average, .04 inches less backfat than those sired by your present boars. Under the Hatfield system, that would be worth about $.75 per pig. If this boar breeds only four sows a month, the expected increased value in the progeny for one year would be $288.

Based on backfat alone, this boar is worth $288 MORE than your other boars. Keep in mind, the boars at the Performance Tested sale also have the potential for improving feed conversion, weight gain, and even muscle in your herd.

Does The Theory Work?

Ask Charlie Hall and Mark Hall if it works. This year, the Halls have the top-indexing pen of boars.

I looked through the Boar Test Sale catalogs since the first test in 1978. According to my records, the Halls started testing boars in 1986. That year, their pen of boars indexed 99 and ranked 13th out of 20 pens entered. The next year, their group of boars ranked 15th out of 20 pens. Since those tests, it's been a steady progression up. The table below contains a lot of numbers. They're listed to show that progress does not happen over 11 tests by accident.

Table 1: Performance of C.&M. Hall Boars in the PA Boar Test Program.

Year	Daily Gain, lb.	Fat, in	Feed Effic.	Index	Rank
86	2.08	.96	2.65	99	13th
87	1.83	.80	2.69	87	15th
88	2.27	1.08	2.40	115	6th
89	2.00	.65	2.52	104	11th
90	2.27	1.00	2.49	123	7th
91	2.07	.74	2.34	115	2nd
92*	2.21	.83	2.71	110	6th
92*	2.34	.75	2.19	126	4th
93*	2.02	.65	2.54	115	7th
93*	2.28	.65	2.28	130	3rd
94	2.52	.55	2.20	155	1st

*Two tests in 1992 and 1993.

The intent of this table is not to make an example of Charlie and Mark Hall. It is to make a case for the process.

Charlie and Mark are just two of many seedstock producers in this state who buy into this process. On August 17 at 6 p.m., they'll be at the Ag Arena with their product. Pay them a visit.

National FFA Organization Conducts Leadership Exchange

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Sixty-two FFA members and five FFA advisors have been selected to participate in the 1994 Leadership Exchange program with the Newly Independent States (former Soviet Union). This exchange allows students to gain a better understanding of the economic, political and cultural atmosphere abroad and to develop their leadership and professional skills in an international environment.

Participants were selected on the basis of their leadership skills, agricultural experience, FFA activities, school and community involvement and career goals.

During their orientation and evaluation sessions in Washington, D.C., participants will attend briefings at the U.S. Department of Agriculture to strengthen their awareness of U.S. positions on current agricultural issues. They also will visit the U.S. Information Agency and receive specialized training in cross-cultural communications and adaptation for living in Russia.

Working with the newly organized Rural Youth Union of Russia, four FFA teams will visit Moscow for an orientation and then spend three weeks in one of four selected regions in Russia — Penza, Novosinkovo, Irkutsk and Orenberg. A fifth team, in coordination with the Peace Corps and Volunteers in Overseas Cooperative Assistance (VOCA), will travel to Moldova, a small republic located between Romania and Ukraine. Directed by an American agricultural instructor, the teams of FFA members and advisors will share the leadership training concepts they learned through FFA with Russian and Moldovan students. Participants will live with families for one week and reside in a dormitory at an agricultural school for the remaining two weeks.

Activities at the various locations will include an agricultural skills competition, a joint community service project and firsthand experience with agricultural systems native to the specific region.

This exchange is one of the many international programs designed to expand FFA students' perspective to a global level. As part of this reciprocal exchange, 62 students and five instructors from the Newly Independent States will travel to the United States July 21-August 23 to participate in leadership-building activities, including FFA's week-long Washington Leadership Conference. These participants will stay in the communities of the five agricultural education instructors who will have just returned from the former Soviet Union. During their time in these communities, they will get a first-hand look at American agriculture through the local FFA chapters.

Funding for this program is provided by the Secondary School Initiative of the Freedom Support Act awarded by the U.S. Information Agency. Each participant paid an additional small fee to take part in the program.

KEEPING AMERICA ON THE GROW

Plans For FFA Convention Under Way

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — More than 32,000 FFA members, advisors, supporters and guests are expected to attend the 67th National FFA Convention Nov. 10-12 in Kansas City, Mo. The meeting is the nation's largest annual student gathering.

The national convention is the culmination of a year's activities for FFA members. Delegates will discuss topics affecting the national organization and hear educational and motivational speakers. Exceptional FFA members and supporters will be recognized for their achievements and commitment to the organization.

The National FFA Organization will recognize outstanding members in 29 agricultural proficiency areas and in 17 agricultural skill and leadership competitions. More than 1,400 members will receive the American FFA Degree, the organization's highest degree. Two of the American FFA Degree recipients will be named American Star Farmer and American Star in Agribusiness. In addition, chapters will receive recognition for excellence in safety, community development and chapter activities. Winners in the Agriscience Teacher of the Year award program will be named.

National finals competitions for the prepared and extemporaneous public speaking contests, parliamentary procedure contest, agriscience student recognition program, the Ag Issues Forum, and the Marketing Plan Project will be held in the "finals hall" of the new conference center between the auditorium and exhibit halls. The finals sessions will be held concurrently with Thursday and Friday daytime convention sessions.

Business and industry supporters of the FFA are represented at the convention through the National FFA Foundation. The 1994 Sponsors' Board chairman is Ron Davis, president and chief executive officer, Biggs/Gilmore Communications.

Olympic gold medalists Florence and Al Joyner will speak during the reflections programs on Wednesday afternoon and evening prior to the start of the convention. Their appearance is sponsored by the Firestone Ag Tire Division and Bridgestone/Firestone Trust Fund, a charitable trust of Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc., in celebration of 50 years' support of the National FFA Foundation.

Speakers confirmed for the convention include former Apple Macintosh computer guru Guy Kawasaki, former Tennessee Commissioner of Agriculture Cotton Ivy, motivational speaker Craig Karges, and founder of the Family AIDS Network Mary Fisher. Ivy will be sponsored by the Western Retail Implement and Hardware Association as a special project of the National FFA Foundation.

The 1993-1994 National FFA Officers will direct the week's activities. They are Curtis C. Childers, national president, Glen Rose, Texas; Andrew McCrea, national secretary, MAysville, Mo.; Raquel Lacey, central region vice president, Nokomis, Ill.; Tyler Grandil, western region vice president, Gilbert, Ariz.; Liam Brody, eastern region vice president, Greenville, N.Y.; and Steven Mitchell, southern region vice president, Pineville, Ark.

"FFA—The Leadership Advantage" is the theme for the 1994 convention and reflects the organization's underlying purpose of developing enthusiastic leaders for America and the agricultural industry. It also captures the spirit that stimulated local and state leaders to increase FFA membership for the third year in a row.

CFS Announces New Hybrids

MOMENCE, Ill. — Custom Farm Seed (CFS) has recently announced an array of new dent corn, soybean, waxy corn, and alfalfa varieties.

The six new dent corn hybrids for the 1995 planting season were part of an expanded research program, increased with the addition of a 155-acre research farm, staff additions, and the continuing coordination and support of National Starch and Chemical Co.

The new dent hybrids are:

• CFS 4244, 98-102 RM/100 MN, which offers top yields with a very good disease package. The variety has excellent stalks and roots, an attractive appearance, and open husks that accelerate drying.

• CFS 5525, 101-105 RM/105 MN, has an excellent history for anthracnose resistance and dries down fast.

• CFS 5732, 103-107 RM/110 MN, has wide adaptation, requires high potassium fertility levels, gives fast dry down, and responds to high fertility at moderate populations.

• CFS 6044, 106-110 RM/110 MN, has girthy ears that add up to high grain yields along with excellent standability and very good anthracnose resistance.

• CFS 6333, 109-113 RM/115 MN, offers a strong agronomic package, with high yield potential, excellent adaptation, good drought resistance, and very good stay green ability.

• CFS 7727, 113-117 RM, for conservation tillage grower. This performer has excellent standability and good leaf disease tolerance.

CFS announces a new Group I soybean variety for the 1995 planting season, CFS 195. The variety is suited for no-till operations, has excellent phytophthora root rot resistance because of the Rps 1-k gene, is large seeded with excellent emergence, and offers very good standability.

Nine new waxy corn hybrids were also introduced. CFS identifies a minimum waxy purity of 97 percent. The hybrids include:

• CFS W1570, 81-85 RM/85 MN, can be harvested for grain or silage. The variety is well adapted from East to West.

• CFS W1877, 84-88 RM/90 MN, demonstrates excellent seedling vigor for early planting and dries down fast for early harvest. It does well under drought conditions and shows excellent adaptation.

• CFS W3778, 93-97 RM/95 MN, develops a sturdy stalk and competitive yields.

• CFS W4454, 100-104 RM/105 MN, is drought-tolerant with a girthy ear.

• CFS W6064A, 106-110 RM/110 MN has loose husks for rapid drydown and good drought tolerance. The variety harvests well at high moisture.

• CFS W6076, 106-110 RM/110 MN works well on irrigated ground at high populations and yields best under favorable environments in northern Iowa and southern Minnesota.

• CFS W6458, 110-114 RM, offers fast dry down and very good corn borer tolerance.

• CFS W7666, 112-116 RM, offers fast emergence and promises to be a top choice for conservation tillage.

• CFS W7779, 113-117 RM, develops good stalk quality and does best under stress.

A premium alfalfa, RFV-2000, offers peak forage quality from prebud to 25 percent bloom. The variety has a relative feed value (RFV) of 171 at mid-bud and RFV of 151 at 25 percent flower. The variety is resistant to major diseases, including bacterial wilt, fusarium wilt, various root rots, spotted and pea aphid, stem nematode, and tolerance to potato leafhopper.

Pennfield To Exhibit At Ag Progress

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Pennfield Feeds will sponsor an exhibit at the 26th annual Ag Progress Days, sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences at the Rockspring research center fom August 16 - 18.

Pennfield's exhibit will be part of more than $20 million worth of agricultural machinery, equipment, supplies and services that will be displayed and demonstrated during the three-day event.

Pennfield's display will focus on two different programs: Tend-R-Leen dairy beef and performance heifer feeds. The Tend-R-Leen Program is a certified all grain fed Holstein beef program. This program takes an animal from birth to finish (1,150 - 1,250 pounds) in 12 - 13 months and produces a Leen and Tender carcass.

The second program focuses on Pennfield's two heifer feed lines: the Elite Line (1,350 pounds body weight at 22 months) and the Go-Calf Line (1,350 pounds body weight at 24 months). Both lines emphasize the importance of raising top-notch replacements for the dairyman's milking string.

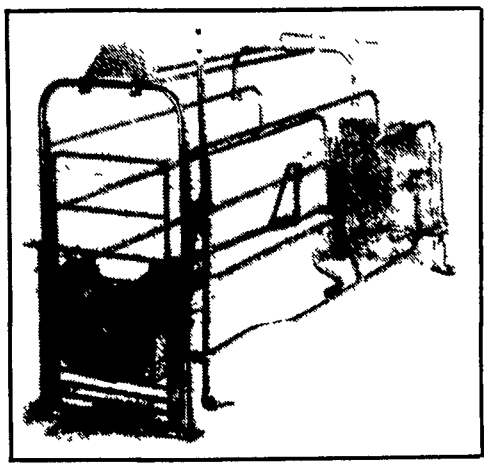
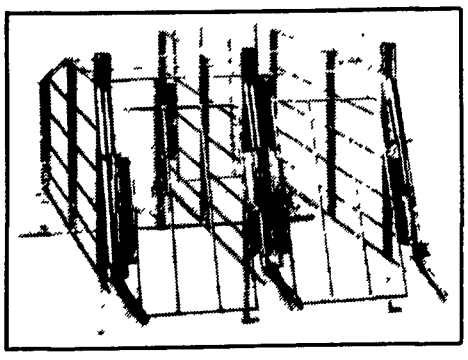
PIG SAVER "DUTCH CRATE"

Developed through testing in our research farms the goal was to develop a crate that nearly eliminates crushing, due to lay one, unmatched durability and be easy to work around. All this has been achieved by a unique gravity flipnail that forces sows to lie down slowly and using stainless steel for rear doors and legs, proven horizontal and solid steel rod construction. All this at a reasonable cost. Crate also can be installed on an angle.



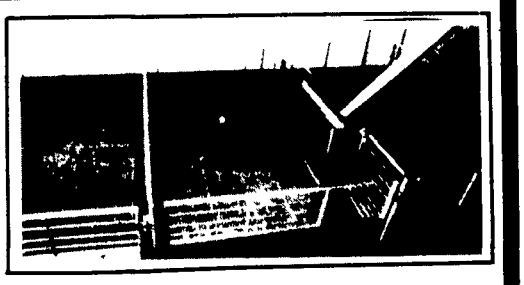


CONFINEMENT STALL

Developed recently in our R&D farm. Our goals were convenience, safety and durability. The low back and flat top rails are easy to reach over with no sharp edges. Stainless steel rear legs and front feet along with solid steel horizontal rods through punched uprights provide the strongest, most durable stall ever produced by Tri-County (21"-24" O.C. x 86")

NURSERY PENNING

Nursery penning has been improved by the use of an optional solid stainless steel panel on the front gates which keeps walkways clean. Stainless steel verticals on penning eliminates corrosion where penning attaches to the floor. Stainless steel drinker pipes & mounting brackets also increase durability.



FINISHING PENNING

Optional stainless steel verticals and fasteners offer improved durability over other similar types of penning. Loop and flapper latch arrangement eliminates the use of drop pins. Stainless steel fence line feeders provide excellent durability and a minimum of waste.

TOWER SILOS: HIGH PROFIT STORAGE FOR HIGH ENERGY FEEDS

Preserving high energy corn silage is obtained only through efficient, effective storage. Storage that saves the most nutrients. Storage that delivers the highest overall long term benefits. Storage that offers better total performance than any other method of preserving valuable corn silage.

Tower silos control the fermentation process and retain the most feed. With tower silos you'll get better feed...more feed...with lower overall costs and less labor than any other storage method.

"When it comes to high profit storage for high energy feeds, other systems just don't measure up."

CONSIDER THE MANY CONCRETE ADVANTAGES!

No Preowned Silos!!

In order to avoid hauling and drying costs, let us build a corn storage unit to preserve your valuable grain at 20%-30% moisture.

To keep your stored corn bright and yellow, you must protect it from oxygen and heat. Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel.

Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to pre-fab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement.

BEFORE SPENDING A LOT OF MONEY FOR ENERGY TO DRY YOUR CORN, YOU WILL DO WELL TO CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF OUR POURED CONCRETE SILOS...

To unload your corn, we can install the simple auger system, the Laidig 43 unloader, or the Flying Dutchman. Let's discuss the options, and what is best for your situation.

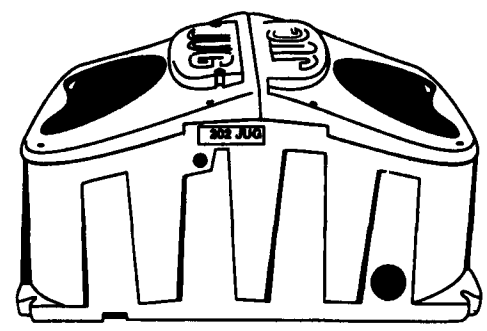
The JUG passes the "winter of '93-'94" test



See Us At Ag Progress In The Dairy/Livestock Tent

Remember the c-c-c-c-c-cold winter of '93-'94? Wondering what the next one will bring and how your herd will fair?

Install the energy-efficient JUG to reduce concerns about freezing cattle fountains. Even in the coldest weather, the JUG performed, while the competition's waterers did not.

While the JUG's thick urethane insulation keeps the winter cold out, its patented drawtube recirculates water. Cooler bowl water exchanges with warmer reservoir water to keep bowl water open. The JUG will do its job.

A cold weather test conducted by an Iowa college during the winter of '94 demonstrated its energy efficiency. The JUG used only 108 kilowatts of electricity over four months for a cost of $8.64. A competitor's waterer used 816 kilowatts, costing $65.28, almost eight times as much. The test confirmed the JUG's energy efficiency.

No other waterer equals the Jug for clean, palatable water. Low maintenance, the JUG also meets the requirements for dairy approval.

If you've been considering starting in llamas, or having a llama for a pet, why not stop in to see our herd.

Our young males start at $500, our weanling females at $2,500, our pregnant females at $3,500. A deposit will hold any of our crias (baby llamas) for you.

We prefer selling off the farm, rather than subjecting our animals to the stress of auctions.

All of our llamas are registered with the International Llama Registry. Some of the finest wool and blood lines can be found in our herd, including Otter Creek Harold.

All llamas can be halter led, and are gently trained by teenagers.

FOR SALE

20 North County Cheviot ewes

This is one of the best North County flocks in this part of the country. Majority are '89 & '92 births.

The Canadian government has been buying rams from Scotland and keeping them in guarantine for the required period, then selling the offspring so that these sheep are from many generations of the best that Scotland has to offer.

Due to my age, I must sell after 25 years of breeding North Country Cheviot Sheep.

HE'S REPLACING SOYBEAN MEAL AND CORN TO IMPROVE HIS PROFIT . . . SHOULD YOU?

This dairyman just took a delivery of brewers wet grain from the Miracle Feeds division of Furst-McNess. When he put a sharp pencil to it, he found that each ton of Miracle brewers wet grains could replace 230 pounds of 48 percent soybean meal (@ $250/ton) and 195 pounds of shelled corn (@ $90/ton) making brewers wet grain worth over $35.00/ton in his ration. With the average price of brewers wet grains running at approximately $25.00-$27.00/ton (depending on distance from the brewery) this dairyman has realized that brewers wet grains is an excellent buy versus soybean meal and shelled corn.

And, the dairyman found Miracle brewers wet grain also enhanced his cows' production since it is an excellent source of bypass protein and helps make up for some poor quality forage he is forced to feed this year. It also improved the palatability of his total ration. Brewers wet grains also contains 9% fat making it an excellent source for this important nutrient.

Say you're already feeding brewers grains? Maybe you should consider switching to Miracle, where you can get free computerized ration balancing plus forage testing to get the most out of your feeding program. Just call toll-free 800-888-0230.

We're More Than You Think"

Olver National Advisor Of The Year

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dale Olver, Penn State instructor in Dairy and Animal Science, was named Advisor of the Year at the annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Association-Student Affiliate Division in mid-July in Minneapolis.

The award recognizes Olver's work as co-advisor of the Penn State Dairy Science Club, which was named second Most Outstanding Chapter at the same meeting. About 80 members strong, the club has placed third or higher each of the last 13 years in the Outstanding Chapter Contest, and is four-time national champion in that same period.

First organized in 1925, the Penn State Dairy Science Club's purpose is to develop leadership and help advance the general welfare of the dairy industry. Over the years, the club has been a springboard for future leaders in the dairy industry both statewide and nationally. It has also been an integral part of the educational experience for thousands of Penn State students with an interest in the dairy industry.

Olver was an active member of the Dairy Science Club during his undergraduate days at Penn State, having served as its president. After receiving a B.S. in Dairy Production in 1979, Olver worked as program analyst at Atlantic Breeders Cooperative in Lancaster. During this tenure there, the club presented him with its first Outstanding Young Dairyman Award. He also was the 1989 Penn State Dairy Exposition Dedicatee.

Returning to Penn State in 1989 as an instructor in dairy science, Olver turned his attention to teaching and advising. In addition to teaching and his work with the Dairy Science Club, Olver advises the Pennsylvania 4-H Dairy Program, manages the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show, and coaches the Penn State Dairy Judging Team, which consistently has been among the top ten teams nationwide during his five-year tenure as coach. Olver spends much of his time recruiting and mentoring new and current Penn State students. He also has coached two national champion dairy bowl teams.

Some of the Dairy Science Club's major annual events include the Nittany Lion Fall Classic (student-organized cattle sale), an annual holiday cheesebox sale, Dairy Exposition, Spring Judging Contest, and a spring trip. Last spring the Club visited four Western-style farms and a major bottling plant in Arizona, and took side trips to Grand Canyon, Painted Desert, and Petrified Forest.

Club members work hard all year, but also have plenty of fun along the way. They said that Olver "motivates them to work hard and strive for success," and that his "positive attitude and sense of humor serves as encouragement."

Larry Muller, professor of dairy science, is co-advisor of the club. "Dale is most deserving of this national award," said Muller. "His dedication and many contributions to the club's programs have led to the club's success at both regional and national levels."

For more information on the Penn State Dairy Science Club and its activities, call the Department of Dairy and Animal Science Student Services Office (814-863-3664).

AG Progress Days

"Penn State AG Science... We're More Than You Think"

Food Safety Research Tours Scheduled

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Dairy and poultry production are the top two agricultural sectors in Pennsylvania. But to remain strong, these industries need a steady flow of new information to enhance efficiency and improve the bottom line.

This demand for scientific knowledge was the prime factor behind Penn State's construction of new dairy and poultry research centers at its University Park Campus. Visitors to Ag Progress Days, August 16-18, can get a first-hand look at the new facilities by taking the Special Topics Research Tour.

During the bus ride from the Ag Progress days site, visitors will learn about the nearly completed Dairy Cattle Research and Education Center and view a video showing the center's state-of-the-art milking parlor. Faculty from the dairy and animal science department will be on board to answer questions.

The new milking parlor will be the tour's first stop. "The parlor has a double-10 herringbone design equipped with rapid-exit stalls," says dairy specialist Stephen Spencer, who helped design the milking system.

"It's constructed of stainless steel, with narrow holding lanes so we can move groups of 60 cows into the parlor without disrupting the milking procedure," he says. "We can weigh cows automatically as they leave the parlor or between milkings."

The parlor also includes a data-acquisition and control system that transfers information from milk-flow measuring devices directly into the milking system's computer. Milk from the system's 4,000-gallon bulk tank is taken daily to the University Creamery, where it is processed and sold as fluid milk, ice cream, cheese and other dairy products.

From the Dairy Center, the tour will move to the new $6 million Poultry Education and Research Center. The 50,000-square-foot facility contains six building for studies on broilers, layers, turkeys, pullets, breeding and genetics and processing.

"The new facilities more nearly replicate the technology used in today's industry," says Dr. William Weaver, professor and head of Penn State's poultry science department.

The centerpiece of the new complex is the Fundamental Research Building. In addition to housing offices, a hatchery, a feed mixing area and a surgical suite, this building contains four environmental chambers designed to hold up to 400 birds each.

"We can alter a chamber's temperature, relative humidity, ventilation, and light rates to simulate different seasons, housing types, and other environmental factors," Weaver says. "We can simulate the conditions of a hot summer day in south Georgia, even in the middle of winter."

The Special Topics Research Tour departs at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. daily during Ag Progress Days. An additional tour will be offered at noon on Wednesday.

The tour is free, but tickets are required. Tickets are available at the corn crib at the top of Main Street, which is the tour boarding site. Seating is limited.

Lebanon Teams Take States, Next To Nationals

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — For the first time, two different judging teams comprised of youth from Lebanon County won their respective state titles and are eligible to represent the state at national competitions.

Last week at state 4-H Achievement Days held on the campus of Penn State University, the Lebanon County Livestock Judging team took first place in the state, repeating an earlier win in the southeastern regional competitions held at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds and extension office.

Kenneth Winebark, Lebanon County extension agent, said that the dual win by Lebanon County seemed to provide added enthusiasm during the Lebanon County Fair, also held last week.

"Everybody was elated," Winebark said. "The word got around the fairgrounds, it was a very joyous time. You could just feel it the whole week.

"Even the younger kids," Winebark said, "they went to the card places, where you can make (personalized greeting) cards, and made cards for the teams that said, 'Congratulations on winning it all at state days.'

"All these kids have worked a long time for this, really hard, and finally it came to pass. Most of these kids have been at it since they were 8 or 9 years old, working for this opportunity," he said.

That means that the youth have been working to better themselves for the competitions for up to 10 years.

Team member Danny Atkins, son of Bill and Judy Atkins, of Lebanon, earned a statewide first place individual ranking in the livestock judging competition.

Dairy Judging

At the same time, the Lebanon dairy judging team also earned first place in the state competitions, making them the first team from Lebanon County, to knowledge, to win the state title and be eligible to advance to nationals.

The win by the dairy judging team unfortunately set up a dilemma for the members. The rules of competition and advancement are such that only the top four individuals from the state are eligible to go on to the World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wis., from Oct. 3 through Oct. 7. The actual national competition is slated to be held Oct. 5.

Two of the four Lebanon County team members finished among the state's top four individuals.

Kraig Sellers, son of Ken and Karen Sellers, Annville, was second in the state, behind first place Rebecca Kelly, daughter of Tom and Peg Kelly, of Blair County.

Lebanon team member Jesse Bomgardner, son of John and Margaret Bomgardner, Annville, tied for third with Yvonne Peterman, of Lycoming County.

That means that Lebanon County team members Andy Bicksler, son of Ray Bicksler, of Richland, and Missy Bicksler, of Myerstown (the two are second cousins), will not be going to any further competitions.

If Sellers and Bomgardner had not placed as well individually, then the entire team could have gone to the North American International Livestock Exposition, in Louisville, Ky., to compete.

As it is, with Sellers and Bomgardner have opted to take their option to travel to Madison for their first World Dairy Expo. Neither had ever been to the gala event as a spectator, much less as a national contestant.

Melissa Bicksler, who will be a high school senior this fall, said that what it means for her is that she will try again next year to qualify for Madison.

Andrew Bicksler starts college this fall, set on pursuing a four-year degree, beginning at Penn State Unversity's Berks Campus.

The coach of the state dairy judging team going to Madison is to be Sue Sellers, a dairy farmer in Belleville, who has in past years coached two teams that have won in the "reasons" catagory at the national contest.

According to Dale Olver, Penn State University Dairy Science professor who is coach of the collegiate judging team, and who works extensively with the state's 4-H dairy programs, Sellers has been doing a great job as coach of the state teams.

"She has a reputation as being extremely helpful, and has an excellent rapport with young people," Olver said.

Her assistant coach is to be Matt Wanner, of Lancaster County, who is currently in graduate school at Penn State's College Agricultural Sciences, in the dairy science department, studying genetics.

The local coaches for the Lebanon County team were Alan Hostetter, Dave Smith, John Bomgardner and David Lentz.

Lentz, who recently received his bachelor's degree from Penn State, has been a standout in dairying in the county and at Penn State University. He has had many years experience preparing for such types of competitions, and, according to the team, has pushed them harder to study than what they had been doing.

Sellers and Bomgardner, who live within 10 miles of each other, said that they plan to meet at least once a week to prepare for the nationals.

In the meantime, Olver said that the state team is to get practice judging by going to the Maryland Fair where they will be allowed to participate in practice sessions, judging classes of dairy cows entered for that competition.

At the 4-H competition last week, the youth had to place six classes of Holsteins, a class of Ayrshires and a class of Jerseys. The Holsteins were provided from the Penn State herd. The Ayrshires belong to John Rodgers of Belleville, while the Jerseys were provided by Craig and Susan Wicker, of Centre Hall.

At the World Dairy Expo, the team can expect to place a total of 10 classes — two classes and five breeds, with four animals per class.

While the nonprofit Friends of Pennsylvania 4-H sponsors the team's travel expenses and room costs, the youth are expected to find the money to pay for their own food and additional expenses.

Those wishing to donate to the team can do so directly, if they wish, or they can help support the Friends of Pennsylvania 4-H by sending contributions to the organization, specifying that the donations are to be used for the dairy judging program.

Olver said that the wins by the Lebanon County youth is a tribute to the dedication and effort of the youth, and also to the support provided them by community adults and businesses.

"They've been consistently good over many years and this is a tribute to the strong youth program that they dveloped in their county," Olver said.

From the left, Ben Bow, Wendy Atkins, John Harnish and Danny Atkins, with the microphone, announce their gratitude to the buyers at the Lebanon Fair Youth Livestock Sale for their support. The buyers successfully bid and donated back for sale a cake to support the foursome's trip to national livestock judging competitions.

Livestock Team

The Lebanon County livestock judging team will be going to the NAILE to pursue a national title. Their coaches are Ralph and Melanie Horchler, Lori Voight, Johnny Risser, and Kenneth Winebark.

In addition to Atkins, 18, other teammates on the state team include his younger sister Wendy, 15, Benj Bow, 16, and John Harnish, 16.

Harnish was second in the state and earlier this year, won the state FFA contest. Wendy wn high individual in the spring, and was second at the more recent York invitational, and was third overall at the S.E. Regional competitions.

The foursome have to pay their own way to NAILE and expenses can be considerable.

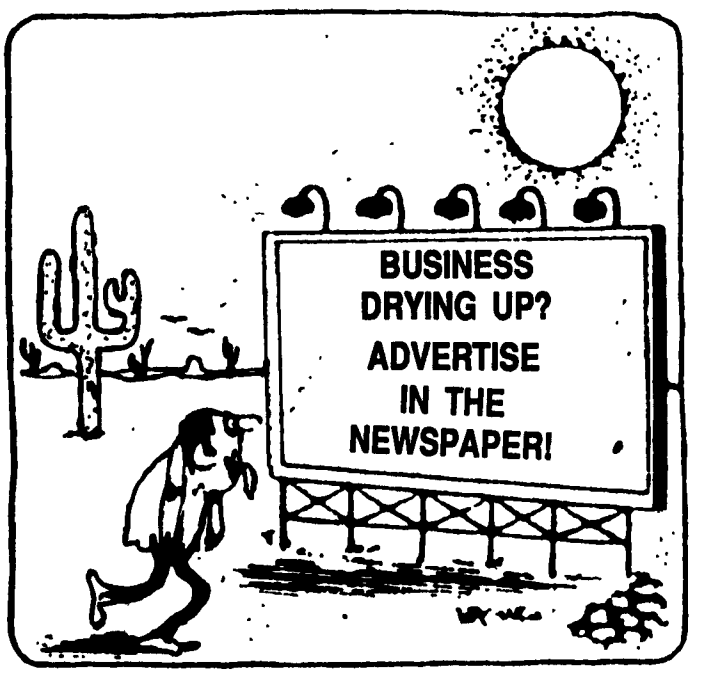
However, they are well on their way to coming up with the funds needed for the trip — a cake sold, and then resold 25 more times, at the beginning of the Lebanon Fair livestock sale last Friday netted a total of $3,685 for the group. As of presstime, the total amount needed by the group wasn't known specifically, but the ballpark amount was that the group may need an additional $2,000.

Any donations can be made to the group, through the Lebanon 4-H Livestock Club, via the Lebanon Extension Office. Call 270-4391.

The cake, a marble pan cake with butter-cream icing, decorated with the Lebanon County 4-H words and symbols, was made and donated by Angela Baker, who two years ago was the Lebanon dairy princess.

According to Atkins, who is to be a freshman at Penn State University, starting at Berks Campus, pursuing a dairy science degree, the team won the regional competition, but as an individual, he didn't do as well. He said he worked on improving himself since the regionals.

"On our own time, we make up reasons. I go over them in my head, and spend time at livestock shows. At night I lay in bed and think about it," he said.



Rebecca Kelly Wins State Judging

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 1994 Pennsylvania 4-H Achievement Days Dairy Cattle Judging Contest and Dairy Quiz Bowl were held recently at Penn State University Park Campus.

AG Progress Days

"Penn State AG Science... We're More Than You Think"

Animal Agriculture Highlighted

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Visitors to Penn State's Ag Progress Days, August 16-18, can learn about new developments in animal agriculture by touring the Dairy and Livestock Tent.

The tent features educational exhibits and demonstrations by businesses, breed associations and Penn State researchers. This year's displays cover a wide range of topics, including nutrition, forages, profitability, animal health and environmental concerns.

"The tent provides an opportunity for College of Agricultural Sciences faculty and staff to meet with people, share research results and answer questions about livestock production," says Dr. William Henning, associate professor of animal science and coordinator for the Dairy and Livestock Tent.

Dr. Jud Heinrichs, professor of dairy science, will demonstrate the new Penn State forage and total-mixed-ration particle size separator. "Farmers are welcome to bring at least two quarts of their own forage or total-mixed-ration samples for analysis in the separator," Heinrichs says.

Dr. Lisa Holden, assistant professor of dairy and animal science, will discuss Penn State's Dairy Management and Profitability program (Dairy-MAP). This series of workshops helps dairy producers apply general management techniques to improve the profitability of dairy farming.

Dr. John Comerford, associate professor of animal science, will discuss recent studies of nutrient and storage losses for three methods of harvesting large round bales. "We compared conventional dry bales with high-moisture bales stored in plastic tubes or wrapped in plastic," Comerford says.

Dr. Kenneth Kephart, associate professor of animal science, will discuss swine housing systems. "Ventilation of hog barns is extremely important," he says. "The environment in the buildings as a big effect on pigs' health and performance." Kephart and Penn State veterinary scientists recently completed a study showing that improving air quality in swine housing during the winter improves growth rates in market hogs.

Another exhibit will highlight the newly established Penn State Grazing Research and Education Center. This collaborative effort between the college and the USDA Pasture Research Laboratory on the University Park Campus brings together 18 agricultural scientists and several extension educators dedicated to improving the sustainability and profitability of animal agriculture through better use of grassland.

Dr. Clair Engle, associate professor of animal science, will discuss sheep grazing. Dr. Lowell Wilson, professor of animal science, will discuss the environmental impacts of livestock systems and the use of by-products to feed animals. Dr. Thomas Drake, senior research assistant in Penn State's Animal Diagnostic Laboratory, will discuss how the lab helps diagnose and prevent foreign livestock diseases.

Extension Bids Farewell To 6 Retirees

NEWARK, Del. — Six cooperative extension employees at the University of Delaware College of Agricultural Sciences have accepted early retirement. Their years of dedication and service to programs and clientele will be missed.

Frank Webb, weed specialist, retired at the end of June and Doris Crowley, coordinator of the agricultural sciences communications office, will retire at the end of September. The other four retirees, who will leave at the end of December, are Claudia Holden, state coordinator of the expanded food and nutrition education program; Gerald Vaughn, resource economist; Tom Williams, water quality specialist; and David Woodward, assistant director of extension.

"These voluntary retirements are part of a federal retirement plan for extension," Fowler said. "The loss of 120 to 130 years of collective experience will be impossible to replace in the short run. But it is also a chance to restructure and address changing clientele needs.

"We have been squeezed by a budget with small increases or level funding for the past several years," Fowler said. "These early retirements will help control our expenses. We don't know if all of the positions will get filled in the same way they've been filled. We have a committee of extension agents and specialists who are discussing the best way to fill the positions and meet programming needs."

For example, with research indicating that 90 percent of illnesses are related to nutrition and exercising habits, Fowler says a registered dietician may be hired to work on the extension staff.

Some positions will be replaced in early 1995, others by mid-1995. The planning group will make its recommendation to Dean John Nye and Fowler by January 1995. Fowler invites input about extension programming needs from residents in each county. He can be reached at (302) 831-2504 in Newark.

Fowler noted that the field staff of agricultural, home economics, and 4-H agents is operating at full capacity and will remain responsive to the needs of clientele.

ANOTHER INCHWORM IN THE WOODS
Robert S. Hanson
Extension Forester
Bradford County

There is yet another "inchworm" or "looper" attacking area trees this year. Most residents can't forget the elm spanworm, which defoliated mostly maple and beech trees in large forested areas in June. The most recent pest outbreak is caused by a close relative of the elm spanworm, fall cankerworm and halfwing geometer seen earlier. Commonly known as the cherry scallop shell moth, the extension office has been receiving calls from residents desiring to know why their cherry trees appear to be turning brown and how they may control the problem.

The cherry scallop shell moth larva prefers to feed on the leaves of black cherry, wild cherry and chokecherry. The larval stage fastens the margin of leaves together and to form an elongated nest, within which they feed on the upper surface of the leaves, Progressive feeding usually defoliates entire trees, reducing growth the following years and subjecting some stands to rapid decline. Death of a tree may occur after two to three years of heavy defoliation.

This insect spends the winter as a pupa in fallen leaves or in the upper soil layer. Adults emerge in late spring or early summer (mid- to late June). Females lay eggs during late June in pyramid-shaped masses, one of four layers deep, on the lower leaf surface. Egg laying continues throughout the summer. Eggs hatch in a few days, and inchworms are present through early fall. Mature larvae are pale yellow with dark-gray or black dorsal stripes; the head is usually orange-brown. The moths are light in color and have a characteristic pattern of alternating brown and white transverse wavy lines on their front wings.

Like the other geometrids, the cherry scallop shell moth has only one generation per year in our area. The adult moths do not eat but merely mate, lay eggs and die. Control therefore must be focused on the larvae stage. Homeowners should spray their trees with registered material when caterpillars are first seen. Once cherry leaves are webbed together it becomes difficult to manage the pest.

Kids Take Home Top Awards At Morrison Cove Open Show

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — "Entrants were down over the past few years," said Tom Ritchey, chairman of the Morrison Cove Dairy Show as it entered the last two days of competition.

"There were a number of reasons one of which is a recent scare of BVD (bovine viral diarrhea). But, there were also a variety of other reasons and it was still an excellent show," Ritchey concluded.

It was the kids who took the high honors in the open class shows. Taking home the supreme champion of all breeds trophy was Lori Baker of McConnellsburg. Dairy And Poultry Featured On Tour

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Dairy and poultry production are the top two agricultural sectors in Pennsylvania. But to remain strong, these industries need a steady flow of new information to enhance efficiency and improve the bottom line

This demand for scientific knowledge was the prime factor behind Penn State's construction of new dairy and poultry research centers at its University Park Campus. Visitors to Ag Progress Days, August 16-18, can get a first-hand look at the new facilities by taking the Special Topics Research Tour.

During the bus ride from the Ag Progress days site, visitors will learn about the nearly completed Dairy Cattle Research and Education Center and view a video showing the center's state-of-the-art milking parlor. Faculty from the dairy and animal science department will be on board to answer questions.

The new milking parlor will be the tour's first stop. "The parlor has a double-10 herringbone design equipped with rapid-exit stalls," says dairy specialist Stephen Spencer, who helped design the milking system.

"It's constructed of stainless steel, with narrow holding lanes so we can move groups of 60 cows into the parlor without disrupting the milking procedure," he says. "We can weigh cows automatically as they leave the parlor or between milkings."

The parlor also includes a data-acquisition and control system that transfers information from milk-flow measuring devices directly into the milking system's computer. Milk from the system's 4,000-gallon bulk tank is taken daily to the University Creamery, where it is processed and sold as fluid milk, ice cream, cheese and other dairy products.

From the Dairy Center, the tour will move to the new $6 million Poultry Education and Research Center. The 50,000-square-foot facility contains six building for studies on broilers, layers, turkeys, pullets, breeding and genetics and processing.

"The new facilities more nearly replicate the technology used in today's industry," says Dr. William Weaver, professor and head of Penn State's poultry science department.

The centerpiece of the new complex is the Fundamental Research Building. In addition to housing offices, a hatchery, a feed mixing area and a surgical suite, this building contains four environmental chambers designed to hold up to 400 birds each.

"We can alter a chamber's temperature, relative humidity, ventilation, and light rates to simulate different seasons, housing types, and other environmental factors," Weaver says. "We can simulate the conditions of a hot summer day in south Georgia, even in the middle of winter."

The Special Topics Research Tour departs at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. daily during Ag Progress Days. An additional tour will be offered at noon on Wednesday.

The tour is free, but tickets are required. Tickets are available at the corn crib at the top of Main Street, which is the tour boarding site. Seating is limited.

Discover CLAAS
THE HARVESTING SPECIALIST

The Rollant 66 makes fast work of 4'x5' bales. Its unique two-stage pick-up and close tines produce a clean, efficient harvest in less time. Rollatex netting wraps a bale in 10 seconds or less, and double-twine wraps it up in just 20.

The Rollant 46 introduced CLAAS's innovative fixed bale chamber to the marketplace. This versatile baler handles all farm operations from dry hay to silage. Nobody produces a better 4'x4' bale.

The Rollant 42 was designed for family livestock operations. This economical investment produces weather-tight 4'x4' bales for the highest nutrient content possible.

CLAAS bales mean nutrient-filled edible hay, low spoilage, and high crude protein retention.

Each Rollant offers the innovative chamber, low-profile pick-up, and world class dependability. And they all share CLAAS's international reputation for low maintenance, durability and long-life.

The BEARLINK's seven inch adjustment stroke moves with hydraulic power, automatically locking in place wherever you want it...saving you trips back behind the tractor...making hooking implements or taking them off faster and safer...BEARLINK owners tell of shortening the hydraulic link while turning around at the ends of fields saving damage to equipment and making in-field angle adjustments without stopping...

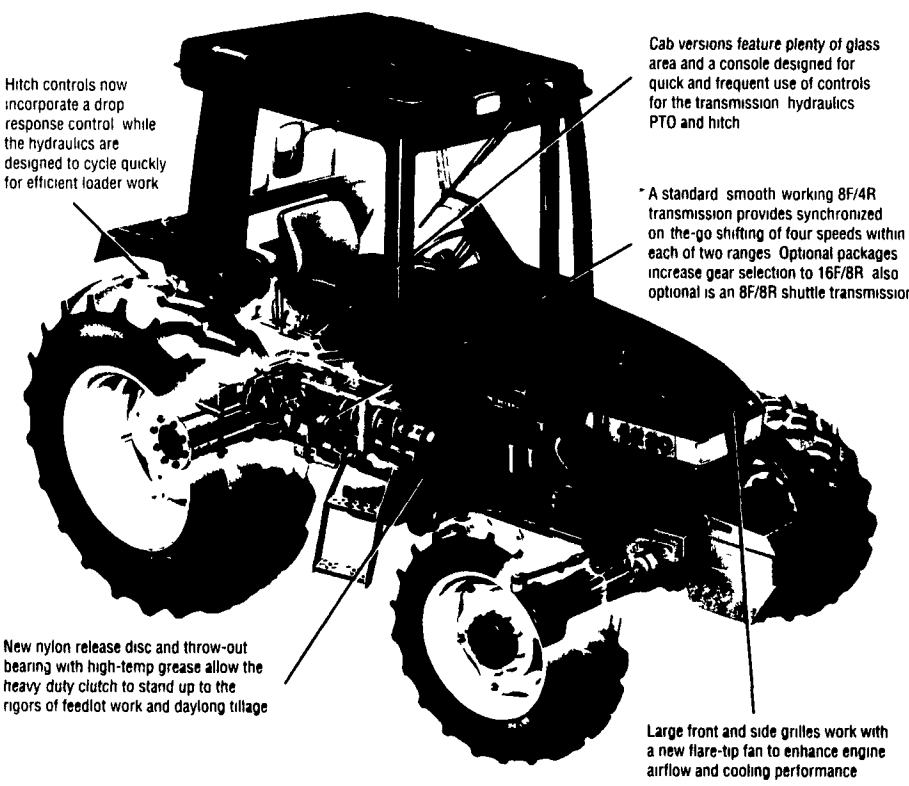
INTRODUCING A GENERAL-PURPOSE TRACTOR YOU CAN REALLY GET INTO.



Hitch controls now incorporate a drop response control while the hydraulics are designed to cycle quickly for efficient loader work
Cab versions feature plenty of glass area and a console designed for quick and frequent use of controls for the transmission hydraulics PTO and hitch
A standard smooth working 8F/4R transmission provides synchronized on the-go shifting of four speeds within each of two ranges Optional packages increase gear selection to 16F/8R also optional is an 8F/8R shuttle transmission
New nylon release disc and throw-out bearing with high-temp grease allow the heavy duty clutch to stand up to the rigors of feedlot work and daylong tillage
Large front and side grilles work with a new flare-tip fan to enhance engine airflow and cooling performance

The new Case International 3200 and 4200 Series tractors. Five new tractors designed to the industry-leading performance criteria established by MAGNUM™ and MAXXUM.® These 42 to 85 PTO hp tractors set the standard for mid-range productivity.

To see which 3200/4200 tractor best suits your needs, visit one of the Case IH dealers listed here today. And while you're there, ask about Total Product Support — our commitment to the service and parts that add life to your tractor.

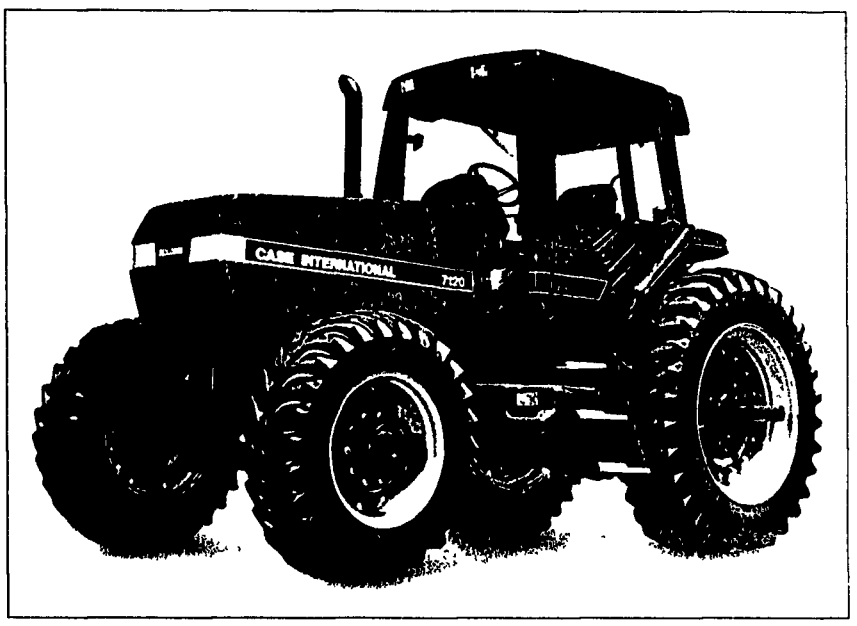
MAGNUM



Five years after their introduction, MAGNUM™ tractors continue to set the standards by which 100 plus horsepower tractors are judged.

This kind of leadership does not come easily. It's the result of years of researching your needs and requirements. Followed by more years of development and testing.

You asked for engine performance and efficiency, full powershift transmissions, responsive PFC hydraulics, and operator comfort.

And you have it. It's called MAGNUM.

Level your fields without leveling your combine.

The brilliantly simple Dynamic Hillside Compensation System, optional on MF 8400 conventional combines, gives you "flat land" performance on slopes up to 20 degrees. All automatically. And all at a surprisingly low cost. Stop in today for all the details.

Without Hillside System, crops overload the lower side of the sieve, causing high losses and low sample quality.

THE CLAAS HARVESTER

MAXIMUM FEED QUALITY

To ensure maximum feed quality from corn it is vital to crack every kernel. Digestion of uncracked corn falls as the corn becomes drier. Independent trials have shown the Claas corn cracker to be close to 100% effective. From the cylinder the corn passes through the two large diameter rollers with saw tooth profiles. The rollers run at different speeds to intensify the grinding effect and open up each kernel. It is a fairly tough process so the latest generation of corn crackers take account of the wear involved on the rollers. Nothing can reduce the wear but Claas have cut the cost of repair by making the outer sleeve replaceable. The shaft, drive pulley and bearings can all be reused which cuts down repair bills dramatically. Adjusting the distance between the two rollers is accomplished by turning two handles, easily accessible behind the cab. In no time at all the degree of cracking can be matched to the ripeness of the crop.

RELIABILITY

The CLAAS Cutterbox is a unique balanced design using 2 knives in a V configuration. This forces the cutting action toward the center instead of the outside. This is the secret of their horsepower requirement and good quality of cut.

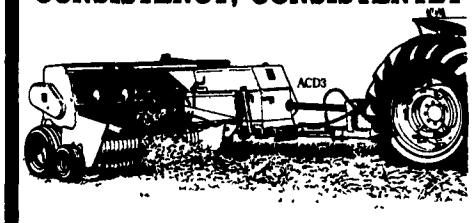
JOHN DEERE BALERS DELIVER CONSISTENCY, CONSISTENTLY



Building "square-er," stackable, solid bales is what our proven hay control system is all about.

Once hay is inside the baler, a continuous-flow, floating auger moves the crop into a tapered chamber... precompressing the hay before it reaches the bale chamber. This makes John Deere bales denser, and more consistent. A difference you'll notice when stacking and feeding bale after John Deere bale.

Model 338 Mid Size Baler
With ¼ Turn Chute
Sale Price $10,850.00 (1 Only)

BALES HOLD THEIR SHAPE... AND QUALITY... 'TIL FEEDING TIME

It's simple. You get uniform bale density throughout the bale-density you need for solid, stand-up-tall bales. Bales that hold their shape and therefore, preserve hay quality.

If your bales stay round, they shed water better, And since John Deere bales won't flatten or "slouch," there is less bale surface touching the ground to wick-up moisture. Dramatically reducing spoilage.

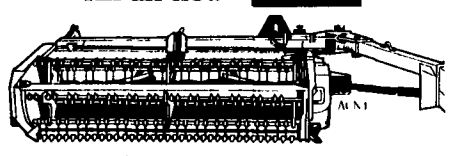
An all-new MoCo



- Redesigned guards and a 5-bar reel give the all-new 820 a cleaner cut.
- The 820's 9-foot 9-inch cut is 6 inches wider than anything in it's class.
- An all-new three point suspension system provides unmatched flotation.
- An exclusive Power-Cushion helps prevent the driveline from bottoming out during tight turns.
- Exclusive John Deere urethane-roll conditioning.

A LITTLE MORE SIZE AND A LOT MORE STRENGTH FOR MORE DEMANDING JOBS

The 7-foot 717 is perhaps our most versatile cutter. It has just a bit more size than our lighter-duty cutters, and quite a bit more strength

If a beefier, wider cutter is what you need for tougher job-like cutting brush up to 2 inches in diameter-then the 717 is for you.

Gallon Of Milk Supreme Champion Sells For $500

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

TROY (Bradford County) — The price of milk was up at the Troy Fair last week as one gallon of the "white gold" from the supreme champion dairy cow sold for $500.

Pelton Trucking gave the top bid for the milk produced from Jill Sheeley's champion, Braund Valley Dale Kayla.

The milk was sold through the Bradford County Milk Auction, a program that is in its third year in Bradford County. The proceeds of the auction are divided between the county 4-H or FFA program, the owner of the animal and the owner's local 4-H club or FFA chapter.

Quarts of milk were sold from the grand and reserve grand champions of the youth show as well.

Cortland Tire gave the final bid of $175 for the milk produced from Matthew Watson's grand champion Jersey, Miles Dolly of Little Pond. The milk from the grand champion Ayrshire, BEKA Madison's Miracle, owned by Melissa Hillyard, commanded a bid of $100 from Cross Roads Equipment.

The reserve champion Holstein, Braund Valley Potential Kel, owned by Aaron Shelley, produced a quart of milk which sold for $175. Farm Credit of Towanda was the successful bidder.

Eastern Milk Producers purchased the milk from the reserve champion Jersey for $125. The animal, Sunset Ridge Goldmaker Dolly is owned by Seth Harris.

Sunset Ice Cream purchased the milk from Karen Neville's reserve champion Ayrshire, Locust Lane Gumdrop Gypsy for $120.

In addition to the milk, baskets of Bradford County products were also sold to help raise money for the youth program.

Bradford Basket Company, Spring Creek Collection and Longaberger Basket Company each donated a basket which was filled with products from Milky Way Farms, Roloson Maple Syrup, Lariner and Norton, the Bradford County Dairy Promotion Board, Warner Taffy and Hall's Fudge.

Troy Agway, Towanda Agway Crop Center and Pelton Trucking each bought a basket for $60, $105 and $85 respectively.

Field Days Emphasize Beef Quality

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A series of Polled Hereford field days held this spring and summer has emphasized the importance of developing breeding programs to help cattlemen solve some of the problems described in the National Beef Quality Audit.

The American Polled Hereford Association (APHA) has drafted a policy which recommends that Polled Hereford breeders gear their breeding programs toward producing seedstock which will meet or exceed the industry requirements outlined in the audit.

"Of the $280-loss per slaughter steer or heifer identified in the audit, nearly $250 of this is a result of genetics," said Ed Bible, APHA president. "So we've structured our field day programs to address how our seedstock producers can help correct some of the industry problems such as lack of uniformity, excessive fat and low cutability and palatability."

The Polled Hereford events have featured industry and university experts, along with breed leaders, who have helped establish guidelines for industry improvement.

"These speakers stressed that our breeders take Polled Herefords' inherent advantages," Bible said, "such as fertility, polledness, efficiency, disposition and adequate muscling, and use them as a base for helping the industry build more consistency and quality into the end product."

NEW EVIDENCE FOR SPIKING MORTALITY SYNDROME IN BROILER FLOCKS

Regina Vasilatos-Younken, Ph.D.
Associate Professor
Poultry Science

Many causative factors can result in stunting, runting, and enteritis in broilers. However, the presence of severe hypoglycemia (low blood sugar levels) in birds following a stress, in combination with the above symptoms, may point to a specific disease, for which researchers have recently found new evidence.

With this type of spiking mortality syndrome (SMS) in broiler flocks, birds begin to exhibit symptoms, most commonly at 12 to 16 days of age. These symptoms include enteritis with accompanying large amounts of orange mucous-like fecal material, severe growth retardation, lethargy, and, following a stress such as feed withdrawal, severe hypoglycemia. The latter can result in tremors, apparent blindness and, in the most severe cases, death.

Recently, researchers at the Georgia Poultry Laboratory and Penn State University's Animal Diagnostic Laboratory have identified viral particles in fecal and intestinal contents of afflicted birds that resemble Arenavirus particles. These particles have also been identified in intestinal contents from newly hatched, specific pathogen-free (SPF) chicks and from broiler breeder flocks. When used as inoculum for day-old broilers, viral particle-containing intestinal homogenate, both filtered and unfiltered, appeared to produce a persistent infection, and reproduced the symptoms described above.

Collaborative studies with researchers in the Department of Animal Science at Rutgers University and in Poultry Science at Penn State have revealed that circulating levels of key growth-promoting hormones are abnormal in birds infected with the virus. Further, tissue stores of glucagon, the key hormone responsible for maintaining blood sugar level, are severely depleted, which suggests why infected birds develop such severe hypoglycemia. Efforts to isolate the virus and verify its identity are planned, which are the first steps toward development of diagnostic tests and, potentially, a vaccine.

Worker Protection Standard For Ag Due In 1995

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — With only two percent of Americans directly involved in growing the nation's food, upcoming debate over the 1995 Farm Bill is likely to focus on trade-offs among the concerns of farmers, consumers, environmentalists and other groups, said a Penn State agricultural economist.

"As policy decisions are crafted, compromises will need to be made among the interests of many different people, from farmers to environmental activists," said Dr. Milton Hallberg, professor of agricultural economics in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "Our policies need to accommodate these trade-offs in an economically sound and socially acceptable manner."

Hallberg has co-edited a new book about the issues expected to be part of the debate leading up to 1995 U.S. food and agricultural legislation. "Food, Agriculture, and Rural Policy Into the Twenty-First Century: Issues and Trade-Offs," published by Westview Press, offers recent information concerning a wide array of fundamental issues, reviews diverse policy approaches for dealing with these issues and assesses trade-offs among these alternatives.

"Lawmakers must balance budget constraints with financial assistance for agriculture and rural residents," Hallberg said. "They'll also need to find middle ground between international and national priorities for agriculture, between food costs and food safety, and between expanding and reducing research and extension education programs."

Issues likely to be on the table in 1995 include U.S. agriculture in a global setting, structural changes in agriculture, food safety and food assistance, trade agreements and policies, commodity policy and farm income support, marketing control and risk management, rural programs, and agricultural research and education.

Also, debate is likely over how to best protect the environment while making agricultural production as efficient as possible.

"Food, Agriculture, and Rural Policy Into the Twenty-First Century; Issues and Trade-Offs" was edited by Hallberg; Robert G.F. Spitze, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Illinois; and Daryll Ray, professor of agricultural economics and rural sociology at the University of Tennessee.

"Each chapter focuses on a current or emerging public concern that is likely to be a focus of attention in 1995 policy," Hallberg said. "The chapters were written by specialists chosen for their particular expertise from among the top analysts and educators in agricultural economics.

"We hope the book will be a valuable guide for lawmakers, agricultural educators, agricultural and food industry leaders and interest groups concerned about the future of agriculture in the United States," Hallberg said.

Braund Valley Captures Both Banners At Troy Holstein Show

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

TROY (Bradford Co.) — Braund Valley Farms captured the premier breeder and premier exhibitor banners in what Bradford County Extension Agent Tom Maloney described as a "very close race."

In fact, according to Maloney, only two points vaulted Braund Valley to the top over Mt. Glen Farm.

Senior, grand and supreme champion honors in the Holstein show were bestowed upon Miss Karma Logic, owned by Gen Rich Farms and Dave Page, of Columbia Cross Roads. The champion was a 5-year-old sired by Hanover Hill Logic ET.

Reserve senior and grand champion distinction was awarded to Royal Haven Inspire Quill, a junior 2-year-old sired by Hanover Hill Inspiration and owned by Lynn and Bonnie Miller, of Towanda.

Junior champion honors went to Royal Haven Broker Queen ET, a winter calf owned by Lynn and Bonnie Miller and sired by Conant Acres JY Broker.

The reserve junior champion of the Holstein show was Maple Flat Encore Lilac, a summer yearling owned by Danielle Sparling and sired by Marcrest Encore.

In the Brown Swiss show, Melissa Hillyard's dry cow, Foust Hill Emory Maria rose to the top as she was named the senior and grand champion. Elm Brook RVC Galena, another dry cow, owned by John Yurkanin, and sired by Elm Brook Patrick Adda, was the reserve senior and reserve grand champion.

Melissa Hillyard also showed the junior champion Brown Swiss, Sample Hill Bond, a spring yearling sired by Lone Oak Improved Image. The reserve junior champion Brown Swiss was Elm Brook JPR Jasmine, a spring calf, owned by Amberleigh Yurkanin, and sired by Johann Pete Rose ET & TW.

The winners were named at the Troy Fair on Saturday, July 30, following the Brown Swiss and Holstein Show which boasted over 160 animals. Dale Olver served as the official judge for the show.

A list of the top three winners in each class follows:

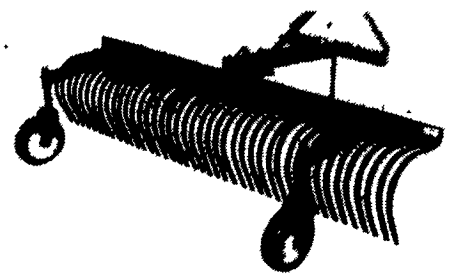
BUSH HOG

LR SERIES Landscape Rakes

New for 1994



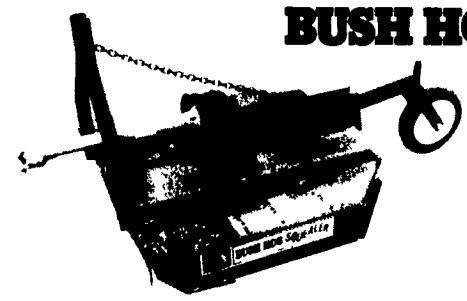
Here's your best choice in dependable tool that's ideal for seedbed preparation, landscaping, spreading gravel or topsoil and removing rocks and debris from fields and farmyards.

Bush Hog's Landscape rakes are recommended for tractors with a maximum 35 HP, and are available in 5, 6 or 7-foot widths. High carbon spring steel tines are spaced at 1" intervals, for more thorough leveling or rock removal. These rakes pivot a full 360 degrees, a feature that assures a more versatile operation. And the pivot pin is 1-1/4" solid steel-for greater durability.

BUSH HOG

Why Bush Hog Squealers Mow down The Competition

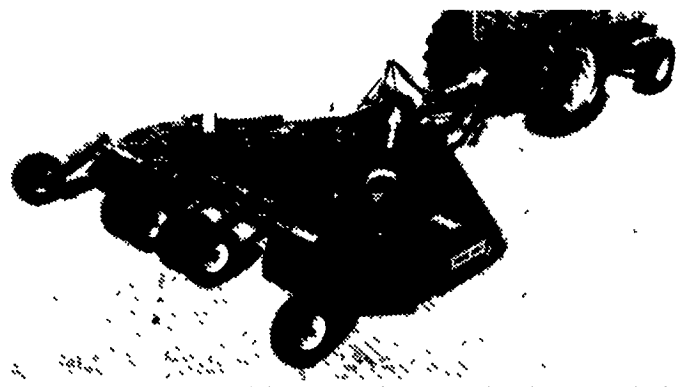
BUSH HOG



There are two basic reasons and quality is the first. Each Squealer model is equipped with Bush Hog's tough gearbox that carries a 2-year warranty. All models, except the 42-inch wide cutter feature oval blade pans, and the 60 and 72-inch wide models have an "in-line" shear bolt with ball bearing protection that can be replaced in a snap. An optional slip clutch is available.

The second reason for the Squealer's popularity is price. Select any of 5 models, 42 to 84-inches wide, and compare prices with the competition With a true price/quality comparison, it's easy to see why Squealers mow down the competition.

Not All Fields Are Perfectly Flat



That's why the Bush Hog® model 2615 15-foot cutter's wings are designed to float along contours as severe as 90 degrees up or 22 degrees down while shredding stalks, clipping pastures or cutting along rights-of-ways, drainage ditches, terraces and fence rows. As it does so, an automatic height adjustment keeps the wings cutting at the same height as the center section. A framing system featuring closed box members allows us to make the 2615 pounds lighter without sacrificing any of the strength you've come to expect from a Bush Hog. And, less weight not only means less wear and tear on your tractor but it has also allowed us to cut the price.

Why pay more to get less - make a Bush Hog's success your success.

BUSH HOG

For Two And Four-Wheel Drive Tractor With 60 to 90 PTO Horsepower

BUSH HOG

Attachments for the 2840 QT include quick attachment systems, bale spears and fork lifts. Bucket selections include regular duty 60, 72 and 80-inch sizes as well as heavy duty 60 and 72-inch buckets. When teeth are added to the 60 of 72-inch buckets, they make excellent tools for manure handling.

A single or dual lever remote valve is optional, or tractor hydraulics may be used. A bucket leveling indicator is standard equipment.

For Pastures, For Roadsides, For Stalks... Here's The Rotary Cutter You Need.

Bush Hog's medium duty 270 Series Rotary Cutters are excellent tools for the widest variety of land maintenance chores. And they're built tough, built to withstand rugged cutting in material up to 2-inches thick. Decks are 10 gauge steel, continuous welded and braced at all stress points.

Beware Of Residues On Clothing

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Many farmers and gardeners in Pennsylvania will be applying pesticides to protect their plants from insect damage this growing season. Appropriate dress is vital, but it's also important to wash contaminated work clothes properly, said a safety specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Don't overlook precautions like these when using pesticides," said Dr. Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering. "Some safety guidelines may seem drastic and time-consuming, but they will help to protect the health of you and your family."

If you will be applying pesticides, be sure to select appropriate clothing. "Start with a wide-brim hat, long-sleeved shirt, long pants and chemical resistant gloves," Murphy said. "Use unlined rubber, latex, neoprene or nitrile gloves. Never use leather or cloth. Wear sturdy work shoes or rubber boots, not sneakers or sandals."

Always wear appropriate personal protective equipment (PPE) when handling pesticides. "The pesticide label lists required protective clothing, as well as the product manufacturer's name and address," Murphy said. "It may be necessary to wear goggles, a face shield or a respirator depending on the label's guidelines."

Your work clothes probably will absorb some pesticide residues. "Treat any piece of clothing contaminated by pesticide residues with extreme caution," Murphy said.

"Research has shown that a single washing with no pretreatment can leave 18 to 48 percent of the pesticide in the fabric. Some pesticides are oil-based, which makes removing stains and residues even more difficult."

To avoid health risks, keep contaminated items in sealed plastic bags until they can be washed. "Wash clothes with pesticide residues as soon as possible, but always wash them separately from other laundry," Murphy said.

"Wear rubber gloves to sort and load contaminated clothes into the washer. Discard any item that has been thoroughly saturated with concentrated pesticides. Be sure to unfold cuffs and empty pockets to remove pesticide granules, and use pretreatment or stain remover to remove oil-based residues."

Setting the washing machine properly will help remove residues. "Use hot water, a full water level and a normal wash cycle," Murphy said. "Use about 1.5 times the normal amount of heavy duty detergent and run contaminated clothing through two to three full cycles to remove all residues. Run an empty cycle with hot water and detergent before the washer is used again."

When possible, hang the clothing on a line to dry rather than risk contaminating the dryer.

Clean non-washables such as hard hats, goggles, and boots with hot, soapy water. Store them away from pesticide storage areas.

Compost Conference To Dig Into Marketing, Use

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — This year, Penn State Cooperative Extension's compost conference in the Philadelphia area will dig deep into issues related to compost marketing and use.

The Marketing and Use of Compost Conference will address composting from the perspective of both the producer trying to find markets and uses for compost and the compost user.

The conference is aimed at farmers, municipalities, nurseries and greenhouses, landscapers, and others in the industry who have some familiarity with the composting process, as well as interested members of the general public.

On August 24, participants will meet at Montgomery County Community College, in Blue Bell, for a day of seminars. The following day they board a bus at the 4-H Center in Creamery for a day-long compost tour.

The seminar on day one will feature a series of speakers and workshops on the marketing and use of compost. The audience-specific workshops will give participants the opportunity to ask questions of researchers and field practitioners testing and using compost for landscaping, turf, municipal applications, greenhouse and nursery uses, and farm applications. There will also be a workshop on how to approach lab testing of compost for quality. Networking time will be set aside for participants during lunch, and the seminar will conclude with a panel discussion on permitting compost sites.

The bus tour on day two will visit composting use sites, field trials, and compost equipment demonstrations. Lunch will be served at Hickory Park's covered pavilion in New Hanover Township, and equipment demonstrations will take place across the road from Hickory Park at S-Berry Farm.

The conference is sponsored by the Recycling Education Office of Penn State's Montgomery County Cooperative Extension and is being organized in conjunction with a volunteer program committee whose members come from the region's farms, greenhouses, nurseries, landscape companies, land managers, municipalities, county government, and compost experts. Cosponsors of the conference include the Rodale Institute Research Center in Kutztown, the Pennypack Ecological Restoration Trust of Huntingdon Valley, and the Waste System Authority of Montgomery County.

For more information or to receive a conference brochure and registration form, contact the Recycling Education Office at (610) 454-1245.

WHEN IT'S HOT...

your layers will still be comfortable if you have the Big Dutchman Slot-Aire Layer Cage System.

Extremely hot temperatures during the week of June 13 caused many layer flocks to have high mortality and less eggs.

Not at the IRWIN MARTIN Farm in Newmanstown, PA

COMPARE THESE RECORDS TO YOUR FLOCK,

	OUTSIDE TEMPERATURE *	MORTALITY	%PRODUCTION
JUNE 13	91°	10	87.3%
JUNE 14	95°	10	86.5%
JUNE 15	97°	8	90.7%
JUNE 16	95°	8	89.9%
JUNE 17	87°	6	88.8%
JUNE 18	93°	5	90.4%
JUNE 19	98°	4	89.1%

The superior design of the Big Dutchman Slot-Aire System kept this flock well ahead of the "Breeder Standard" - even during hot weather.

ONLY Big Dutchman has Slot-Aire.

At 42 weeks, this Dekalb Delta flock of 45,581 birds produced more eggs with less feed than average flocks. This adds up to more profits over the life of the flock.

Opportunities Exist For Md. Poultry

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley has announced that the small Caribbean island nation of St. Lucia is looking to develop its poultry industry and become less dependent on bananas.

"It is my understanding that the people in St. Lucia are looking for a buyer for a white meat surplus that they forecast will be about 4.4 million pounds per year. At the same time they want to purchase dark meat on a quid quo basis from the purchaser of their breast meat. The islanders prefer the darker poultry meat," Riley said.

"I think there is a strong potential here for a cooperative effort with a Maryland company that would generate an enormous amount of economic activity for Maryland's economy," said Riley.

St. Lucia is looking to sign a ten year contract for the dark meat-white meat exchange. In addition, St. Lucia will purchase hatching eggs, animal medicines, supplies, feed supplements, grains, and equipment to get their poultry industry off the ground.

For more information on the St. Lucia poultry project, contact the Maryland Department of Agriculture, Marketing Services, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, (410) 841-5770.

Industry Watches As Fall Market Approaches

DENVER, Colo. — Sheep producers nationwide are reporting mixed success during lambing and say they'll take a wait-and-see attitude in predicting the fall market. But, while sheep numbers aren't giving a clear indication what producers can expect in fall marketing, climbing lamb prices in some regions and an overall boost in wool values are spreading some optimism throughout the industry.

Some states in the Rocky Mountain region — Montana, Idaho and Colorado — and Wisconsin reported a good lambing season, with numbers up slightly from past years. Other states reported moderate downtrends or steady lamb numbers. Overall, mixed reports nationwide will likely mean lamb numbers will remain steady as compared to last year.

The way the fall lamb market shapes up is going to depend a lot on how many people stay in the sheep industry despite the phase-out of the Wool Act, said ASI Market Analyst Steve Meyer. "If there's a lot of disinvestment, there are not going to be the lamb supplies."

Loss of producer numbers in the sheep industry was reflected in reports from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and northern Massachusetts, where lamb numbers were up, but the availability of feeders is down overall, and producers are being forced outside the area to New York, Ohio, and Pennsylvania to buy them.

"There are a lot less lambs available because people have gotten out of the business and those that aren't (out) are about to," said Tom Bennet, state executive for the Vermont Sheep Breeders Association and member of the Yankee Shepherd Co-op. He says within the co-op, "We've had a hard time putting our hands on lambs, and it looks like that's going to get worse not better."

Meyer said that overall there has been a nine percent decrease in total sheep numbers and an 11 percent decrease in stock ewes. He points out that along with the decrease in population, the numbers of old ewes being shipped to Mexico has stayed level. Taken together, this means less ewes in the U.S. breeding flock. However, if the lambing percentages are good as a nationwide average,

"Efficiency Is The Key To Profit"

A field of exhibitors with new machinery, products and services is always a main feature each year of Ag Progress Days at Penn State's Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring. The theme this year is "Penn State Ag Sciences...We're More Than You Think!" and highlights the efforts at Penn State to help with research and extension to provide a safe food supply for the world.

Ag Progress Days Machinery Demos To Feature New Harvesters

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Agricultural producers can compare various brands of farm equipment in operation under the same field conditions at Penn State's Ag Progress Days, August 16-18. Farm equipment and agricultural products worth more than $20 million will be demonstrated and displayed.

"Equipment demonstrations are a central part of this event," says Robert Oberheim, Ag Progress Days manager. "It's a good chance for producers to evaluate comparing machines to make sure they get the best equipment for their situation."

Faculty and staff from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences will be on hand to describe machinery operations and principles and answer questions about the equipment being demonstrated.

Mechanical pepper and tomato harvesters will be demonstrated at Ag Progress Days for the first time this year. "These automated harvesters have a unique ability to sort processing tomatoes and bell peppers for quality," Oberheim says. "The same machine can harvest both crops with minor modifications. We'll be demonstrating both types of harvest all three days of the event."

The tomato harvester will be demonstrated Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a.m. and on Wednesday at 2:15 p.m. The pepper harvester will be demonstrated at 2:15 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday and at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Mowing demonstrations in alfalfa will be held daily at 10 a.m. Cultivation demonstrations, to be held at noon each day of the event, will feature regular and high-residue row cultivators. The emergence of soybeans planted with various precision planters also will be evaluated daily.

Primary tillage demonstrations will be held at 12:45 p.m., with an emphasis on deep tillage. No-till drills will be demonstrated daily at 1:10 p.m. and secondary tillage will be demonstrated at 1:30 in the same plots used for deep tillage.

Round silage baling will be demonstrated at 3 p.m. each day of the event. The previous day's alfalfa crop will be baled, then the bales will be measured and weighed. The moisture content and density of each bale will be evaluated. Bale handling, bagging and wrapping will be demonstrated in the same field at 3:30 p.m.

The location of each demonstration will be published in the free Ag Progress Days program that visitors can pick up at the exhibition. Demonstrations may be delayed in the event of adverse weather and field conditions.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits, tours and machinery demonstration. It is held at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rock Springs, nine miles southwest of State College on Route 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, with extended hours of 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday. Admission and parking are free.

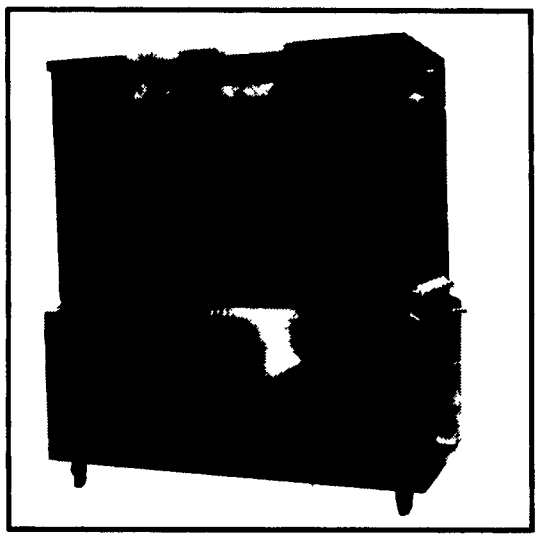
Scroll-Compressor Technology

New in 1994

You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller® milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-priced" milk-cooling equipment.

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk.



Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$ 17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for 10 years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$ 2,300

Mueller scroll compressors have higher energy-efficiency ratings (EER), and are highly durable with only two major components, compared to our competitors' reciprocating compressors requiring 12 parts.

Forest Programs Win Top Environmental Awards

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Two programs in the School of Forest Resources in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences have received 1994 Three Rivers Environmental Awards.

The awards, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Environmental Council and the Duquesne Light Company, recognize excellence in advancing environmental quality in Western Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania Timber Harvesting Certification Program received the first-place award in the education division. This environmental program directed at professional loggers is coordinated by the School of Forest Resources, the Timber Harvesting Council of Pennsylvania and the Nortim Corporation.

The program provides courses and a handbook covering topics such as erosion control, logging in wetlands and forest ecology. Participants learn about basic forest ecology and silviculture practices. They also develop a better understanding of the environmental impact of harvesting timber.

The Volunteer Initiative Project of the Pennsylvania Forest Stewardship Program was named a finalist in the communications division for its work with private landowners and communities. The project is a joint effort of Penn State Cooperative Extension, the U.S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service, the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources Bureau of Forestry, the Ruffed Grouse Society, and the National Wild Turkey Federation.

Landowners in the project learn about forest and wildlife management, forest ecology, and other environmental issues. They then share this information and promote forest stewardship principle in their communities. More than 75 forest landowners are participating.

For more information about the Pennsylvania Timber Harvesting Certification Program or the Volunteer Initiative Project of the Pennsylvania Forest Stewardship Program, contact Penn State's School of Forest Resources at (814) 863-0401.

Industry Watches Market Approach

the numbers of lambs on the fall market might not be measurably lower than last year.

In Colorado and parts of Wyoming, a better-than-average lamb crop will hold lamb numbers steady despite less ewes in production in the states. Wayne Cunningham, research associate at the Veterinary Teaching Hospital at Colorado State University in Fort Collins, said that because of good weather and feed availability, many producers in the region are reporting their number of lambs born are up 10-15 percent.

"It sounds like we have extra numbers, but there are fewer producers so I don't really know that we will have extra pounds of lamb," Cunningham said.

In Montana, it appears the lamb crop was better than last year. Producer John Paugh of Bozeman said he lambed at about 110-120 percent, better than the last two years. Paugh credits good weather and low predation.

But Paugh also points to the fact that a good lambing season is only part of the equation that determines whether it will be a profitable year. "There are things we have no way of judging." One of those things is the impact of imports. In addition, many in Montana also got out of the business.

"One thing I see, and particularly in most of Montana, is very few yearlings available for fall because they got discouraged and sold the ewe lambs in the feedlots for slaughter," Paugh said. "Those extra lambs created a glut in the market and the price went down. . . There were a lot of ewe lambs that went to slaughter that most times would have been held for replacements. So replacements are going to be in short supply, at least in Montana."

Another factor that will play into how the fall market shapes up is the fact that the feeders took a beating on lambs this spring.

"It was a bloodbath," said Steve Lewis, a New Mexico producer and feeder. "Usually that would cause the feeder market to be really cheap, but the (slaughter) market is really good right now so I don't know" what the fall market will be like, Lewis said.

Meyer concurs, "After feeders paying so high last fall and receiving low prices this spring they're most likely not willing to pay high prices this fall," he said. "A lot of it will depend on their outlook for next spring during the fall market.

"The psychology out there right now is that feeders paid very high prices last fall for feeder lambs in expectation of high prices for slaughter lambs in the spring. Of course spring prices were considerably lower than expected, so this fall they may not be willing to pay higher prices for feeders regardless of the outlook going into spring. A lot will depend on the actual supplies later this fall."

Although the lamb crop in Texas wasn't as good as some parts of the country because of weather and resulting feed conditions, it was better than it has been over the past two years. However, Ernest Woodward, a producer in McCamey, said that he is concerned about the bad prices last spring.

"The market is picking up now and looking better," he said. "We're hoping for a continued good market, but we're a little concerned about the money that was lost last spring."

Idaho producer Cindy Siddoway said much of Idaho has had "excellent" lambing this year, with the Siddoway operation noting a 168 percent lamb crop to date.

"We don't sell until September, so we don't know exactly, but in general it was extremely high this year." She also points out that the percentage could drop to 150 by the time they go to market because of predation, which already has been a problem in parts of New Mexico and Texas.

Hay Show Has New Location At Ag Progress

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The annual state hay show sponsored by the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council and Penn State Cooperative Extension will again be held at Ag Progress Days. However, the location of the hay show and the crops and soils tent has been changed to the east end of East 5th Street. This change was made so that crop demonstrations could be included into the educational program.

Entries officially close at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, August 16. However, to facilitate handling of samples, exhibitors are urged to deliver their samples to the hay show tent on Monday, August 15. If you deliver hay samples to Ag Process Days on Tuesday, you should use the special hay sample drop-off point located at the East entrances. This drop-off point has been initiated to avoid difficulties to get samples to the hay show tent at its new location. Don't forget, deadline for sample delivery is 10 a.m.

No entry fee will be charged. The hay shown must have been grown by the exhibitor in Pennsylvania in 1994. Exhibitors may enter in as many classes as they wish, but no exhibitor shall make more than on entry in a class, either in his own name, the farm name, or in the name of some other person. An entry blank is printed with this article, or you can get additional entry blanks at your county agent's office.

Arabians, Medieval Horses Highlight Ag Progress Program

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The Arabian horse, which has influenced equine genetics for centuries, will be featured during the Equine Educational Program at Penn State's Ag Progress Days, August 16-18.

The program highlights Penn State's teaching, extension and youth programs, and calls attention to the $4 billion horse industry's contributions to Pennsylvania agriculture.

"The theme of this year's equine events is the horse through history," says Ben Nolt, 4-H therapeutic riding coordinator in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "We thought it was appropriate to feature the Arabian, which has contributed to the development of many other breeds over the years."

According to a recent Penn State study, there are an estimated 9,000 Arabians in Pennsylvania. Their total value of nearly $56 million is second only to Quarter Horses among light horse breeds in the state.

Patricia Comerford, extension horse program coordinator, says Arabians have been used extensively as foundation stock in the development of several breeds. "When Arabians are cross-bred," she says, "the offspring tend to inherit many of the Arabians' desirable characteristics.

"Arabians are noted for their endurance and versatility," she explains. "They primarily are used for long-distance riding, racing, showing, pleasure riding or working."

A special exhibition on Wednesday evening in the Horse Arena will honor the Arabian's unique place in horse history. That will be preceded at 6 p.m. by the flag presentation and a Cumberland County 4-H drill team exhibition. Driving demonstrations, featuring draft horse hitches, will conclude the evening's events.

At least 12 breeds will be featured in a series of clinics during the three-day event Welsh and Tennessee Walking horses will be shown Tuesday at 10 a.m. Appaloosas and Hafflingers, including an eight-pony Hafflinger hitch, will appear Tuesday at 2:30 p.m.

Morgan, Quarter Horse and Paso Fino clinics will be held Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. Miniature horses and powerful Belgian, Clydesdale, Percheron and Shire draft horses will be featured Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. Palominos and Paints will be exhibited on Thursday at 10 a.m.

Expanded horse handling and training clinics will be offered at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday and at 1 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday. Ward Studebaker, manager of Penn State's horse farm, will conduct the clinics, which will emphasize round-pen training.

A therapeutic riding demonstration and mounted exhibitions by the state's 4-H champions will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m.

A display in the Equine Exhibits Tent, adjacent to the Horse Arena, will feature the horse's role in medieval times. Visitors can see armor, attire, weaponry and other paraphernalia used during that period of history.

Other exhibits in the tent will showcase Penn State's Quarter Horses, teaching and extension programs, 4-H and therapeutic riding and driving programs, horseshoeing and horse feeds. Video presentations will highlight equine education and careers, as well as aspects of the commercial horse industry.

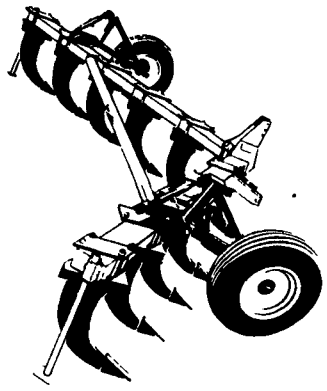
The "Quality Crafted" Line

Better Seedbeds... Better Stands!

SUB-SOILERS



The husky, curved shanks of the Sub-Soiler dig down as deep as 16 inches, shattering compacted layers of plow sole and lifting the hardpan while it is being broken. 3, 5, 7 shanks.

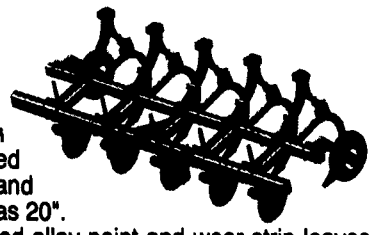
3-SHANK DEEP TILLS

The three shank model, shown above, has a Category II hitch. With a cutting width of 7'6", it is ideal for operators with smaller acreages and horsepower. It is extremely maneuverable, yet provides the same basic deep tilling job as its "big brothers". Available with coulters.

5 & 7 SHANK DEEP TILLS

The 7 shank model shown here, as well as the 5 shank model equipped with single individual trash cutting coulters and cuts a 17'6" width. It uses manual gauge wheels.

COMPACTION COMMANDERS
NO-TILL RIPPER/DEEP RIPPER
DESIGNED FOR YOUR CONSERVATION NEEDS



Brillion introduces their new Compaction Commander...designed to break up hardpan and compaction as deep as 20". The standard V-shaped alloy point and wear strip leaves residue on the surface with minimal soil disturbance. Auto-rest shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage. Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil. 39" of underframe clearance assures trouble free operation even in heavy residue.

HFC FIELD CULTIVATORS

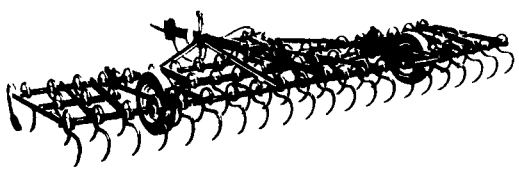
'C' Tooth -
4 Year Warranty

S-Tine -
3 Yr. Warranty

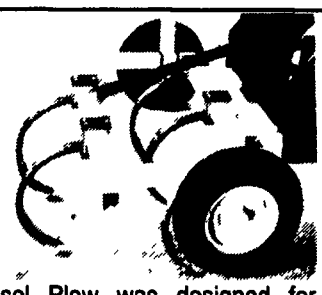
The "heart" of any field cultvator is the shank pivot point. A "bulked up" shank bracket made of cast ductile iron instead of the usual formed steel bracket, incorporated a hardened steel bushing AND a zerk grease fitting to lubricate the pivot point to reduce wear. The result is thousands of acres of extended life of the shanks.

SPRINGTOOTH HARROWS
with "INSTANT" TRANSPORTS
8 Ft. to 20 Ft.



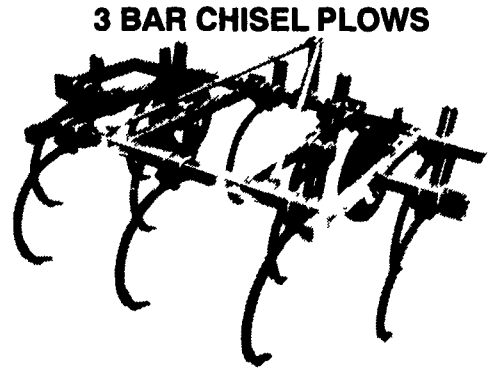
STS and STR series have low profile design with heavier tooth mounting bars, longer wheel wells and PRESET DEPTH control. STR models have "C" shaped or ribbon teeth. STS models are equipped with spring tines.

2 BAR CHISEL PLOWS



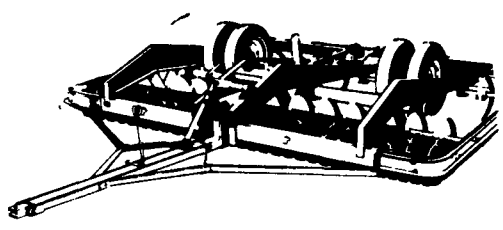
The Brillion 2-Bar Chisel Plow was designed for medium horsepower tractors in the 40-75 h.p. range. The frame accomodates either five or seven 1"x26"x26" shanks. Two types of ground working points are available: chisel points for fast, easy penetration and reduced draft or twisted shovels that roll the soil and mix it with field trash. Mounting is for Category II tractors, 3 point hitch or Quick Coupler, 5 or 7 Shank.

3 BAR CHISEL PLOWS



The CPP series of mounted models enables you to turn short and fast... to transport easily, utilizing your tractor's hydraulic system, 7, 9, 11, 13 or 10,12,14,16 shank.

M-MD PULVI-MULCHERS
7'4", 10'4", 12'4", 13'8" , 15'



The Brillion Pulv-Mulcher converts fall or spring plowing into clod-free, high yield seedbeds. Just flick the tractor hydraulic control, pulvi-mulcher lifts to transport wheels.

ML SERIES PULVI-MULCHERS
12'6", 13'10", 15'2", 18'9"
SERIES 03 - Built to last.

- Easy rolling 20" ductile iron notched or crowfoot roller wheels with 5 year limited warranty.
- Longer life external mounted bearings.
- Longer, heavier drawbar for shorter turns.

PLANNING THE FALL HEALTH PROGRAM

The recent bovine viral diarrhea (BVD) outbreak in Pennsylvania has again emphasized the need to plan an effective fall health program for the beef cow-calf herd.

Recent reports in some of the beef journals have encouraged the use of prevaccination and preconditioning of beef calves as an effective tool to prevent disease in feedlot and backgrounded cattle. How do you do this and what is it worth?

The purpose of preconditioning or prevaccinating calves is to help alleviate the stress they experience at weaning, shipment, and adjustment to a feedlot environment while simultaneously building resistance against some of the causes of disease that result from this stress, particularly repiratory disease. Preconditioning also implies the calves are castrated, implanted, dehorned, weaned, and started on feed at least three weeks prior to sale and/or shipment. All weaned beef calves should be castrated and dehorned well before weaning — the cost is too little compared to the discount on the sale price when these jobs are not done. That leaves vaccination and weaning to meet preconditioning guidelines.

The cash cost of a complete preconditioning program will be about $30-$40 per calf. This includes a high quality grain feed to be fed for 3-4 weeks and two rounds of a vaccination program that would include IBR, BVD, PI3, BRSV, H. Somnus, pasturella, and a 7-way clostridial. Other costs that may be added are implants, wormers, and treatment costs for any calves that get sick before you sell them. The non-cash costs would include interest, labor, and death loss you may incur.

There are only a couple of ways to recapture these costs: receiving a higher price per pound for the calves, selling heavier calves, or both.

Preconditioning has been around for many years, but one of the reasons that it has failed in the past is because the calf owner was not compensated for the additional costs.

To make preconditioning and prevaccination programs work for you, there must be some market planning involved. Two instances that would usually make this program feasible would be if you retain ownership of the calves and feed them out yourself (particularly at another location), or if you are selling calves directly off the farm to a feedlot operator. In the latter case, the feedlot owner may provide the drugs and feed.

There are special electronic sales in West Virginia and Virginia that captitalize on these programs. Most of the buyers recognize the value of preconditioed calves to their feeding enterprise and pay more for them. If you use these markets, find out if there is a special prevaccination of preconditioned sale that would work for you. If you plan to market your calves at local auctions, you probably should not consider prevaccination or preweaning because you probably will not get paid for your trouble.

At most of these sales, calves are bought in smaller groups and then combined into larger grops for shipment and feeding. As a result, some are treated and some are not, and the feedlot operator can't tell the difference.

A Telltale Sign

I recently had the opportunity to participate in a program in Lancaster County in which some steers were viewed live by the audience, and then everyone was invited back a couple of nights later to view the carcasses.

These programs are always a very enlightening experience for those who know little about evaluating carcass traits in a live animal, and they usually serve as an humbling experience for those who think they do.

One particular steer continues to stand out in my mind from that program. He was a big one — he weighed 1,655 pounds. There were a lot of "oohs" and "ahhs" when he walked in — he was well-finished, high grading, high dressing. Just the kind to top the market and make the feeder a lot of money — or so it seemed.

The steer did dress well — 63.4 percent — and a cattle buyer indicated he would be worth about $3/cwt more than the average steer. Then the roof caved in. He had a yield grade of 5.2, a carcass weight just over 1,000 pounds, and had 1.1 inches of fat over his rib. He graded Choice, but just barely.

The carcass weight and yield grade dock on the steer was about $15/cwt. The additional cost of putting that extra fat and weight on the steer was about $4/cwt for the last 400 pounds. With a reasonable amount of feed cost to put that last 400 pounds on him, the total expected cost to feed that steer to the heavier weight would be about $280. When we add the $150 dock he took for being too big and fat, the total goes to $430. If we had sold the steer at 1,265 pounds for $60/cwt and compared that to the $3 "premium" we got for putting on another 400 pounds, the difference in value was about $290. Our so-called "market topping" steer lost about $140.

Who lost that $140? I think we all know it wasn't the feed company or the packer. The truth is this kind of steer is everything that is wrong with some of the cattle in our industry.

We have had some down markets in the industry lately, and inefficient feeding, big carcasses, fat, and poor business management are contributing factors.

The industry is swiftly moving toward a value-based system of pricing fed cattle. The feeder who sends these kind to town will find he will no longer be able to afford to stay in business.

Ratite Association Holds First Seminar

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On June 12, the Northeast Ratite Association held its first seminar at the Days Inn.

The speakers at the seminar were Pat Hoctor, editor of the Animal Finder's Guide; Donald Jones, Sherry Stanley from Trans-Global Ostrich Products, LTD.; Dr. Jagne, New Bolton Center; Gregg Smith, Southern Cross Emus; and Cindy Shaw, Morning Star Ranch.

Hoctor spoke on the Rhea management and the USDA. Hoctor also discussed the formula, for ratite feed, which was developed by Dr. Duane Ullrey for the San Diego Zoo.

Donald Jones, spoke on his adventures in Ostrich farming. He stated that he traveled to South Africa to find out what it was all about. While there, he traveled to several Ostrich farms to see how they handled the Ostrichs.

Sherry Stanley spoke on Ostrich Natural Plus feeds which was developed by Mark Rosenfeld, PH.D. She then explained the purpose of the ingredients and how it effected egg production, fertility, embryo development, and growth of the ratites.

Dr. Jagne discussed some of the more common problems of ratites and also explained both causes and cures for ratite disease. Dr. Jagne also explained the services offered by the New Bolton Center. One such services was the testing of eggs for disease and complete necropsies, which cost only $20 for any number of birds submitted at one time.

Greg Smith spoke on Emu farming in Australia. Smith discussed farming techniques and also Emus in the wild. He noted that all Emus in Australia were descendant from five pairs taken out of the wild in 1970. He also noted that the best age to slaughter Emu was 14 months, but at 16 months you would get more oil from the bird.

Cindy Shaw spoke about the research behind Emu and Rhea products. She noted that Rhea oil was being used in baby formula and Emu oil was being used in burn creams. Also noted was the fact that Emu and Rhea meat held up well when frozen, being invaluable for the growing frozen food industry.

Manure Composting Demonstrations Set

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Many farmers adopting nutrient management plans are finding they have excess manure, and it can be cumbersome and costly to deal with. An alternative is composting. Learn about materials and techniques for composting at Penn State's 1994 Ag Progress Days, August 16 to 18.

"Farmers often get complaints from suburban neighbors about manure handling and disposal," says Robert Oberheim, Ag Progress Days manager in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Composting manure can be the answer to odor and pollution problems as well as a way to deal with excess manure."

Farmers interested in composting manure and other agricultural wastes can visit the on-farm composting display above West Twelfth Street, past the horse area. Wagons leaving every half hour from the Conservation Education Tent will shuttle visitors to the display.

Featured will be concrete manure bunkers, compost turners and a manure composting pad. "The concrete composting pad is an example of what is approved by the Pennsylvania SCS and the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources," says Oberheim.

The compost turners will handle a variety of materials, such as food processing waste, animal manure, leaves and grass clippings. Experts will be on hand to explain compost mixtures and procedures.

"In addition to showing large, commercial-sized compost turners, we hope to display equipment suitable for smaller farms," says Oberheim. "Displays will show how manure composts when mixed with different kinds of animal bedding."

Sales Manager's Note: Due to personal health reasons, the Monro's have decided to disperse this outstanding group of cattle. This is a really good, young herd with many 1st and 2nd calf hfrs selling. In going through the records, two things become obvious - the calving intervals are very consistent time after time after time and if they didn't produce - they didn't stay! This will be one of the better herds of cattle to sell this year!!
